Independence school No. 43 east of Stayton has no flag or pole but it is understood the feeling is right in the district and the directors will soon comply with the law. One of the most striking posters on display in the city is shown in the Meyer Department store window on Liberty street. It was sent to Mr. and Mrs. Reuben P. Boise by their son Breyman Boise who is in the active fighting in France, having gone over the top four times. The poster is one issued by the German government showing a mangled fit according to the German idea with the wording, "This is the way to peace. The enemy wishes it so. Therefore buy more war bonds." It is the appeal to the German people to support the German army. Young Boise found it on the firing line and thought it might be of interest to the folks back home to know how the German appeal for more money to carry on the war.

Oranges are now quoted at $12.50 a box, the highest known for many a year. There are very few on the market and what is more, the chances are there will be a scarcity all winter as the naval oranges are reported as only about one fourth of a crop. Lemons are also scarce and higher as none are coming from Italy.

While the name of Virgil L. Salmon is on the casualty list of those slightly injured in service in France his parents Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Salmon of 469 North 18th street are not especially alarmed. Several weeks ago they received notice that he had been wounded, and since then several letters have been received from the young man. Mrs. B. O. Schucking chairman of the Home Service Section of the Red Cross is home from an official visit in Portland of several days attending the institute for students of the Home Service section work. One of the subjects discussed was the delays in American mail after it reached France. F. P. Foisie, of Seattle, director of Civilian Relief, explained that with the soldiers constantly on the move and the changing from one regiment to another, it was most difficult to reach them promptly with mail and that often it was three months before American mail was delivered. However, he urged that the home folks just keep on writing with the assurance that some of the letters would reach the soldiers. As a slogan he suggested, "Keep The Home Ink Flowing." Mrs. Alice H. Dodd, who has been attending the institute in Portland for the Home Service Section will assume charge of the local work after Nov. 1.

JULIAN DEJARDIN HOME

Julian DeJardin, who joined company I of Woodburn when the war began, and later went with them to France, is home on a 30 days furlough. He left France on the 8th of October, making the trip home in the short space of two weeks.

His coming was a complete surprise up to about five days ago when his parents received a telegram from him at Chicago saying he was on his way. His parents, although delighted to know of his home coming, could not imagine why he alone would be coming at this time as he had been in good health all through; however, it developed that he was granted a months furlough and decided to come home.—Gervais Star.

West made the proposal that they remain off the stump. This, he said, would allow McNary to remain at his post in Washington and would allow West to continue his war work uninterrupted.
