 It is estimated that from 25,000,000 in 30,000,000 tons of coal can be saved in 230,000 industrial plants in the Uni-ted States by the introduction of im-proved methods of firing, stopping leaks around boiler settings, and other wethods of economy that hitherto were regarded as too small for considera-tion.

 As a matter of economy you Bootery, The same circumstance exists more or less throughout the United States. Not only are we learning that thrift pays most substantial dividends, but we are finding out that its introduc-tion is less irksome than might have should consult the Journal's Job Department before placing tion. Investigation of all our great com-mercial and industrial activities would likely reveal examples of waste now being eliminated as the result of patri-otic co-operation and a general tight-ening up process. A considerable part of our annual war bill is being paid by the introduction of thrifty methods that we should have learned years ago. Let us prepare to make permanent these commendable practices of thrift. If we do we will have learned a great lesson from this war. your printing -- we are satisfying been imagined.
