LOGANBERRIES RANK SECOND IN ACREAGE

Acreage in Marion County Is 1,349—Future Of Great Industry Assured.

Next to prunes, the largest acreage of any single industry in Marion county is that of loganberries.

The loganberry industry is the business of the small-fruit grower. Of the 135 tracts of loganberries visited in the county by Mr. Van Trump only 37 contained ten or more acres.

Among other tracts in the county of 10 acres or more are the following: Dr. O. B. Miles, Salem route 3, 12 acres with 1800 plants.

Senator Charles H. McNary is interested in loganberries to the extent of 15 acres on which are 10,000 plants.

A. Leuz of rural route 5 put in 10 acres about a year ago and now has 25 in all with 17,000 plants.

John E. Woodruff of route 8, Salem has a tract of 14 acres with 8,520 plants and L. D. Bennett of rural route 8 has a five year old tract of 20 acres with plants numbering 13,600.

On route 9 J. L. Rickman has 13 acres and at Marion E. E. Bongs owns a 12 acre tract five years old.

S. V. Kamp of Brooks has a 23 acre tract with 15,600 plants and Mangis Bros. of Salem have at Brooks a 31 acre tract with 21,000 plants.

Charles Snyder, of Gervais last year planted five acres to loganberries and he already had five acres.

Gilts Bros. of Woodburn a year ago put in ten acres to loganberries while John Savin of Woodburn has a 16 acre tract four years old.

With the number of plants in Salem using loganberries and the fact that loganberry juice is becoming almost a national beverage and the number of plants evaporating the berries, there is a feeling that the future of the loganberry business is assured.

The war department delegation of assistants, headed by Generale Kernan and Churchill, is either already in France or en route.

More than a score of experts joined the peace ship here, led by Dr. E. E. Mezes of the College of the City of New York.

President Wilson and his party boarded a special train at Washington at 10:15 last night.

At the station gathered many members of the diplomatic corps and allied military missions.

Officials to the lowest privates and laborers they appeared to be aware that this was a great moment of history.

When the president's train drew into the pier to the time when the tugs began to nuzzle the liner away from the docks.

As the president's train passed thru the suburbs, little knots of workmen gathered near the tracks and stood silently with bared heads.

When the party was still some distance from the stairway the Thirteenth infantry band struck up "The Star Spangled Banner."

Closely following the president's immediate party were Secretary of State Lansing, French Ambassador Jusserand and their wives.

PRESIDENT AND PARTY

New York gave the president a tremendous sendoff. From the time his ship—with the president and Mrs. Wilson on the bridge—left its pier at Hoboken, until it vanished into the Atlantic mist, sirens and cheers and fluttering handkerchiefs bade au revoir to the first American chief executive to go to Europe during his term of office.

Vessels off the coast passing close to the presidential liner blew their whistles in farewell. The dreadnaught Pennsylvania and a fleet of 15 destroyers conveyed the George Washington. Ten of the destroyers will turn back later.

No Immediate Diminution. "It must not be regarded that entire amounts expended during 1917 and 1918 have been permanently absorbed.

A large per cent represents productive investment. It will require several months to give an accurate estimate of capital outlays, salvage and expenditures of a permanent character during the war."

As to future expenditures the report says there is no hint of immediate diminution in the cash outgo from the treasury. The prediction is made that the present high monthly disbursements likely will continue until the middle of 1919 at least.

One of the factors which tend to make uncertain the treasury requirements for the next year, the report outlines, is the possible demand for loans by our European associates in the war.

WOMAN'S DEVOTION TO HOME

Home duties to many women appear more important than health. No matter how ill they feel, they drag themselves through their daily tasks, overdo and pay the penalty in headaches, backache, dragging down pains and nervousness; they become irritable, and finally discover that some form of female complaint has fastened itself upon them.
