On the bulletin board at the postoffice, but safely locked in, may be seen results of failure to follow the advice always given by post officials and that is, to place a return memorandum on the upper left hand corner of the envelope. Here are a few of the latest that are held up for various reasons and all with a chance of being sent to the dead letter office in Washington: "Mr. John Kelley, Woodman." This was held up on account of the incomplete address and so was this one: "John G. Kalka, care O. L. Hite." A letter addressed to "Miss Mildred Stevens" did not travel very far as there was no city or state address. Moral: Always place a return address on the upper left hand corner of the envelope.

War Summary of United Press

1529th Day of the War; 85th Day of Counter Offensive

From the North sea to Lens—This front continues devoid of major fighting.

From Lens to LaFere—British, French and Americans are advancing between Lens and Moy, a front of nearly 75 miles. A break through has been effected on a front of about 20 miles south of Cambrai, through which the allies have advanced about eight miles. German forces totalling half a million men are reported to be in retreat toward the Valenciennes line, 15 miles to the eastward, but Haig announces that enemy resistance is stiffening. This may indicate either a large scale rear guard action or the turning of a seeming route into a show of resistance.

From LaFere to Rheims—The French are attacking along the Aisne canal on a front of about fifteen miles and have won local successes. This attack is being made along the southward edge of the salient below Laon.

From Rheims to Verdun—French and Americans are hammering on the 80 mile front between Berry-Aux-Bac north west of Rheims and Beaumont north of Verdun. The Americans have shattered the Kriemhilde line on a front of nearly four miles between the Argonne and the Meuse. The Germans have thrown heavy reinforcements into the breach and a great battle is in progress. The enemy is being squeezed out of the Argonne pocket. The French are advancing along the western edge of Argonne massif toward Vouziers and Machault.

From Verdun to Switzerland—This front remains quiet.

Balkans—The Italians, after occupying Elbasan, are driving northward toward the Durazzo line in pursuit of the Austrians. The French and Serbians are pushing northward toward Nish and westward in an effort to cut off the Austrian retreat in Albania.

Asia Minor—Latest reports show the British advancing northward toward Aleppo, which is the main gateway to Constantinople from the south.

Kenneth Crossan III Of Pneumonia At Hospital

A telegram was received last evening at 8 o'clock by Mrs. Jessie M. Crossan, 877 Oak street, Salem, that her son, Kenneth C. Crossan, was ill of pneumonia at a naval hospital in Portsmouth, Va. The telegram read: "Your son Kenneth Carlton Crossan, ship's cook, United States navy, is a patient in this hospital with bronchitis pneumonia. If he grows worse or complications set in, you will be promptly notified."

Up to late this afternoon, Mrs. Crossan had received no additional word as to her son's illness. Young Crossan enlisted in the navy last December as fireman and had made seven trips to France and back. In a letter received by his mother yesterday he wrote of the voyages he had taken and how he expected to make a short visit in New York city. While in Salem, he worked at both the Cross and Stenuloff markets. He is 24 years old.
