Eggs continue to be scarce. Although the regulation market quotation today was 60 cents, several firms who happened to be out were offering two or three cents more. The trouble is not due to biddiness of the farm yard, but to the fact that farmers in general and many poultry raisers sold their hens when the government would not permit them to feed wheat of any kind. After wheat was taken to the mill it seems that the screenings cost more than the value of the wheat. Hence farmers sold down pretty close on poultry and there is the unusual shortage of eggs for this time of year.

On election years, business at the postoffice shows a material increase on account of the great amount of election pamphlets that are mailed. For instance, this year the postage bill for second and third class matter, which includes election pamphlets, was $43,377 while last year when the political post was not boiling, the postage for this same class of matter was only $123,88. The business of the Salem postoffice for the month of October, 1918, was $13,248.44, while for October of 1917 it was $6,875.56. It was just one year ago today that the three cent letter postage went into effect.

The world is small when it comes to electricity. This afternoon the United Press wire running into the Capital Journal office was connected direct with the Chicago office. When the Chicago operator pressed the key, almost instantly the operator in the Capital Journal office recorded the message. The wire runs from Chicago to Omaha, then to Denver, Salt Lake City, Spokane, Portland, down to Eugene. The same wire records the message in San Francisco, Seattle and Vancouver, B. C. The Chicago office takes the message direct from New York. The Capital Journal special operator goes on the job at 7 o'clock each morning and works continuously until 3 o'clock p. m. with the exception of 30 minutes for noon lunch.

The bean market is weakening and within the past few days quotations have dropped one cent a pound. The season opened up with quotations at 7 and 7 1/2 cents but today it is just the one cent lower. According to general report, it seems that this year beans raised in the valley are not up to the usual standard. One year ago the opening market price was 11 cents.

A meeting was held today in Portland between those in Salem interested in the prune packing industry and J. S. Markle of the British ministry of food and shipping. The meeting was held for the purpose of trying to straighten out the shipping instructions of the British government. Heretofore it seems that a lot of new shipping ideas have been placed in the shipment of prunes to the British army, including several that local shippers have found to be impracticable. One of these was that each box, even those weighing 25 pounds should be iron strapped. This has not been the custom in former years. It is thought that if several kinks can be straightened out in shipping instructions that prunes will soon be on their way over seas. Among those attending the Portland meeting today are W. P. Drager, H. R. Crawford, W. G. Allen, W. T. Jenks and R. C. Paulus.

Jennie Wright, while visiting in Salem, wrote two postals telling of the fine time she was having. Unfortunately, she forgot to address them and now they are on exhibit in the bulletin case of the post office. According to the customs and usages of the post office, if Jennie wishes those postals to be forwarded, she must call and write an address on them. Tom Smith may be looking for a letter but he has a mighty small chance of getting it, even if the writer did place on the envelope, "care of Ed Fish." The nice man is still in doubt as he doesn't know where Ed Fish lives. There was no city or state address on the letter. Nor will Miss Myrtle Bott who lives at "N 1312 Post street," receive her letter as there was no city or state address given, nor even the return address of the writer on the upper left hand corner of the envelope.

GERMAN TERMS WILL MEAN SURRENDER

French High Commission Makes This Statement Today.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The allied armistice terms will practically ask Germany to surrender unconditionally, Andre Tardieu, French high commissioner stated today.
"The armistice will include everything necessary to insure the rapid conclusion of the war on a permanent basis," Tardieu declared.
"Indeed, in the answer which the Germans will have to give to our terms of armistice they must say whether they confess that they are beaten. Should they confess it, the war will end and through the acceptance of our conditions."
Armistice terms, while formulated generally are not completed yet in detail, Tardieu revealed. Announcement is expected Monday or Tuesday and it was indicated the German public would be given the terms as soon as they are ready.
Germany's situation is extremely bad and it is believed likely she will accept whatever the allies propose, Tardieu said.
Her supply of munitions is dwindling rapidly and millions of rounds of ammunition have been captured by the allies, he added.
Entente unity is complete, Tardieu declared and "this is the secret of allied victory." Peace is now nearing and every precaution is being taken against German deceit. The armistice terms are being framed with the prime object of preventing Germany from resuming hostilities, once the fighting stops.
Tardieu said that President Wilson's peace negotiations "have cleared the air and created a strong position for the allies," in the armistice situation. America was given credit by Tardieu for the battle and bringing to the enemy a realization that speedy defeat is inevitable.
"Two weeks ago I was with your ardent and gallant soldiers," Tardieu said. "By a bond of perfect brotherhood they are united with their French and English comrades, with whom, since March last, they have been fighting without respite. One single army on one single front—this has been the secret of our victory."
"This unity is the most precious of our possessions. Let us eagerly hold to it in view of the conclusion of peace!"

Republican Committee Nominates S. H. Brown

The Marion county republican central committee met this afternoon and unanimously recommended Sam H. Brown as a candidate for state senator from Marion county in place of W. A. Jones, who died this morning. At the election next Tuesday there is space on the official ballot under No. 39, when voting for senator from Marion county to insert a name. Mr. Brown has served two terms in the state legislature and was a candidate for senator on the republican ticket at the state primaries last May. Those present at the meeting were County Chairman Tommie, Secretary Elliott and three committeemen.

Proposed Tax

20% on Tailored Suits

There is a bill pending that puts a tax of 20 per cent on men's suits costing over $50. But you can place your order now and save the additional expense. You can buy all wool tailored suits of me for less than you are asked to pay for shoddy or reworked wool clothes ready to wear. I have many materials that I am making up at practically old prices. If I had to go into the open markets and buy I would be forced to quit business, as the prices are out of the question. I can still make Men's suits from $35 up. Ladies serge suits $60 and up.
