What Causes Tooth Decay?

WE know that when food is left exposed to warm air for a given time it ferments or agiven time it ferments or ourns sour. Food caught between the teeth ferments, and this fermentation is usually caused by very small plants called micro-organisms. Food deposits in the mouth or in between the teeth soon ferment and decompose, forming an acid, which is a relvent for the enamel of the teeth. One decayed tooth affects its neighboring teeth.

It will thus be seen that docay is due to the presence of fermenting food particles in the mouth. Remove this hymeans of a tooth-brush, or dental foss, or by any other way, and you will help to precent decay of teeth.

Diseases which occur in decay of teeth.

Diseases which occur in childhood, such as tonsilitis, measles, diphtheria, scarlet fover, and others, cause the teeth to become liable to decay more easily. This is because during sickness the teeth do not receive proper nourishment and care. Very often the six-year moiars come through with defective enamel. When this happens to them, or any other tooth.
