RAILROAD DAMAGE CASE REVERSED BY SUPREME COURT

Lane County Case Remanded For New Trial—Other Decisions Today.

Holding that Circuit Judge Skipworth of Lane county erred in submitting certain questions of negligence to the jury, the supreme court today reversed the case of R. B. Brandage, as administrator of the estate of William J. Frankheim, deceased, against the Southern Pacific Company, appellant, and remanded the case for a new trial.

Justice Johns wrote the deciding opinion, while Justice Harris wrote an opinion concurring specially. While an employee of the Southern Pacific as an electrician, Frankheim was struck by a work train on the Eugene-Marsfield branch and was killed June 26, 1916. Suit was brought against the company for damages and the jury awarded the widow $5000 and her young child $5000. The action was brought under the federal employers' liability act.

The accident occurred in the center of a tunnel over 600 feet long and which is built on a curve so it is very dark in the center. Frankheim was riding on a speeder near the center of the tunnel when the work train, backing through the tunnel, hit him. The complaint alleged that the company was negligent because the tunnel was not lighted and the train carried no light.

"How and upon what theory can the defendant be liable for negligence to have and maintain lights in its tunnels, when it is a matter of common knowledge that no lights are kept or maintained in any railroad tunnel anywhere in the state, either by day or night?" asks Justice Johns. "We are of the opinion that under the facts disclosed by the record the failure to maintain lights in the tunnel was not an act of negligence and ought not to have been submitted to the jury."

In his separate opinion, Justice Harris says: "The plaintiff is not entitled to recover unless the defendant was guilty of negligence. A complaint must now, as before the adoption of the federal employers' liability act, allege and prove that the carrier was negligent."

This was not proven by the evidence submitted at the trial, it is pointed out.

Other opinions were handed down as follows: J. N. Mosier vs. Mary A. Mosier, appellant; appealed from Wasco; suit for divorce; opinion by Justice Johns; Circuit Judge Bradshaw reversed.

Joel D. Mays, appellant vs. Robert Mays' Real Estate Company; appealed from Lane; motion to dismiss appeal denied; opinion by Chief Justice McBride.

F. J. Martin vs. D. S. Painter, appellant; appealed from Multnomah; motion to dismiss appeal overruled; opinion by Chief Justice McBride.

Mary N. B. Morrison vs. St. Johns Sanitarium, et al., appellants; appealed from Clatsop; motion to dismiss appeal dismissed; opinion per curiam.

Celia M. Rowe, appellant from Columbia; suit to set aside deed, heard on rehearing; opinion adhered to.

Mark Schuessel, et al., vs. Edward Hays, appellant; appealed from Multnomah; suit to compel defendant to convey residence property in Portland to plaintiff under terms of oral agreement; plaintiffs had with Mrs. Margaret Butrick, owner, prior to her death; opinion by Justice Harris modified decree of Circuit Judge Kavanaugh so that defendant is not ordered to pay unpaid installments on property.

Robert Lee Boehmer, appellant vs. Julius Silverstone and Seneca Fouts, appellants from Multnomah; motion to dismiss appeal overruled on condition that certain legal processes be complied with; opinion by Chief Justice McBride.

Frances E. McKissick vs. Stuart McKissick, appellant; appealed from Multnomah; motion to dismiss appeal denied conditionally; opinion by Chief Justice McBride.

Virginia V. Hood, appellant vs. W. C. Seachrest; appealed from Multnomah; action for damages for fraudulent misrepresentations in connection with real estate deal; opinion by Justice Benson; Circuit Judge Gantenbein affirmed.

Rehearings were denied in O'Neil vs. Odd Fellows Home, Elwert vs. Hansen, Cathart vs. Marshfield, Gaston vs. Thompson, Davidson vs. Security Life Insurance Company, McLennan vs. McLennan, Martin vs. Gilliam county.

SECRETARY BAKER VISITS FRENCH FRONT WITH CHIEF ADVISERS

Object of Trip Is Improvement of Several War Departments

Washington, Sept. 10.—Improvement and enlargement of airplane, medical and transportation service will be undertaken as a result of Secretary of War Baker's second trip abroad.

