LARGE CROWD TODAY AT FASHION SHOW

Portland Cloak and Suit Company Opens Splendid New Quarters

Large crowds attended the fall and winter fashion show beginning this morning at 9 o'clock at the Portland Cloak and Suit company's re-modeled store at the Stockton corner, Court and Commercial streets.

This company occupies the main floor and Mezzanine with 140 feet of display space and the 11 large show windows displaying the latest models in coats, suits, dresses, skirts, waists and millinery.

This store is one of a chain of similar stores in several of the larger cities of the northwest and it is this fact which enables them to purchase merchandise in large quantities. This with the policy of selling for cash only enables the store to sell high class wearing apparel for less than usual.

To be convinced of this, all one needs is to visit the store and take note of the advantages offered the women of Salem and vicinity in selecting their fall and winter garments.

Included in the display is a fine variety of women's fall and winter suits. The materials are serge, poplin, gabardine, tricotine, broadcloth and velours. Some are in half or full belted style, others loose and plaited back effects in brown, green, navy, black and fancy velours ranging in price from $25 to $100.

The new fall coats are made in velours, homespun, tweeds, plushes and kindred materials. The prevailing colors are tan, brown, green, navy, black and fancy mixtures, all moderately priced at from $19.50 to $125.

New fall dresses are made in satin, tricotine, wool, jersey and broadcloth, all in fashionable new models and colorings. The large assortment of furs include coney, martin, mink, Japanese mornu and other desirable kinds in a great variety.

One remarkable feature of the opening today was the sales made, due to the fact that the demand for choice artistic women's wear is constantly increasing.

Mrs. Claudine Mellinger, who has been with the Stockton store for the past year, coming from Portland, will have complete charge of the sales department. P. B. Koenig, a merchandise man of long experience in handling similar lines in some of the largest stores of the country will be in charge of the management and publicity departments.

Vonda Sestak, wife of Corvallis and Salem visitor Wednesday. They were accompanied from Corvallis by Miss Gladys Rice a sister of the former.

C. W. Helford and wife were here from Black Rock for a visit with relatives.

C. A. Beauchamp who has been on the sick list is now considerably improved.

Miss Annie Luthy of Salem was here this week a guest at the home of her brother, Chas. Luthy.

Mrs. Chas. Stowell came up from Salem Wednesday for a visit here.

Mrs. Quinn, who formerly resided in Stayton came down from her home at Lyons for a visit with Stayton friends Friday.

Clyde Downing and wife are the parents of a nine pound daughter, who arrived August ninth.

C. C. Nott and wife are home from a five week's visit to Vancouver, Wash.

Mrs. Frank Mack is in Portland called by the illness of the wife of her son Wallace.

Mrs. Dare Sloper has been in Portland the past several days visiting friends.

E. T. Matthien and wife were visitors in Portland the first of the week. They also visited their farm near Donald.

BARLEY ACCUMULATION SERIOUS TO FARMERS

Barley Harvesting

American Barley raisers are expressing great concern over the situation affecting the prices of their crop. Food Administration reports show that an over supply of barley is piling up in the country elevators. Since experiments have shown that the American people do not take to barley bread, the statement is made that the great barley crop which American farmers raise may have comparatively little value aside from its use in the making of beer.

The Food Administration in citing conflicting statements made in the prohibition fight on the use of barley for beer-making, declares that approximately 30 per cent of the barley brewers use is recovered and can be used as cattle feed. Food Administrator Hoover has expressed himself in favor of using the excess barley for beer-making, provided the percentage of alcohol is cut down to 2 1/2 per cent, as has been done. It will be much harder to get drunk, he says, on a mild brew of beer than to stop beer-making entirely which, in his judgment, would result in putting the country on a whiskey, brandy and gin basis with from 40 per cent to 50 per cent alcohol.

The Allies, it is reported, have almost quit buying barley. This has resulted in low prices and a result-and assistant will attend.
