Why America Is at War Shown in Feature Production from Ambassador

The Germans before the war, as every one knows today, made of espionage a great national understanding. To be successful in this branch of the service, it is unnecessary to go very minutely into details of psychology, and we must admit that the Germans have thoroughly and scientifically organized their entire system. With what success this was attended the allies can testify.

Spying is a very essential ingredient of Prussian character, and this natural tendency has been carefully cultivated so that no influence of personal honor or feeling shall be considered if it be for the national advantage to disregard it.

Their military spying is as perfect as such work can be, married occasionally by the contempt they feel for other nations in military masses.

It is the German boast, and we believe a legitimate one, that they know America better than do Americans but their error is in believing that in knowing America they know the Americans themselves. America's entry into the war proves this fact.

"My Four Years in Germany" at the Liberty theatre starting tomorrow for three days.

GERVAIS NEWS.

Mabel Johnson, 15, and Edna Johnson, 13, of Gervais school, will crowd the boys at the coming state fair when it comes to raising pigs. They are raising pure bred Durocs, and from all accounts the pigs are not suffering for lack of attention.

Mrs. Pearl Stevens entertained the Hermosa club last week, that being the last indoor meeting till fall. The ladies worked hard and finished their layettes which will be sent to some Belgian babies. Mrs. Stevens surprised the club with a most delightful Hoover luncheon.

E. E. Shields had the misfortune of losing two of his best horses the first of the week from being poisoned by what is called Water Hemlock, which they ate while in pasture. This plant is quite rare in this section but is said to be very poisonous. The horses were sick about three days and everything possible was done by the veterinary to save them.

Loganberry picking began Tuesday in S. H. Brown's large vineyards. About 200 pickers are working and things are running lively about Gervais just now. Many are living in tents and some are in rented houses for the season. The aggregation of grade school teachers from Portland who are occupying the City Hall are very comfortably situated, having plenty of good clean straw in their bunks, electricity and good water. Mr. Brown has done about everything possible for their convenience, even to an improvised shower bath where they can "dust off" after coming from the berry yard. The ladies who are "bussed" by Miss McGregor, are quite docile (being school teachers) and express themselves as being well received by the people of Gervais, and expect to spend their time here very pleasantly and patriotically.—Star.

husban' came in an' saw you (hic) entertaining a stranger he wouldn't (hic) like it."

And he walked unsteadily to the front door and went out again and walked around the block six times.

Half an hour later, his wife again heard the sound of his key pursuing the keyhole, and again he entered. This time, in a black and red fury, she descended on him with the rolling pin and gave him a thorough drubbing.

"Home at last," he murmured sleepily, and, stretching himself out on the seat of the hatrack, he went peacefully

NO PLACE LIKE IT.

It was three o'clock in the morning, and Bonner Bibbles had not yet come home. Mrs. Bibbles resolutely put aside the rolling pin.

"No," she decided. "I won't use it on him this time. Of course, it is very wrong of him to come home in such a state and at such an hour every night, but perhaps if I try kindness instead of force, he will see the error of his ways."

At that moment she heard the sound of a key searching for a keyhole, and five minutes later her husband opened the front door. She threw her arms about his neck and kissed him on the right eyebrow.

"It's such a comfort to have you home again!" she cried happily. "Come back in the dining room and I'll make you a nice sandwich!"

Bonner Bibbles followed her, kissed her, she helped him find a chair, dazed him on the head spot, and made him a nice sandwich of two slices of wheat bread with a slice of rye bread between them. But suddenly he staggered to his feet.

"No!" he cried. "I've very nice of you, ma'am, but maybe if you (hic)
