DID NOT LOOK AT IT FROM VIEW POINT OF MORAL RECTITUDE

Boys Who Broke Into Neighbors House Considered Detection Only.

Before Judge W. M. Bushey's court a few days ago there came up the great moral question as to whether a boy should be taught to do right because it is right, or whether the folks at home to give him to understand that if he does wrong he may get caught, and then must suffer the consequences.

Sunday, August 17, four boys running in age from 15 to 17 years living in the Hazelgreen neighborhood happened to meet in the road near a neighbor's house whom they knew was not at home nor in the neighborhood.

According to the evidence given before district attorney Max Gehlar and County Judge Bushey, the boys decided to rob that neighbor's house. There seemed to be no question as to whether it was right. That the boys knew was that as the owner was not at home, there was no chance of getting caught. Everyone of the boys was a fine looking young fellow, of whom any mother might be proud. But from their viewpoint there was no question brought out as to whether it was right to steal. This point of view was developed in the cross examination of each in private.

The boys entered the house and stole a ring, watch, pair of cuff buttons, pocket knife and other trinkets. Then they helped themselves to some jam and jelly to finish the job, feeling secure as no one was at home.

The owner, upon his return home, swore out warrants against the four boys and a few days ago they were brought in for trial before the county court, their parents accompanying them.

In talking with each boy separately, Mr. Gehlar and Judge Bushey discussed the moral side of the question and it developed that while each of the boys was willing to tell the truth regarding the robbery, having been told to do so by their parents, their view of doing wrong seemed to show that there had not been instilled into the minds of the boys the thought of doing right because it is right. Their idea was that one must not do wrong or he might get caught.

The parents of the four boys paid the amount of the loss by the robbery and as they had told the boys to tell the truth about it and the boys each one confessed, the case was dismissed.

But the big problem in the boys' question as Judge Bushey and Prosecuting Attorney Gehlar view it, is whether or not it is the duty of parents to instill into the minds of their boys the great idea of doing right because it is right, and not simply as a matter of keeping out of the clutches of the law.

Sending of American troops to Greece where they might become engaged with Bulgarian forces, raises the question of declaring war on Bulgaria.

Minister Roussos is undecided on the advisability of this.

"Whether it would be necessary for the United States to declare war on Bulgaria before sending troops to Greece, I cannot say," he stated. "I do not know whether it is wise or not. This is a question the American government is in a better position to answer."

FIGHTING ON FISMETTE

out everywhere at 5:40 in the morning and continued all day. At Fismette the boches tried to work their way into the town, spraying liquid fire toward the doughboys but with little success.

The first rush forced the Americans to withdraw somewhat. One officer and 25 men held a bridge crossing the Vesle while the others sought cover. All attempts of the Germans to reach the river were beaten off. As fast as a boche appeared near the bridge he was cut down by rifle and machine gun fire.

The attack on Fismette was made by two parties one from the northeast and one from the northwest. It was designed to force the Americans back from a small, sharp salient which enabled our machine gunners to sweep the enemy lines to the east and west.

Our airplanes also were busy in the vicinity of Fismette, bombing the German infantry heavily while our infantry was attacking Bazoches. The latter village was smashed and nearly levelled by American artillery.

of the new major generals will be named to take command.

March's latest statistics on troop shipments and other subjects were not disclosed today. He devoted himself solely to a review of the allied movements since last Saturday.

The allied advance, he said, continued Saturday and Sunday. Monday the British captured the Arras-Orange hill, and Tuesday continued along the Arras-Cambrai road to a depth of five miles.

By this movement the British overran the Hindenburg line one mile on a three mile front.

Pressure there against the German lines extended on a forty mile front.

On Tuesday a new offensive began opposite Roye over a ten mile front, advancing two miles. Roye, an important railroad center, is in allied hands along with important terrain.

To the east the pressure extends over a fifty mile front.

This morning, according to the French official statement a deep salient has been driven in the German line. Neale has been reached and allied forces are now within two miles of the Somme and the British are still progressing beyond the Hindenburg line.

The Austrian attack in Albania has succeeded in driving the Italian back to Berat. This means the loss of most of the successes gained by the Italians some week since.

followed the failure of the railroads to provide cars for the emergency although orders had been given in ample time. It is this shortage of cars that will delay shipping this week.

Eight car loads of prunes were shipped Monday and six were sent on their way east yesterday. Mr. Paulus said that he was assured of but 13 cars for immediate delivery and this would keep the plant going but two days.

JUST A PRELIMINARY

New York, Aug. 28.—Just before a detachment of United States marines were to go over the top recently, the Rev. Father John J. Brady of New York was moving along the trench, according to a story reaching here today. "Just a moment boys," the priest said, and turning toward the German lines, gave the enemy absolute. "Now, go get 'em!" he cried. They did.
