The superintendent of the Red Cross auxiliary of the First Methodist church is anxious that all women of the auxiliary should go to the surgical dressing rooms at the postoffice Friday and assist in the making of sphagnum first aid bags for hospital use in France. On account of the list, it is asked that only washable dresses be worn with any kind of an apron, the longer the better. The regular meeting of the First Methodist Red Cross auxiliary will not be held tomorrow and as there is great need of workers at the surgical dressing department, it is thought by the superintendent that the members will be glad to give their time Friday to the making of sphagnum moss pads. 9-3

Dr. Schenk's offices will be closed from Aug 3rd to Sept. 8, 1918. 9-3

Chicken a la Maryland at the restaurants is now climbing into the terrapin class, according to the bill of fare. A half chicken served a la Maryland will set one back 90 cents and if a whole chicken is ordered the figure is $1.75.

Mrs. Chas. Roblin and two children have arrived in the city and will make their home at the Roblin place, 737 Center street. Mr. Roblin has recently been called from Tacoma for army service in the east and while he is away Mrs. Roblin decided to make Salem her home. With her two children she drove in her car from Tacoma.

Walt S. Low, city street commissioner, is home from two weeks spent at the Breitenbush. He says that at the Mark Skiff springs, 29 people were camping and all having a fine time with the excellent fishing and huckleberries to be found on the top of Squaw mountain.

Men stenographers who have had legal training are wanted by the local exemption board. Limited service men or special military service men will be accepted and will be assigned to the departments of either the judge advocate general or the provost marshal general. Those who feel qualified should apply to the local exemption board at once.

There is a possibility that Calico dresses will become quite the thing next spring since the federal administration has taken over all the woolen goods in the country. It is pretty well understood that the biggest drygoods wholesale houses in the country have no woolen goods to offer for next year and that no wool can be had for the manufacture of woolens. There may be a few left over or hoarded by speculators but to the world in general it looks very much like a cotton season for dress goods next spring.

In addition to selling tractors of several kinds including the new famous Fordson, Vick Bros., through the Valley Motor company has taken the agency for the Heeman garden tractor, used as a cultivator by truck gardeners. It will do away with hand cultivation or that of the one horse style. As a general farm proposition it will cultivate any crop now cultivated by a hand wheel or one-horse cultivator. The Heeman garden tractor is the little brother of the big farm tractor. With it, all that is necessary will be to just walk behind to guide and let the tractor do the work.

Bids are wanted at the postoffice from men who feel competent to handle all the mail received and delivered in the city by the Southern Pacific railroad. A bid for this service was handed in some time ago but was not satisfactory to the Washington officials. Hence the call for another bid. The job is one that begins at 2:30 o'clock in the morning and continues until 10 o'clock at night. At twelve times in the 24 hours mail must be carried from the postoffice to the Southern Pacific depot and the job is good for seven days in the week and steady for 365 days in the year. And there is no such thing as failure to be on time as the U. S. mail must be sent out regardless of what else may happen.

Recruiting for a company of infantry for the Oregon National Guard is now actively on, with a station established at 444 State street in the store building formerly occupied by the Red Cross pharmacy. It is the intention to organize the first company here by Sept. 1. Lieut. A. T. Woolpert who is senior officer in Oregon outside of Portland for the Oregon Guard, has been appointed officer in charge for the recruiting of the infantry company of the Oregon National Guard.

The family of W. Al Jones are glad to announce there has been a decided improvement in his condition the past day or two. He has so far convalesced that he is now able to talk to members of the family and take an interest in affairs.

Justice George H. Burnett presented chevrons to Company E, Oregon Guard and in appreciation of his thoughtful news last evening, the company gave him a vote of thanks. At the meeting last evening Leroy Hewlett was unanimously elected second lieutenant. The officers of the company now are: A. R. Wilson, captain; Fred E. Mangie, first lieutenant; and Leroy Hewlett, second lieutenant.

The chairman of all Liberty Loan committees in Marion county will meet at the Salem Commercial club Saturday Aug. 24, to discuss the coming Fourth Liberty loan campaign, to begin Sept. 28. As the quota for this fourth loan will be about double that of the Third Liberty loan, it was thought best to hold several conferences before the actual work of canvassing began.

The U. S. Labor Bureau on State street has plenty of work for the man who can take a short time job. The canneries are now calling for help as they are approaching the biggest peat-canning season ever known in this valley. Then there is the call for the picking of evergreen blackberries and on top of all of this there is the biggest green prune picking season ever known to Polk and Marion counties.
