Five Officers Killed In Recent Fighting

Washington, July 27.—The emergency addresses of five officers killed in action during the fighting around Soissons early this week were given out at the war department today, including:

Captains Julius Mood, Summerton, South Carolina. Alfred Hamel, Atlantic City, N. J. James Richards, Sewanee, Tenn. James H. Holmes, Charleston, S. C. Lieutenant James C. Ledero, Sunset Park, Wilmington, N. C. The war department has no address record at the present time of Colonel Hamilton Smith, Lieutenant Colonel Clark Elliott, Major J. M. McCloud and Captain James A. Edgerton.

ed by telephone to a reliable newspaper office where such news always comes first. Probably this wide-spread rumor originated in the sensational headlines of the Portland Telegram, which has been predicting surrender at any moment, although there was nothing in the press dispatches following to justify the statements made in the headlines. The telegram, of course, is one of those newspapers which think more of street sales than of a reputation for reliability. Newspapers of real standing sometimes print news from apparently reliable sources that turns out false, but they never willingly seek to deceive the public in order to sell a few papers.

The county food administration, through its force at the Commercial club, has often been asked to grant special sugar permits for various kinds of entertainments. There has been received no authority to issue these special permits and there will be none issued. The suggestion is made that entertainments, even for the Red Cross, be arranged whereby there will be no need for an extra amount of sugar.

The Rev. Robert S. Gill will leave for Portland next Thursday to report to Major T. A. Mills, in charge of the welfare work of the spruce division. His work will be that of aiding in the upbuilding of the morale of the spruce workers at the camps and also among the civilians. He will be called on to deliver patriotic addresses and do recreational work. While much has been done to make life pleasant for various lines of the services, the spruce workers up to the present time have been overlooked.

The county clerk's office broke the record yesterday. Ordinarily there is considerable money coming in, but Friday it was all going out for gopher scalps and the like and not a dollar coming in. This however, is not troubling the office force as much as the fact that Tuesday is a holiday and the question has not been decided whether everybody works or whether everybody takes a day off and celebrates with the rest of Marion county and Polk county, the official opening of the new bridge.

The public is asked to supply their needs from the public library next Monday instead of calling Tuesday when everybody will be observing the dedication exercises of the bridge and watching the first parade ever held in Salem in which everybody will walk. However, lest there may be one or two who feel that the library should be open regardless, it has been arranged whereby it will be open for business between the hours of one and three in the afternoon.

The funeral services of J. E. Coppock, who died suddenly Wednesday evening at Eugene, were held this afternoon at the City View Cemetery and were conducted by the Rev. R. S. Gill. Mr. Coppock was born in New Castle, England, June 21, 1857. He is survived by four children, Mrs. D. W. Cummings and T. Howard Coppock of Tacoma, Ross H. Coppock, who is with the state highway commission in eastern Oregon and Miss Nell Coppock of this city. Mrs. Coppock died October 6, 1917.

If every city in the country is as generous in buying "for-get-me-nots" at ten cents a bouquet as Salem has been today, the Belgian babies will fare well as the dozens of patriotic women and children who are selling today are receiving a most cordial welcome. Among those who are giving their time to the work this morning were Elizabeth Lord, Dorothy Pearce, Doris Churchill, Lucille Jones, Ada Miller, Luella Patton, Harriett Griffith, Mary Jane Albert, Hazel Downing, Gertrude East, Ila Spaulding, Hazel Blake, Lena Hucklestein, Mabel Robertson, Valerie Briggs, Katherine Hartley, Marie Schulderman, Florence Austin, Dorella Anderson, Helene Cleaver, Lorena Geer, Wantha Bullock, Margaret Stoltz, Bertha Vincent, Leona Geer, Thelma Young, Leah Rees, Lucille Moore, Ruth Griffith, Lena Baumgartner, Elsie Hop Lee, Margaret Lewis, Mary Cupper, Elizabeth Lewis, Iris Blewett, Edith Brotherton, Neva Millard, Mrs. Claire Vibbert, Mrs. Frank H. Spears, Mrs. L. C. Farmer, Mrs. Will Prank, Mrs. E. V. McMechan and Mrs. Walter L. Spaulding.

