Salem and vicinity may not be an all around year berry season but it seems that the raspberry insists on producing fruit even this late in the year. M. Paulson of Salem Heights was showing today a luscious bunch of the red raspberry more suggestive of spring than along towards the middle of October.

Miss Elizabeth Levy made a most decided hit with members of the Salem Elks' lodge when she entertained them last evening in open session with several violin solos. There seems to be some difference as to whether next Saturday, Oct. 12 is a legal holiday or just a common holiday. The Postal Telegraph has received notice to do business on regulation holiday hours, that of 8 until 10 o'clock in the morning and from 4 to 6 o'clock in the evening. As yet, the banks have made no arrangements to close for the day. It is thought also that business at the courthouse will grind along as usual.

Another dance at Brooks Saturday night.

The stenographer, man or woman, who happens to be between the ages of 20 and 30 years, stands a fine chance of becoming a government employe under the civil service, provided of course a satisfactory examination can be passed. The examination is not very severe and will be held in Salem, Oct. 19, Nov. 2 and Nov. 16. The pay as a starter is $1100 a year with a maximum of $1400. Those interested should apply to the postoffice for proper application blanks.

Boys of the Oregon State Training school are getting along all right and no cases of the grip have developed. However, Mr. Gilbert, the superintendent, asks that friends postpone their visits to the institution for a week or so or at least until the influenza scare is over. Sixty-five of the boys are out working for farmers in the prune crop, six are working in dryers, and six are in the Turner flax mill. The others are all busy working around the farm and the shops.

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of thanking our friends for their kindness during our recent bereavement. And especially to the members of the G. A. R.—Mrs. F. B. Gamble, Sr., and family.

Through a duplication of the records it has been found that the total for the Fourth Liberty Loan drive is $80,000 less than the amount announced yesterday. This leaves the total sum pledged in Salem at $712,000, to which may be added the few pledges that are coming in through solicitations of those who have been re-rated and asked to increase their subscriptions.

At the court house today, the jury in the suit of Lange against Taylor brought in a verdict of $60 in favor of the plaintiff. The parties live near Chemawa. According to the testimony Lange had sold Taylor a farm and Taylor had taken possession, but had not carried out payments. The verdict gives Lange possession of the farm, although it is one of those cases that may be appealed to the supreme court.

Owing to the fact there is no Liberty day celebration in Salem tomorrow, public institutions will remain open as usual even if Columbus did discover America on October 12, several years ago. Hence people will receive their mail as usual, the banks will observe the regular hours and life in Salem will glide along at its usual steady pace regardless of what the rest of the world may be doing to observe the day.

Every man generally has a side interest besides his regular work and this is true of attorney, M. E. Pogue. Mr. Pogue exhibited three paintings and received two awards in competition with such well
