telephoned to the government printing office, where they were rushed to linotype operators.

This is a part of the speed-up program. Officials hoped to be able to have the printers keep pace with drawings so as to mail out the list as quickly as possible.

For the first time since the draft bill passed, both the navy department and the marine corps were officially represented at the drawing today. This was because these branches of the service will now recruit their men from the draft.

Standing blindfolded in a great crowd which thronged the marble "census room" of the senate office building, President Wilson today drew the first capsule number 322 and thereby selected hundreds of men who will go to the front from the September registration. The president smilingly faced a battery of moving pictures as he drew the fateful pellet.

Resist Americans

Washington, Sept. 30.—Determined resistance by the enemy and counter attacks were reported today by General Pershing in Sunday's communique.

"Our troops have continued to meet with determined resistance on the part of the enemy, who has been forced heavily to bring up and engage divisions from the other parts of the front. Between Georgia and the valley of the Aire we have met and repulsed heavy counter attacks."

Disbands 20 Divisions

London, Sept. 30.—Since July, the Germans have disbanded twenty divisions on the west front, according to information received here this afternoon. Forty thousand prisoners have been taken on the west front in the last ten days.

Germany's Next Move

London, Sept. 30.—(2:28 p. m.)—Germany will immediately move her armies into Serbia and establish a new line as a result of the Bulgarian armistice, was the belief expressed here this afternoon.

AMERICANS HAVE BROKEN VAUNTED DEFENSE LINE

Caved In Hindenburg Line For Four Miles In Yesterday's Attack

By Lowell Mellett
(United Press staff correspondent)

With the British Armies in France, Sept. 30.—The Americans have contributed their share to smashing the bogaboo of the western front—the Hindenburg line.

On a front of six thousand yards (about four miles) they caved in the German defense yesterday, making an irreparable breach and penetrating a distance equal to the front of their attack. They opened the way for the Australians to shove on still farther.

Early today the Yankees had reorganized their units and swung sharply to the left, threatening a greatly increased break in the enemy line through an enveloping movement.

The battle yesterday was unusually spectacular. The flash of guns illuminated the country for miles around throughout the night. The artillery suddenly ceased at dawn. Then the silence was broken again by the American barrage.

Behind their own shells, dropping in an even line ahead of them, the Americans could be seen clambering over the rough broken ground. They advanced in hundred yard dashes, the barrage doing the same.

Five minutes took them into a thick maze of wires, though this had been partially cleared away by instantaneous fuse shells.

Six minutes after the barrage started—British guns fired the shells—the Germans put down a counter barrage. They only succeeded in bothering the first support companies, however, with out catching the first wave.

A smoke barrage by the enemy simultaneously hid the whole battle field for several minutes. When it cleared away the Americans were revealed running steadily ahead. The British guns then apparently smothered the boche artillery, for that was the last seen of the enemy barrage.

At the left the Americans found themselves plunging across the Hindenburg defenses. There the work of the instantaneous fuse shells had been almost complete.

Machine gun nests were wiped out with rifles and grenades and some prisoners were sent back.

The Americans on the right were delayed by ordinary machine gun emplacements in front of the main defense—but they reached the main line after their comrades. Their rush prevented them completely mopping up the ground, leaving considerable work for the Australians following them.

With the Americans went a large number of tanks as well as a certain number of whippets. Simultaneously the British attacked on a smaller stretch of the line to the right, while another British unit moved forward slightly in a supporting action to the left.

American struck at a point where General Von Hutier's army joins with that of General Von Demarwitz. They faced the Eighth, Fifty Fourth, 121st and 185th divisions with others in reserve.

that the allies are attacking everywhere.

"I'll tell the Buddies up in the line the Heinies are getting hell," he said. "This news will cheer them up."

Replying to an inquiry, he said he had not eaten that day. He was deeply grateful when he was given half a can of bully beef and some bread. Overhead a flock of airplanes patrolled back and forth, signalling on artillery. Two stray boobies, venturing to approach them, were promptly chased back. Four mucky doughboys, skirting the lines of ugly barbed wire surrounding Montfaucon stopped for a minute to rest and chat. They were Pennsylvania signal corps men who had been sent back to find more supplies, which would be necessary after the next advance. They told how their pals in the front line were charging machine guns, slowing down under fire, then skirmish ing ahead bit by bit, giving the artillery a chance to punish the nests before they dashed ahead and took them. The signal corps men had not slept for two days but declared they were not tired. They said the same applied to the men up ahead, who thought only of pushing on.

Down the road an artillery lieutenant came leading three caissons, manned by Washington men.

"Say, have you seen an artillery dump around here?" asked the lieutenant. "We've got to rush up more shells."

We told him of a dump off to the right and they clattered off in that direction.

Returning after giving up hope that the boches would quit straddling the ruins of Montfaucon long enough for us to inspect them, we pushed through woods and over slippery hills, where more litter men were carrying wounded to the rear.

An Oregon doctor in charge of a "surtling" station asked for news. He did not know of Bulgaria's request for peace. He accepted a French daily paper.

"I don't know French, but I can figure out some of the news," he said. "The Germans are changing the type of their defense lines, deserting concrete strong points for flexible machine gun nests. Usually their infantrymen are grouped behind bushes or lie in the tall grass, not firing until the attackers are close to them."

Apparently each line of machine guns and line of infantry tries to delay the American advance as much as possible, depending upon the next line to take up the burden afterward.

The Americans have been surprised to find fewer trenches than they expected, but much wire, behind the deserted Hindenburg line. Infiltration of American patrols through the defenses has not been difficult. The engineers are speedily improving all necessary roads. During the first two days of the advance some roads were almost impassable, streams of traffic continually slipping into mud holes. Puffing tractors, sometimes two or three hooked together, pulled trucks, guns and wagons from ditches.

The transportation problem, however, has become less difficult with our arrival behind the former German main defenses and better weather.

NOW RAISES 600 CHICKENS

After Being Relieved of Organic Trouble by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oregon, Ill.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for an organic trouble which pulled me down until I could not put my foot to the floor and could scarcely do my work, and as I live on a small farm and raise six hundred chickens every year it made it very hard for me."

"I saw the Compound advertised in your paper, and tried it. It has restored my health so I can do all my work and I am so grateful that I am recommending it to my friends."—Mrs. D. M. ALTERS, R. R. 4, Oregon, Ill.

Only women who have suffered the tortures of such troubles and have dragged along from day to day can realize the relief which this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, brought to Mrs. Alters.

Women everywhere in Mrs. Alters' condition should profit by her recommendation, and if there are any complications write Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for advice. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

It is just as important that men should know of proper methods in advance of motherhood. Suffering, pain and distress incident to childbirth can be avoided by having at hand a bottle of the time-honored preparation, Mother's Friend. This is a pleasant external application that relieves the tension upon the muscles and enables them to expand without painful strain upon the ligaments and nerves.

Thousands of women for over half a century who have used Mother's Friend tell how they entirely avoided nervous spells and nausea and preserved a bright, happy disposition that reflects wonderfully upon the character and disposition of the little ones soon to open its eyes in bewilderment at the joy of his arrival.

By regular use of Mother's Friend during the period the muscles are made and kept pliable and elastic. They expand easier when baby arrives, and pain and danger at the crisis is naturally less.

You can obtain Mother's Friend at any drug store. It is for external use only, is absolutely safe and wonderfully effective. Write to the Bradford Regulator Co., Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their valuable and instructive "Motherhood Book" of guidelines for expectant mothers, and remember to get a bottle of Mother's Friend at the drugist's today. It is the greatest kind of help to nature in the glorious work to be performed.
