Part of William Jory Land Claim Sold For $33,000

One of the largest sales of real estate made recently was consummated today when a part of the William Jory donation land claim about two miles southwest of Liberty was sold to Claude H. Stevenson, A. L. Potter and Henry Booth.

The tract included 80 acres in prunes and 20 acres of timber and was sold by Miss Ada E. Jory for $33,000. From the tract this year was harvested 118 tons of prunes. On the land sold is a drier. The Jory family will continue to live in the present home adjoining the land sold. This land has been in the Jory name since 1847 when sewer if the city would furnish the pipe. The committee on sewers was instructed to look up conditions and given power to act, as Mr. McClelland said the people were in a hurry.

Flag in Willson's Park. The large flag that has decorated the walls of the city hall in the rear of the mayor's desk, will fly from the flagstaff in Willson's park. The committee appointed to look after the flag proposition reported that arrangements had been made whereby the flag would be on duty during fair weather and that it would be hauled down at night. Mr. Elliott suggested there should be a storm flag for rainy weather.

The council will have but one more meeting, on the evening of Monday, December 30, which will be mostly formal, clearing the way for the new city administration.

STATE SHOULD HELP PROVIDE LAND TO MEN State Engineer Copper Discusses Reconstruction Plans For Future.

Methods for the state to co-operate with the government in providing land and homes for returning soldiers are discussed by State Engineer Copper in his biennial report, now being printed.

He points out that the general features of the government's program seem to be to make provision for the returning soldier to improve a tract of land and be paid wages for the work and be given a preferential right to purchase the land. The state's share, he said, should be to furnish the land while the government pays for the improvements under a deferred payment plan whereby both would receive their money back.

As a means of acquiring land for soldiers, he suggests that irrigation, drainage and other districts should be given authority to accept a portion of a man's land at an appraised value in payment for the reclamation of the balance, and in that way break up many large land holdings.

He suggests that districts should be organized for clearing logged off lands by community effort the same as irrigation districts are now formed and operated for the reclamation of land.

Concerning Irrigation. There are 150,000 acres of Carey act lands in feasible irrigation projects in this state which could be reclaimed without expense to the state, he also points out.

Mr. Copper highly commends the operation of the irrigation district law. Prior to 1916 there were only 11 irrigation districts in the state, he points out. During 1916 six districts were organized, and eight have been organized since January 1, 1917, while three more are now in the course of organization.

Prior to the enactment of the 1917 irrigation district law, irrigation district bonds had a market, whereas

SUPREME COURT RULES AUTOIST RESPONSIBLE

Justice Burnett Writes Court's Opinion Of Accident In Baker County.

If the driver of an automobile attempts to cross a railroad track without listening and looking to see if a train is approaching, neither he nor his estate can collect damages from the railroad company if a train hits him and inflicts damages.

This is the gist of an opinion handed down today by the supreme court in the case of Alonza V. Robinson and H. H. Clifford, administrators of the estate of Frank Weygandt, deceased, against the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation company, appellant.

"Considering the great flexibility of motion, and their great possibility of doing damage," says Justice Burnett, who wrote the court's opinion, "it is but simple justice to demand of automobiles a more particular observance of the rule to look and listen than is required of the driver of a team of horses."

Accident in Baker County. The accident occurred in Baker county on a railroad crossing in the Burnt river canyon. Weygandt was driving the car and Robinson was riding with him. Weygandt was killed and Robinson was injured. Suits were brought against the company and judgments for damages obtained. The supreme court reverses the lower court and orders a new trial.

"The administrator claims his decedent could not see the train because of the intervening bluff," says Justice Burnett. "If this be true, how could he expect the trainmen to see him? If it was negligence for them not to see him under such conditions, it was equally negligent for him not to see the train they were operating. Looking at the impenetrable bluff was futile. It was Weygandt's duty to look upon the only place whence danger would come: viz, upon the track, for which view he had safe and ample opportunity before going in front of the train. He was guilty of contributory negligence in not looking from that place of safety, stopping if necessary for that purpose, before advancing to the point of collision. His neglect of that duty cost him his life and his estate must bear the loss."

