Sheep In Willamette Valley Quarantined

Because of the prevalance of sheep scables in some Willamette valley flocks during last winter and spring, and because of danger of its spreading to other flocks in the state, the state livestock sanitary board has declared a quartine against the movement of any sheep in Western Oregon that have been affected, the quartine to hold until due precautions have been taken.

The sheep must be inspected and dipped at least once, but less than two months after the winter dipping for scabies, precaution to be taken that the sheep are no texposed to cossible infected buildings or corrals. The dipping is to be earried out under the supervision of the state veterinarian,