Adjutant General Williams and Colonel North will speak at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the armory and will explain the plan of the organization of the Oregon national guard, a company of which will soon be organized in Salem. Every man of the 2nd battalion is asked to be present at the armory in time to hear the talks of General Williams and Colonel North. Also men who are interested in getting information as to the Oregon national guard. There is a hint coming from some source that the new company of the O. N. G. to be organized in Salem will have a chance to see active service, as the government is expected to replace regulars doing guard duty in the country by the National Guard.

The Spaulding Logging company has shipped three car loads of fir airplane canis to the cut-up plant at Vancouver during the past week. The fir is from the 2 1/2 to 4 1/2 inches thick and any length up to 40 feet and is used exclusively for wing beams.

It was announced at the Chautauqua meeting that the crown prince of Germany and his army had surrendered. Of course there was nothing to it—merely rumor which should have been confirmed.

CLASS ONE SOON TO BE EXHAUSTED BY DRAFT LEVIES

Men Just Turned Twenty-One May Next Be Called To Colors

By Carl D. Groat (United Press staff correspondent)

Washington, July 27.—There is a possibility of exhaustion of draft class one before congress can finally act to extend draft ages.

Some states have wired Provost Marshal General Crowder that they are on the verge of drawing their last men of the first class. To rescue the situation so that it will not necessitate invasion of deferred classes, it is likely that a call for the men who have turned 21 will be issued before January 1, 1918. That, however, may not prevent invasion of the second class unless congress acts hastily upon extension of draft ages when it reconvenes at the end of August.

It is predicted that by Labor Day, the last of the fighting men now in class one will have been called. Meantime the war department is working on its program for extending the draft age limits.

Chairman Dent of the house military committee predicts that there will be a fight in congress if there is a too radical sweep downward though he told the United Press today that the house will probably yield to "anything reasonable." The house is the most opposed to the extension downward, but it is likely that it will not go to the point of attempting to thwart the president's wishes.

There is some tendency to complain because Secretary of War Baker deferred action on the draft until congress completes its recess. Leaders say that had he favored draft extension earlier the possibilities of the present situation would have been averted.

The need for men in the army is illustrated by the order to restrict navy and marine enlistments from the draft for the next two months. Navy and marine corps officials are disposed to be critical of this decision though they believe their requirements can be met in that period by voluntary enlistment.

Draft officials are planning to make a wider use of limited service men than they have made to date, provided Secretary Baker approves plans now before him.

Herbert Hoover Predicts Victory In Two Years Washington, July 27.—Herbert Hoover's declaration in London that victory would come to the allies within two years, was the first official expression of a determination and confidence long held here. The goal for victory has been set in 1920 and every effort is being made to reach this on schedule. President Wilson believes that this is the crucial year of the war in that its development will determine the outcome next year.

NATIONAL GUARD WILL BE FORMED

Sufficient Number of Men Signed Roster At Armory Last Night

Men in number sufficient to organize another Oregon National Guard company reported at the armory last night and were sworn in by Lieutenant Colonel A. T. Woolpert. The officers have not as yet been elected. Another meeting will be held Monday evening when it is expected additional men will be accepted and the company mustered in.

The company will march in the military parade Tuesday afternoon as uniforms were issued last evening and the remainder will be properly equipped at the Monday night meeting. The advantage claimed for the new company is that its members will have the chance to learn the military game from the very beginning. Several who were sworn in last evening are familiar with military drill and it is assumed that the new company will include men who are from experienced units. It will have the same standing with the state as the three companies already organized and will probably be affiliated with the 2d battalion although this will come up later for a definite decision.

Among those who were sworn in last evening were the following: P. E. Needham, Lloyd C. Farmer, Arthur M. Hoffman, Pascal L. Tragallo, Ralph V. Sebern, Thomas Long, Neil C. Sommerville, Clarence Townsend, Fred G. Stroebel, Paul Johnson, Ernest C. Hoffman, Luther C. Creson, Chas. E. Lantz, Thos. A. Roberts, Carl O. Pope, Elmer O. Post, Chas. Jaquet, Wm. E. A petition was filed today in the circuit court for separate support and maintenance by Nellie E. Woolery of Woodburn against Roy A. Woolery and Josephine Parker. The Woolerys were married August 3, 1914, and there are two daughters, one five years old and the other two months. Mrs. Woolery states in the petition that money she earned was used as part payment of their home at Woodburn and she asks for the homestead and residence for herself and children and control of the two children. She also states that as the youngest child is but two months old, she is unable to go out and work for her own and children's support.