With plans for a four million army by early summer of 1919, the scope of these branches must be vastly enlarged.

To this end, Baker, who is now in France, has taken with him Aeronautics Director Ryan, General Hines, chief of embarkation, and General Gorgas, surgeon general.

Their stay will be indefinite, but it is assumed that they will be in France several months.

HOME SERVICE WORK AIDED 273 FAMILIES

Expense of Office For The Month Less Than $10; Services Donated

During the month of August, the Home Service section of the Red Cross helped 273 families in the way of giving information, and to many families material assistance even to that of loaning money.

To 133 of these families, information was given that assisted materially in securing proper allotments or to getting into communication with the war department whereby the allotments were sent direct to the family of the soldier.

To 140 of those calling at the office of the Home Service section were given active, help and information. This included writing of letters, helping two men to find relatives, securing medical services for families of soldiers, and in many cases loaning money until allowances would be received.

This general information includes instructing many how to make their allotments, before leaving for the training camps and to the families of soldiers, how these allotments should be made and how they should be applied for.

There was also information given as to how to send packages to soldiers and letters written to the Red Cross headquarters where there was a delay in the receipt of allowances.

Many laws have been changed in the handling of the hundreds of vital matters regarding affairs of soldiers and their families and it is in this service that the Home Service workers are of especial value to the families of soldiers.

One of the new rulings is that all correspondence to the Home Service section of the Red Cross in Washington must be written and signed by the parties wishing the information. These letters of inquiry are often written out by the Home Service office, some an especially prepared blank forms. The answers to these letters come direct to the persons writing.

Of the $207.38 expense of running the office for month of August, not quite $100 was used in office expenses and part of this ten was for stamps. The rooms are given by Russell Catlin and the several women who are devoting their time to the office are giving their services.

It is assumed that the secretary will return here despite renewed suggestions that he will establish semi-permanent headquarters for himself in France. In this connection it was recalled that President Wilson, on Baker's first visit, wrote him a letter expressing a hope for an early return. At the same time, he expressed his full confidence in the war chief, who was then under senatorial fire.

On this occasion, it is admitted that there is less reason for such a message and hence Baker's stay may be rather longer than it might otherwise be.

Incidentally, it is pointed out that Baker and Ryan will doubtless be able to return with much useful information to offset the senatorial air report and the Hughes committee report, which is likely to develop in their absence.

The presence of General Bines in the party is especially significant.

"Turn around" and debarkation in France have been serious problems. With heavier shipments of men and supplies coming on, the transportation situation will become increasingly important. In this connection, it is recalled that war and navy officials recently surveyed the problem in the United States with a view to relaxing pressure on the overburdened ports.

General Gorgas will review the nurse problem, medical situation and the general question of enlarging the medical service, to meet the great demands of a four million army.

Big Submarine Was Sunk By Oil Tanker

An Atlantic Port, Sept. 10.—Sinking of a big German submarine September 1 in mid-Atlantic was reported today by members of the crew of an American oil tanker. The fight took place 1000 miles off this coast. The battle lasted forty minutes.

According to the report brought here, the U-boat was very large, being at first mistaken for another oil tanker. When its character was made out, the American vessel, instead of fleeing, attacked it, using two 47 guns forward and then maneuvering to bring a six inch gun aft into action.

When the final hit was scored, it was asserted, the submarine was blown out of the water and knocked to pieces.

Great German Base Will Be Evacuated

Amsterdam, Sept. 10.—German war correspondents report that Douai is being evacuated, according to dispatches here today.

Douai is one of the important German bases in northern France. It lies ten miles behind the Hindenburg line, but the British have already crossed that defense system before it, and are six and a half miles from the city at the farthest point of their advance in that region. Douai has been held by the Germans since their first sweep across France in 1914.

"From Havrincourt wood to southward of the Peronne-Cambrai road fresh enemy attacks in the evening failed."

"On the Crozat canal our advanced troops were withdrawn Sunday night. We are in touch with only weak enemy reconnoitering detachments west of the Essigny-Vendeuil line. "Between the Aisne and the Vesle we repelled French advances."
