War Summary of United Press
1480th Day of the War; 36th Day of Counter Offensive
Picardy front--The British opened a new attack on a front of five or six miles and reaching the Aisne river north of the Ancre and the Somme, at 4:45 this morning.
The Germans apparently have taken the initiative on the ten mile front north of the Ancre, where General Byng attacked yesterday. Their counter attacks, repulsed yesterday afternoon and last night were renewed this morning.
The front of yesterday's attack evidently has been partially linked up with that of today's operations, by patrol activities southeast of Beaumont. General Humbert's army, after taking Lassigny, has advanced on the whole front between that town and the Oise and has reached the Divette river south and southwest of Noyon.
The French are now reported within a few hundred yards of Noyon.
Aisne-Aisne front--General Mangin's men fought all through the night on the front between the Oise and the Aisne, capturing several important villages and reaching the Aisne river north of St. Paul-Aux-Bois. This represents a total advance of 9 miles on this front. The French now hold the left bank of the Oise as far east as Bretteville.
Flanders front--British troops have made further advances in two sectors. They have progressed east and northeast of Merville, reaching the outskirts of Neuf-Berquin, and also captured strong positions north of Baillev. German attacks northwest of Draucourt were repulsed.
Alsace front--A hostile attack on an American trench, following a heavy bombardment was easily repulsed Tuesday night. The Germans continue to shell Frapelet, recently captured by the Americans.

NEW ROAD OPENED TO ROCK QUARRY
Industry Of Much Importance East Of Mount Angel Is Opened.
(Capital Journal Special Service.)
Stacyton, Aug. 22--On a tract of land owned by the Benedictine fathers, located southeast of Mt. Angel, there is a large deposit of rock called tufa. This rock is so soft that it can be cut with a knife, when taken from the ground, but on being exposed to the air, becomes hard as limestone. Several months ago A. W. Gould of Seattle, because of the location of this rock and seeing the possibilities of its use, organized a company known as the National Fire Proof Lumber Co. to place it on the market. As the rock is located back in the mountains several miles from a wagon road, it became necessary to get a road into the quarry. The county court was called upon to help, and an excellent road has been built to the place. To properly celebrate the completion of the road, and to give those interested an opportunity to see the rock and its location, a number of persons gathered there, Tuesday, there being more than a hundred in the party, largely from Mt. Angel. An excellent dinner was served after which short speeches were made by Rev. Fr. Placidus, abbot of Mt. Angel, Rev. Fr. Gregory of Jortland, Judge D'Arcy, Judge Bushey, Commissioner Hunt and others. Two very interesting poems were given by Mrs. Gould, wife of the manager of the company. Excellent music was furnished by the Mt. Angel band, and a flag was raised. The new road winds up the Abiqua canyon presenting some very beautiful scenery. An interesting feature of the visit to this place was a view of an old stone church that four of the Benedictine fathers created on the top of the mountain on the side of which the quarries are located. Twenty eight years ago four Benedictines homesteaded four quarter sections of land, and where these sections covered, built this building. During the time of proving up, each resided in his particular corner of the building, living on his own land. The building is about 13x30 feet, and is built from the tufa rock, cut by hand, and carried about half a mile up the mountain from the quarries by hand. This old building, which is in an excellent state of preservation, demonstrates the lasting qualities of the stone from which it is built. Among those who had the pleasure of being present from Stacyton, an interesting event were Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Lambert and Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Alexander. Mr. Lambert was especially interested in attending to the fact that he was one of the party who approved the new road in to the quarry. Mr. Gould, the manager of the project, is a live business man and it appears that those interested in this tufa rock will reap a good profit on their investment.
A. P. Kirsch and wife ate at St. Martin's Springs, near Carson, Wash.
Mrs. J. L. Neadel is here from eastern Oregon, visiting at Wm. Neudel's. Mrs. L. N. Dryden of Woodburn is a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. V. A. Good.
Mrs. Floyd Lloyd and son, Walter, of Portland are visiting her parents, Jas. Leffler and wife.

State House Notes
The board of child labor inspectors of which Mrs. Millie R. Trumbull of Portland is secretary, has exhausted its appropriation and Mrs. Trumbull has written to Secretary of State Oletch that she must look to the state emergency board for the $1000 which the board agreed to allow her when her funds ran out. Mr. Oletch has suggested that she delay asking for a meeting of the board for a few weeks, if possible, as by that time the board likely will be called into session to consider other requests.
The Oregon Cedar company of Portland filed articles of incorporation today. The company has a capital stock of $50,000. The incorporators are J. G. Arnold, L. R. Edmondson and L. J. Bachler.
Articles were filed also by the Lincoln Coal Mining company of Portland, capital stock $50,000. The incorporators are D. B. McBride, Roscoe C. Nelson and Ben C. Dey.
Coal screenings or slack, which are now largely wasted, could be shipped to the Portland market from the Coos Bay districts and utilized during the time of coal and oil shortage if the railroads would allow a freight rate 75 cents a ton cheaper than the rate on lump coal, according to a letter received by the public service commission from a Portland coal dealer and which has been forwarded by the commission to H. A. Hinchaw, general freight agent of the Southern Pacific.

Ask Government To Improve Road Over Which Chrome Hauled
An effort is being made to get the state and the government to rush through a post road project for the improvement of 10 miles of bad road between Prairie City and John Day, in Grant county, over which chrome ore is being hauled by auto trucks. Trucks are now hauling 24 hours a day and unless the road is improved it will become impossible as soon as winter begins. L. L. Howes, government highway engineer in this district, has recommended to his chief that the government cooperate with the state and rush the project to agreement.
Another eastern Oregon post road project which is now being considered is the Baker-Middle Bridge section of the Baker-Cornucopia highway. Manolo O. Bennett, district state highway engineer, reports that a stumbling block to the preliminary proceedings is the failure to secure a favorable statement from the postmaster at Keating, who objects to the proposed location of the road as it misses his store. To offset this a petition signed by 1000 citizens who will be served by the proposed road has been presented to the government.

The body of Mrs. Thomas Macauley, one of the launch's occupants, has been washed ashore. Her husband and John Rogan of the Brooklyn Citizen were in the boat with her and are among the missing. Occupants of the fifteen canoes were rescued.