Justice Burnett points out that an automobile is different from a team of spirited horses and it can be stopped with safety within a few feet of the railroad track for the purpose of allowing the driver to see if the way is clear.

Other Opinions. Other opinions were handed down as follows:

The Alder Slope Ditch company, appellant, vs. Moonshine Ditch company; appealed from Wallowa; contest over water rights in connection with adjudication of water rights in Hurricane creek; opinion by Justice Olson; Circuit Judge Knowles affirmed.

D. D. Gorsline, executor of will of W. M. Gorsline, vs. Jennie A. Gore, appellant; appealed from Marion; suit for accounting of funds of W. M. Gorsline deceased; opinion by Justice Harris; Circuit Judge Galloway reversed and case dismissed.

Emma A. Smith et al, appellants, vs. J. F. Boothe et al; appealed from Multnomah; suit for accounting of profits realized in connection with realty deal, heard on rehearing and former opinion adhered to; opinion by Justice Burnett.

Meeting Tonight In Waller Hall To Organize Orchestra

Under the direction of John R. Sites, music director for Willamette University, a meeting will be held this evening at Waller hall at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing the Salem symphony orchestra.

The meeting is not only for those who have had some experience with orchestra instruments but also for the women of the city who are interested in music to form a musicians' association. All women who are interested in music are invited to be present.

Besides the symphony orchestra there will also be organized this evening at Waller hall a choral union which Prof. Sites will direct. For those who enjoy concert singing an opportunity will be given and it will not be necessary for any to have a trained voice to become a member of the union.

Professor Sites is taking up a work that will doubtless meet with the approval of musicians not only for those interested in a large orchestra but also for those who wish to have the advantages of efficient training in chorus work. It has been well known for a number of years that the city has sufficient orchestra talent to support an orchestra of 50 pieces or more and it is for the purpose of bringing these players together that Prof. Sites has called the meeting tonight.

S. P. WILL HAVE TO FIX RAILWAY CROSSINGS

Council Passed Resolution Providing For Financing Of Books.

The Southern Pacific is getting on the wrong side of the city councilmen, due to the bad condition of several crossings. This developed at the regular session last evening of the city fathers when a motion carried instructing City Attorney B. W. Macy to take up the crossing problem with the railroad.

Reference was especially made to the crossings at Church and Trade, High and Center and Seventeenth and Market streets. It seems the railroad has been notified of the bad crossings and asked to remedy conditions as its franchise provides that it shall maintain its crossings on the grade established by the city. The S. P. will again be notified to put its crossings in right condition and if no attention is paid to the city's needs, the city will then have recourse to the law covering the railroad's franchise.

Extra For Lighting. Instead of paying $15.00 a month for lighting the bridge, the council last evening found out that the cost would be an extra $2.25 a month. In making the contract for the lighting, the Portland Railway Light and Power company forgot all about the channel lights which cost $4.50 a month. Hence, as the city is paying half of the lighting the $2.25 a month will be added to the $15.00.

As the city's books have not been financed for two years, Alderman C. E. Albin suggested that now would be a fine time to have an expert look over the city's books. His motion that W. I. Staley be employed to expert the books carried, with the provision that the bill should not exceed $200.

To Clear Out Ditch. A. H. Moore suggested that something be done to clear out the ditch near the Deaconess hospital. Mr. Elliott said the owner of the property adjoining objected to the creek being cleaned up. Mr. Moore also told of a man who was run over by an auto about 3 o'clock a few evenings ago and the auto had no lights. The police was instructed to look out for lightless autos and enforce the law in this respect.

Alderman McClelland said three families living on 24th street between Chemeketa and Court, wanted sewer connections and that they were willing to stand the expense of putting in the

it was taken up as a claim by William Jory.

Of the three purchasers, two are travelling men and put their money in prunes as an investment. A. J. Potter is a travelling salesman for a lace house. Mr. Stevenson has lived on the place for several years, and owns with Mr. Potter a 40-acre adjoining tract.

Died

MEYER—At Summit, Oregon, Dec. 16, 1918, Miss Lillian Meyer, at the age of 19 years. Death was due to an attack of influenza.
