the war, for the crop and labor. War conditions will also put an enormous amount of money into the valley from the prune crop. With the government willing to pay the California growers on a base of 85 cents, this figure will probably apply to Oregon and as this community will have larger sides in comparison to California, war conditions will put into the valley practically two cents for every pound of prunes harvested. This is the estimate of a man who has been familiar with the prune business for many years.

While this difference of about two cents a pound will be paid the grower he will not profit to this extent as labor will come in for its extra pay. Men who are capable in drying prunes who were paid $4 last year will demand $6 and possibly $7, not that they are any more competent, but war conditions rather force higher wages as the country has been drained of its laborers.

signing in advance to each man his post in the town to be captured and of identifying that post by personal maps and photographs marks a new advance in the technique of offensive fighting. The cautious discovery of enemy machine gun nests, and their extermination by artillery fire, demonstrates that the Americans are not throwing away their lives by the reckless, impetuous assaults of amateur soldiers, but are fighting in accord with the most recently approved scientific principles.

Only by such carefully devised and patient methods can the casualties of an offensive operation be kept to a minimum. There is every reason to be satisfied therefore, with what the Americans have done, not so much because of the accomplishment itself, but because of the promise it holds out.

Stock Market Dull, Prices Are Fluctuating

New York, July 2.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today said:

Today's stock market was another dull affair, devoid of more than passing interest. Monday's broad recessions attracted new buying power in limited measure, once the short selling movement had come to an end. The result was restricted supply of stocks and something of a tendency to cover.

The feature in the trading was a fairly good demand for copper, iron and smelting shares, most of them gaining between one and two points.

Through the afternoon prices were highly irregular and at moments in the last hour mixed movements were quite animated. Bethlehem "B" was under pressure, while United States Steel continued strong, ruling above 105. The coppers receded fractionally from the top.

"Commodore" Hardy In Destitute Circumstances

Portland, Or., July 2.—Portland has been placed in an embarrassing position by the discovery that "Commodore" William H. Hardy, the only surviving member of Commodore Perry's Japanese expedition, has been living with his aged wife in destitute circumstances for some time. While Portland has been showering the old seaman with honors in the form of receptions—not banquets—he has been living a hand-to-mouth existence. After Hardy, who is over 80, went temporarily insane and shot himself, it was found that his wife had been sick at home for some time and that not even a loaf of bread was in the house. It also was learned that after Portland recently gave a reception for the "commodore", it sent a bill to the navy for rental of the auditorium, although the city owns the auditorium. Hardy has no pension, but has been aided by the navy. The navy officials were informed today that Hardy could not be kept at the county poor farm because he is not, for some reason, a county patient.

Can't Argue With Beasts Says Chancellor Bonar Law

London, July 2.—"You cannot use arguments with wild beasts; the only thing to do is to destroy all of them," declared Chancellor Bonar Law today, in referring to the torpedoing of the hospital ship Llandovery Castle by a German submarine. Bonar Law made the statement during an address of welcome to the delegates attending the international allied parliamentary conference. He referred to the torpedoing as "an unspeakable outrage," and declared that "we must all set our teeth until the end is achieved." The chancellor expressed regret that Premier Lloyd George could not be present.
