COUNTIES CANNOT INITIATE LAWS SAYS THE SUPREME COURT

Opinion Will Stir Grange to Greater Activities Before Legislature

Because counties have never been granted authority to make their own charter, they do not have power to initiate local laws. This point is emphasized in an opinion written by Justice Harris and handed down by the supreme court today in the case of L. A. Carraker and wife against Lake county, et al, appellants. The case involved the validity of a tax levied by the initiative to provide a fund to be paid in bounties on jackrabbits.

Last March the supreme court handed down an opinion, holding that the tax was invalid on the grounds that the county did not have authority to initiate a law, and the case was brought before the court again on a petition for rehearing.

The court's opinion has aroused much interest, particularly among the grangers, and at the recent convention of the state grange the legislative committee of that organization was instructed to go before the next legislature and seek the enactment of a law giving authority to counties to initiate laws of benefit to the county.

In the opinion handed down today the court adheres to its former opinion. The defendants based their petition for a rehearing upon the contention that article IV section 1a of the state constitution "is a grant of local legislative power and is itself the charter for all municipalities and districts."

Justice Harris, speaking for the court says that when the various sections of the constitution are construed together "the inevitable conclusion is that every municipality must have a charter and since cities and towns are the only municipalities which are granted the power to make their own charters it follows that a county cannot make its own charter. A county cannot enact a law unless the power to enact the law is referable to a grant of the whole state or by their representatives, the legislature. Nor does it necessarily follow that a county can initiate and enact a local, special and municipal law without a charter merely because it can exercise the referendum without a charter granting it the power of exercising the referendum."

Other opinions were handed down today as follows:

H. Moulton, appellant vs Alfred L. Parkhurst, et al; appealed from Multnomah; suit to recover money paid in connection with lease on property; opinion by Justice Johns; Circuit Judge Davis reversed.

Mary E. O'Neill, appellant vs Odd Fellows Home of Oregon; appealed from Multnomah; suit for damages for personal injuries; opinion by Justice Bean; Circuit Judge Bagley affirmed.

Swat the Mosquito If He Stands End-wise

Swat the mosquito that has the appearance of standing on its head with its hind legs up in the air and the body in general pointing straight up when it lands. This is the advice of the government in a circular issued through the treasury department and sent to all postoffices for posting. This is the malaria mosquito and the only one that carries the dread disease. If the mosquito lights just like an ordinary house fly, it cannot do anything damage except biting, but it is the other kind that carries malaria from one person to another. Advice given by the U. S. Public Service is that all weeds be mowed down around the house, pools or marshes drained, horse troughs emptied every ten days and that the house be screened. Five grains of quinine a day are recommended if one happens to be in the neighborhood of the malaria style of mosquito. The government also suggests that patent medicines are to be let alone.

Court House News

In the circuit court a divorce trial was on the docket, that of A. R. Mishler against Lenna E. Mishler. They were married in 1903 and have six children. The plaintiff charges that his wife circulated scandalous reports about him, charging him with dishonesty and drunkenness. Also that she had abused him, had called him a liar and that at times she would become enraged and strike and kick him. The six children are between the ages of one and thirteen years.

Papers were filed yesterday in the case of Ora Bateson against Robert C. Bateson for divorce. They were married January 18, 1913. They have a girl five years old and a boy two years old, both wards of the juvenile department of Marion county. The charge was that the wife stayed away from home at nights and failed to give the children proper attention. In the decree the court required that each of the parents should be required to pay $10 a month for the support of the children.

A final report was made by Margaret B. Blundell, administratrix for the estate of Thos. H. Blundell who died Dec. 2, 1917. The value of the property was $961.08.

Three marriage licenses were issued July 1, as follows: Albert Renwell 31, of Marion and Della May Thomas, 24, also of Marion. James Chagman, 35 of Salem and Bella Henshaw, 35, of Salem. This was the first for him and the second for her. The third license was granted to Peter Loeber, 26, of Oregon City and Eva Baugtsche, 21, of Salem. This was the second for him and the first for her.

New York Banker Writes of Home Service Section

Mrs. Carrie R. Buel, secretary of the Home Service section of the Red Cross is in receipt of a letter from Charles Norton of New York City. Mr. Norton who is one of the big bankers in New York who is giving his services to the government, writes as follows regarding the work of the Home Service Section:

"I am much interested in your letter of June 18 and congratulate you that as secretary of the Home Service Section of the American Red Cross, you have an opportunity in your local community to do one of the most effective bits of work possible to help win the war."

"You can have no idea how eager the men in France are to know that the home folks are well and happy. Anything you can do to aid or comfort the wife or child of a soldier along the lines laid down by Director Frank Persons of the Home Civilian Relief Department, is most helpful."

"There is no question that our troops will put up a magnificent fight. They will be the deciding factor in this terrible war. They understand what the fight is about and they are ready to make every sacrifice. They only have one anxiety—that is their families. We must all stand behind them to the limit of our ability."

Chambers - Marks Wedding at Monmouth

(Capital Journal Special Service)

Monmouth, July 2.—A very pretty and informal wedding took place last Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. at the home of Mrs. Allen Johnson, when Reta C. Marks and Chester W. Chambers were united in marriage. The bride was very lovely in a gown of white satin and a bouquet of shell-pink carnations. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Mark. James Chambers, Mrs. Byron White, Mrs. H. Broadwell, Miss Gertrude Heffley, Mrs. Allen Johnson and George, Thelma and Clara Marks. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Johnson, after which the happy couple departed on their honeymoon trip to Newport. In spite of the need for Hooverizing, the usual shower of rice helped speed them on their way and friends seen to it that the auto was fittingly decorated with an array of old shoes.

The bride is a 1918 graduate of the O. N. S. and will teach school the coming year at Clatskanie. Mr. Chambers is a graduate of the agricultural college and is engaged in farming in Kings Valley, where the couple will spend the summer together.

WILL SOON ANNOUNCE RUSSIAN POLICIES

President to Make Statement As To America's War Aims

By Robert J. Bender (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 2.—The world will soon know the definite purposes of the United States in its heretofore efforts to bring and end to the struggle by 1920.

President Wilson has completed the formulation of his "doctrine of aid." The finished product holds out America's hand, not only to Russia but to all the other oppressed peoples under Tauton militarism—and to the embattled nations themselves, now and in the future.

The president has decided the time has come for a recapitulation of aims in the war. The next months will be furious ones and strong decisions must be made. There must be no doubt in the minds of the nations, however, that whatever course this country is called on to pursue in any exigency, her ultimate purposes are to see that all nations get a square deal at the finish.

As forecast, the president in his July 4 speech at Mount Vernon will set forth his out-and-out program of aid—merely the principles upon which he will work.

The means of extending help to Russia are being developed, however, and in some instances already in effect.

A movement is under way to further protect allied supplies at Kola, Russia, in view of information that the Germans are moving toward the Murman coast in large numbers "to assist the Russians" and "afford protection against the British."

District 13 Has Raised 75 Per Cent

Monmouth, July 2.—A meeting of the patrons of Monmouth school district No. 13, was held Friday night in the school house for the purpose of checking up results of the W. S. S. campaign to date. It was found that only $5000 of the $12,000 quota had been pledged and it was decided at that time to stop at that. However as some of the patrons had not yet been reached, the matter was again taken up by Saturday night almost another
