The high school class graduating last evening at the armory numbered 147. Hence the figures stand that the Salem high school has graduated 171 students for the school year ending this week.

It seems like the good old times when electric belts and electric hair brushes were sold to the unsuspecting public, said a prominent citizen today, to see gypsy fortune tellers in their picturesque costumes plying their business in the downtown part of the city. The fortune telling business evidently paid, remarked the same citizen, as there is a weekly license of $25 to be paid for such things, besides the rent of the building.

The executive committee of Willamette University met last evening and voted to send out professors to canvass for students for the next term of school. A formal communication was wired to the war department at Washington signed by the committee and Dean Alden, acting president urging that action be taken to send a military instructor here next fall and that arrangements be made to properly equip and uniform students in the military course.

Alfalfa is the road to wealth for the farmer, according to W. E. Vincent who lives near the city limits. Today he displayed samples of his alfalfa five feet four inches in height from his farm where he has been growing it six years. He says he has cut it four times a year for the past five years. Mr. Vincent is an old Kansas alfalfa grower and believes that the Marion county farmer would find it a most valuable crop.

Pictures of actual battle scenes will be shown. The lecture has been given the official endorsement of the officials at Washington, and is a call to all loyal easy going folks to awaken to their danger.

The man who wants to buy sheet metal for any purpose, must make known his wants to the federal food administration. One of the rulings of the administration is that sheet metal can be purchased by an individual only when to be used for some purpose that is useful for food conservation, such as artificial drying of fruits and vegetables. Factories have been instructed by the government to sell nothing to dealers without orders from the food administration is that sheet metal can be made, there must be a showing that the metal is to be used in a way approved by the county food administrator.

BRITISH STEAMER HAD HOT RUNNING BATTLE

Keemun Offered Fight to Submarine Which Kent at Distance

An Atlantic Port, July 15.—Bringing a thrilling story of her fight with a German submarine off the Virginia coast, the British steamer Keemun docked here today.
Her encounter with the enemy raider Thursday was a running battle in which the Germans used five inch guns and showed as much speed as the Keemun.

According to the story by the captain of the vessel, the submarine attacked the Keemun at 6:30 o'clock Thursday night off the Virginia capes. With the first shell from the sea pirate, the gun crew of the Keemun opened fire on the submarine, which is apparently one of the largest type of the undersea fleet.

The range was then 1700 yards and with shells from the five inch gun of the U-boat throwing up fountains of spray around the Keemun, a running fight started which lasted until the Keemun fired her last shot at 11,000 yards, or about seven miles.

The Keemun's guns were working rapidly, returning shell for shell. Both vessels moved through the water at 12 knots an hour. Just how many shots were exchanged could not be accurately learned but it is said the battle was one of the hottest in these waters between a merchantman and a German U-boat.

The Keemun made quarantine early this morning and the naval authorities here obtained a lengthy statement from her captain and forwarded at once to Washington.

Poulsen, returned to her home at Albany today. Miss Glazer will be married next Wednesday at Albany to Roy Jaquith. She is a graduate of the Salem high school of 1912 and he a graduate of the Oregon Agricultural college. They will make their home at Laurel, Ore. They met at Corvallis last winter when Miss Glazer was attending the commercial course.

Two bids were submitted to the Commercial club for the building of a stairway from the new bridge to Riverside Dip. As the bids were too high even for consideration, other parties will be called on for estimates.

The body of Joseph A. Martin who died at a naval hospital near Boston, Mass., will arrive in the city next Tuesday.

On account of no attendance, there was no election last evening of directors for heads of the Civic and Agricultural departments of the Commercial club. It is probable these departments will be called to elect a director early next week in order that all departments shall have elected their directors before the annual meeting on the evening of June 21.

In the film 'Wake Up America' to be shown next Monday evening at the armory, the Kaiser is seen as a child with his attention directed to warlike boys. A vision of what might happen if Germany wins is shown in a moving picture of French school children in the war zone. The films and views will show a number of new scenes of France and parts of Belgium under war conditions. The evening at the armory is a free event and given that people may realize conditions across the water.

200 Elks Took Part In Flag Observance

Fully two hundred Elks attended the flag observance of the lodge held last evening in Willson Park. The program as arranged was given, with the ritualistic work by the officers of the lodge and addresses by Walter L. Toose and the tributes to the flag by B. W. Maey. John Carson gave the history of the flag, a subject of special interest to all during these war times. The solos of Miss Ada Miller were well received as usual and she was obliged to respond to encore, the patriotic songs especially pleasing. In his address Walter Toose intimated that if any pro-Germans didn't like this country, now was a good time for them to get out. The attendance was large and a majority of the audience remaining to hear the band concert, under the direction of Oscar Steelhammer. As exalted ruler of Salem lodge 36, B. P. O. E., Harry J. Wenderoth presided during the exercises.

German Women Aliens Must Register Monday

All German women aliens of 14 years old and upward will find it advisable to register next Monday. If they live in Salem, registration must be at the police station. If on any of the rural routes from Salem, registration must be at the postoffice. Others living in the country anywhere will register at their postoffice or at the postoffice served by their rural route. The time for registering is from June 17 until the evening of June 26. As on each registration blank there must be a photograph of the party registering, the photographers may find business picking up to some extent. There is also a space for all finger of the country to teach the workers here something about it. Her lecture was delivered at the surgical dressing rooms in the post office building this afternoon. It seems that sphagnum moss is found in 50 varieties but that only four are of value. Of these four, in Oregon and Washington are found three varieties. It grows mostly in land suitable for cranberries and grows near Marshfield in quantities and in Pacific country, Washington. As the west seems to grow the moss, the western states will be assigned most of the work that can be done with it.

After the German women have registered, they are not permitted to leave this district without the permission of the postmaster or the chief of police, according to where they have registered. Judging from the number of alien German men who registered some time ago, it is thought that about 50 women will register.

We can't conscientiously forbid the little ones to strip down to their 'undies' and disport themselves in cooling draughts from the garden hose, when we'd like to be doing that same thing ourselves—minus the 'undies.'

A FAILURE

Just what is a failure. It can be a great many things.

Today it may be the war, and yet, this is the farthest idea in any man's mind.

'We are going to win the war,' says every red blooded man in the United States. Why? Because we must win.

When is a failure?

When the last true American has been killed or captured the war will have been lost. When a head of a family dies without leaving an estate he has become a failure. What will you be?

'If' your life is insured you cannot become a failure. Better attend to it today.
