TORPEDOED SHIPS CURED OF WOUNDS

Ships Sunk By Submarines Are Raised And Fully Repaired

An English Channel Port, July 26.—(By mail.)—War has converted this port into a huge ship hospital.

It is the haven of torpedoed, mined and disabled vessels, and is equipped with the best ship "surgeons" and "nurses" in the United Kingdom.

Here ships the Hun has torpedoed and reported as sunk are given a new lease of life and sent out again to sea.

It is estimated that hundreds of thousands of tons of shipping and tens of millions of dollars worth of cargo are saved as a result of the work of that part of the British admiralty known as the salvage section.

Passing out to sea on one of the crack salvage boats the United Press correspondent observed more than a score of torpedoed transports and steamers. Most of them were British, but sprinkled here and there were a few American and Portuguese ships.

Some of them had been torpedoed twice. One formerly a German liner, but taken over by the United States after war was declared, was torpedoed in the same spot on each side. Another ship had been shot in two, but both parts were brought in by salvage boats and the ship eventually will be sent to sea again.

Divers Patch Ships Another ship which had a huge hole on one side and fourteen holes made by splinters when the torpedo struck, was undergoing repairs.

Two divers were at work alongside the boat. They signalled for the lowering of the "patch" and it was dropped down to them. A "patch" is a number of wooden beams fastened together to cover the hole made by the torpedo. Pumps were set to work emptying the water filled hold. When the ship was able to float she put out under her own steam to go into dry dock for permanent repairs.

Before the war 6 or 7 salvage jobs at one time was a big task. Today the salvage section is equipped to handle from 50 to 60 jobs at one time.

One ship in dry dock here, rescued as it was sinking, is the American oil tanker O. B. Jennings of Bayonne, N. J. In April the Jennings collided with a British tanker. Both were carrying oil cargoes and the impact from the collision set the oil afire. Thirty seven members of the crew of the British vessel were burned to death. Two others sought escape by diving overboard but landed in a flaming oil covered sea, and were roasted alive. Only one aboard the Jennings was killed.

Blaze in Very Place For several days the blaze was so fierce that salvage ships were unable to approach either ship. Finally they managed to beach the British ship. The smoke for a time prevented approach to the Jennings. When it finally cleared, the heat prevented approach. Finally destroyers were brought up and several scores of shots fired into her. Forty holes were made in the hull, and she sank just far enough to put out the blaze. The Jennings was then beached, and the remainder of the oil removed by pumps. It is estimated the value of the cargo removed from the Jennings was 10,000,000 dollars. The Jennings has been repaired, and now is ready for sea. The British vessel is still submerged, but she is expected to be floated soon. Close to 1,000,000 dollars worth of cargo is being removed from her.

What care we, so long as the allies gain their objectives whether or not the Huns say they give ground voluntarily.

An Astoria fisherman is reported to have been pulled into the water by a fish and nearly drowned. A whale of a story.

NAVAL CASUALTIES Washington, Aug. 14.—The navy department announced four casualties yesterday.

John J. Holland, Princeton, Mich., died at League Island hospital; John A. Seigel, New York, attached to recruiting ship Washington, D. C., drowned; Robert L. Johnson, Gillespie, Ill., died Hampton Roads, Va.; Joseph J. Waters, Brookline, Mass., U. S. S. Orion, drowned.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are usually due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate quickly produces a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

This increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, soon disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAUTION—Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its remarkable flesh growing properties, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

sions and their abandoned trenches, but it is steady.

The French line is now of a saw tooth nature, owing to the peculiarities of the terrain.

Prisoners taken by a French division now before Belval (a mile and a half directly south of Lassigny) are responsible for the knowledge of German commands and orders. These prisoners, consisting of 177 men and seven officers from five different companies, added to the increasing testimony of the shakiness of the German army's morale.

It is no longer uncommon for German officers to admit doubts of German success, which was almost unheard of before the recent fighting began.

Almost everyone avows his belief that the Germans are already defeated. The morale of the Germans is almost gone. East of Mulzon, a Frenchman was taking back a German prisoner.

Enemy shells began falling all around the point took refuge in a shell hole. The prisoner, clinging to the point, said, begging in broken French: "Don't leave me; or the boches (his own word) will get me again."

Slight British Advance. London, Aug. 14.—Increased activity in Flanders with slight advancement of the British lines at two points in the center of the salient, was announced by Field Marshal Haig today.

In Picardy artillery fighting continued during the night, but there were no infantry actions on the British portions of the front.

"Hostile artillery was active last night on the British front," the statement said. "There was no infantry action."

At midday yesterday local hostile attacks were repulsed in the Diechbusch sector.

During the night the enemy's artillery showed considerable activity in this neighborhood, also northwest of Kemmel.

We secured a few prisoners last night in a successful raid in the neighborhood of Ayette.

In the Vieux-Berquin sector our patrols continued to push forward and bring their lines east of the village. A number of prisoners and machine guns were captured in this operation.

Our line has been advanced slightly east of Meteren."

