These Lees are Fine Folk to Have With Us

(United Press Staff Correspondent) With the American Army in France, Aug. 2.—(By Mail).—The Colonel of this particular regiment was a sociable sort of person—not meaning to say the colonels of the other regiments are not—and introduced such of the underofficers as happened to be with him. "This is Lieut. Lee," he said of one. The lieutenant was a well built, large framed young man with a broad, pleasant face and a quiet courteous manner. He allowed the others to do most of the talking, but was not in the least tongue-tied when drawn into the conversation. "Nice sort of fellow, Lieutenant Lee," I remarked later. "That's Robert E. Lee," was the response. "Any particular Robert E. Lee?" "Rather. He's the grandson of THE Robert E. Lee." Mrs. Mary Billings, Mrs. Matilda White, Mr. W. W. Bales, Mr. Frank Walters and Mr. and Mrs. Kisner. The Red Cross auxiliary met as usual on Wednesday afternoon, in the basement of the school house. A cozy, quiet cool room. Members and visitors present, twenty-one. Considerable sewing on hospital gowns and knitting of socks was done. Miss G. Taylor, school nurse of Salem was present and gave an informal talk on the subject of forming a class for the study of home nursing and hygiene. Mrs. Ella Plank of Woodburn was also a guest. J. R.