BRAVERY OF OBSERVERS. By Fred S. Ferguson, (United Press staff correspondent)

With The American Armies in France, Aug. 14.—As an example of bravery and self sacrifice, observers in photographic planes have gone over the German lines without protection, knowing the chances are against their returning.

The staff found that new photographs of the enemy's rear areas were absolutely necessary. No American "chase" planes were available to guard the aviator and slower observation machines.

A staff officer put it up to the observers. The latter said they appreciated the importance and were willing to make any sacrifices.

As soon as the photographers appeared over the German lines, sometimes ten or twelve Huns attacking a single American. The latter would dodge, turn and escape, then return.

The unequal struggle continued for hours without cessation. The Americans persisted in their job, knowing it must be completed. Despite the handicap, the Americans shot down two bochs.

Artillery Battle Rages. Paris, Aug. 14.—(12:15 p. m.)—An artillery battle is raging all along the 30 mile front between the Avre and the Oise, the French war office reported today. German raids along the Vesle were repulsed.

Between the Avre and the Oise there is great activity by both armies especially in the Roye-Sur-Matz and Conchy-Les-Pots sector," the communiqué said.

On the Vesle raids were unsuccessful. Prisoners were taken in a French raid on the Mesnil-Les-Hurlus (Champagne) front."

German Officer Trampled On Flag

An Atlantic Port Aug. 14.—A German officer trampled the Stars and Stripes after executing a dance with the flag about his neck, survivors of a fishing schooner sunk off the Georges bank, who were held aboard the submarine, declared on their arrival here today.

The crew of the little fisherman was helpless to stop the performance. The submarines' crew jeered at the fishermen, while the flag torn from the mast head of the schooner Lena May was trampled on.

German Revolution Not Thought Possible

Montclair, N. J., Aug. 14.—A revolution in Germany is hardly probable, in the opinion of Miss Florence McAvoy, who has just returned to America after several years in Germany.

Miss McAvoy left Dresden March 23, when the first Hindenburg drive was at its height. The people were jubilant at the sight. Although they get scant food and wear paper clothes, the Germans still think they are fighting a war of defense, Miss McAvoy declared.

The workmen who used to be poor now draw big pay in munitions works and purchase delicacies the aristocracy cannot afford to touch.

The city council of Corvallis has ordered the city engineer to report all cases of cement walk where a section fails to join the section next to it evenly. If the discrepancy equals an inch or more it is up to the owner of the high side to get busy. Several falls have resulted from uneven sidewalks.

MRS. BENNETT HAD SUFFERED 18 YEARS

Was In Bed Weeks At a Time Unable To Move.—Now Does Own Housework.

"For the past eighteen years my wife was a sufferer from rheumatism in one of its worst forms," said William Bennett, who is employed by one of the large saw mills at Redmond, Wash., recently.

"Whenever these attacks came on," he continued, "she would get so weak and crippled up that she would have to take to her bed where she would lie for two or three weeks at a time, suffering untold agonies and unable to move. Her left foot was drawn up and twisted so with pain that she seemed to be permanently crippled, and one finger on her left hand was drawn all out of shape so it was useless to her. Her stomach, too, was all out of order, she had no appetite, and although she was just as careful as she could be about her dieting, her food would sour on her stomach and cause her great distress afterwards. Her nervous system seemed to be shattered, and her rest was so broken at night that she could hardly sleep. Her arms and throat appeared to be withered, the skin soft and flabby, and she was just about as miserable as anybody ever gets to be. For years she had been too weak and ailing to do any of her housework, and what time she wasn't in bed she was barely able to get around."

"I consulted specialists about her case but they could give me no hope, and I took her to one of the most celebrated health resorts in the country, hoping she would be benefited through drinking the water, but it seemed to do her no good. Then she tried all kinds of medicines, but not till she started taking Tanlac did she find any relief whatever. After taking a few bottles of this wonderful medicine we are prepared to say that Tanlac is the only thing we have any faith in. Her last attack of rheumatism was all of two months ago, and she hasn't had a twinge since. Her twisted foot is getting back into its normal position, and that bent finger is getting straight and supple like the others. Her stomach is in such splendid condition that she can eat anything she wants without suffering any bad effects afterwards. Her arms and neck are filling out, and are plump and firm, and she sleeps like a child every night. She is now able to do all her housework, and she is in better condition than she has been in many years."

Tanlac is sold in Hubbard by Hubbard Drug Co., in Mt. Angel by Ben Goodrich, in Gervais by John Kelly, in Turner by H. P. Cornelius, in Woodburn by Lyman H. Shorey, in Salem by Dr. S. C. Stone, in Silverton by Geo. A. Steelhammer, in Gates by Mrs. J. P. McCurdy and in Stayton by C. A. Beauchamp.

Expect President To Make Labor Day Speech

Chicago, Aug. 14.—Fully expecting President Wilson to be chief orator here Labor Day, officials in charge of the proposed monster celebration today began creation of a sounding board device to carry the president's voice to a crowd of 150,000. In keeping with the gigantic parade arrangements were made for a brass band of 2500 pieces to welcome the president.

President Wilson was reported to have told a committee he seriously planned attending the Chicago celebration, but could make no definite promise.
