JAN. 1, 1919 COLDEST
 NEW YEARS IN 18 YEARS

Weather Reports Show That Warmest Day Of 1918 Was 95 And Coldest 23.

The good people of Salem awoke this morning to the coldest New Year's day on record since the weather bureau was established in Salem in 1900. The minimum temperature last night was 20 above zero and at 8:30 o'clock the mercury had climbed up only two notches.

New Year's day of 1912 was one of the coldest of the present generation. On that day the minimum temperature was 25 with a maximum of only 35. New Year's day of 1910 was also pretty chilly, as on that day the low temperature was 28 with a maximum of 37.

The year 1918 came in in a most spring like fashion, as the sun rose clear on a temperature of 56, the maximum that day reaching 62. Jan. 1 of 1916 was a clear day also but taking an average of New Year's days for the past 18 years, it has been cloudy.

The weather for the month of December has not been changing any since 1900, according to the government's official record. In 1902 the mean maximum for the month was 44 and the mean minimum 35. As the years go by, the December weather on an average varied little. For instance, in 1905, the mean maximum was 44 and the mean minimum 36. In 1910 the figures were 45 and 34. In 1913 the days in December were cooler than the average with a mean maximum of 40 and mean minimum of 36.

December of last year had a mean maximum of 46 with a mean minimum of 35, not materially different from the month 16 years ago.

The lowest temperature in 1918 was on the night of January 31 when the mercury dropped to 23 above. The warmest day of the year was August 30 when the high temperature was 95.

OLD AGE STARTS WITH YOUR KIDNEYS

Science says that old age begins with weakened kidneys and digestive organs. This being true, it is easy to believe that by keeping the kidneys and digestive organs cleaned and in proper working order old age can be deferred and life prolonged far beyond that enjoyed by the average person.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL HAZLETON OIL has been relieving the weaknesses and disability due to advancing years. It is a standard old-time home remedy and needs no introduction. GOLD MEDAL HAZLETON OIL is induced in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a swallow of water. The oil stimulates the kidney action and enables the organs to throw off the poisons which cause premature old age. New life and strength increase as you continue the treatment. When completely restored continue taking a capsule or two each day. GOLD MEDAL HAZLETON OIL Capsules will keep you in health and vigor and prevent a return of the disease.

Do not wait until old age or disease have settled down for good. At the first sign that your kidneys are not working properly, go to your druggist and get a box of GOLD MEDAL HAZLETON OIL Capsules. Money refunded if they do not help you. Three sizes. But remember to ask for the original imported GOLD MEDAL brand. In sealed packages.

'I HAVE NEVER SEEN

Carrick Gains Sixteen Pounds
 In Less Than 30 Days
 By Taking Tanlac.

William Carrick, for many years a resident of Tacoma, Washington, is now a citizen of Hunter, Missouri. While enroute to his future home in Hunter, recently, Mr. Carrick called at the Owl Drug store in Kansas City, purchased two bottles of Tanlac and made a statement regarding his experience with the medicine that will be of interest to all suffering people.

"I have never seen anything," said Mr. Carrick, "sell like Tanlac is selling out on the Pacific coast, around where I lived. A friend of mine actually went seventy five miles one day to get a bottle and knowing what I do about it now, I believe I would do the same thing, rather than be with out it. When I first started taking it I had little idea it would do me any good, but when I tell you I have gained sixteen pounds in less than thirty days and am able to work for the first time in months, you can understand why I talk like I do about it.

"Something like a year ago my appetite went back on me and my stomach got in such a bad fix that nothing I would eat seemed to do me any good. My food would sour soon after meals and keep me belching up sour gas for hours. I suffered terrible pain about my stomach all the time and at times I would turn so dearly sick that I could hardly retain a thing I had eaten. I dropped off twenty seven pounds in weight and hardly had strength to raise my hands, and was so nervous for almost six weeks that I hardly slept at all. I finally got down flat of my back in bed—couldn't take a bit of nourishment except a little milk—and for five weeks I thought sure I would never pull through.

"I was stopping with my nephew in Tacoma at this time, and he had seen Tanlac recommended so highly he went down and got a bottle for me. Well, sir, by the time I finished my first bottle I was on my feet and feeling like a different man. My appetite picked up right away and I soon got so I couldn't get enough to eat, and ever since I finished my second bottle I have been feeling strong and fine as you please. The stomach, gas and pain has left my stomach entirely and nothing is barred from my diet. It was about the close of spring when Tanlac straightened me up and I worked every day this summer, at my trade as carpenter, and have felt fine all the time. I don't believe I ever enjoyed better health than I do now. I have personally recommended Tanlac to hundreds of people and as I was passing through here today, I stopped in to get two bottles to carry down to Hunter with me, because I don't want to be without it."

Pvt. Henningsen Writes Of Queer Ways In France

The Bossy cow plays in hard luck in some parts of France, according to a letter written by Pvt. Henry Henningsen to his mother, Mrs. Julia Henningsen, of rural route 3, Salem. He writes that in the part of France where stationed that the farmers plow and harrow with their milk cows. The letter is in part as follows:

"This is father's day and every one is supposed to write to his father. I have no father so I will write my mother. I haven't seen much of the country in France. I haven't seen one house here built of wood as everything is of rock. There are few horses in this part. Everything is done with oxen and in lots of places they plow and harrow with their milk cows.

"I am glad we came over here. I am satisfied now and the good old U. S. A. will look good enough when I see it again. Wish you would send me the address of some of our folks in Denmark. I may have a chance to go there to see some of them before I come back.

"If you have sent anything for Christmas I hope it is candy as that is the only thing we cannot get here. Tobacco and cigarettes are easy to get and cheaper than in the U. S. A. The government gives us an allowance of tobacco every few days which helps too."

MRS. BRODIE DIES

Mrs. Julia M. Brodie, a former resident of Eugene, mother of Robert Brodie, a local job printer, and of E. E. Brodie, publisher of the Morning Enterprise of Oregon City, died in that city Sunday, following a long illness. For the past year and a half she had been bedfast and helpless.

Mrs. Brodie was born in New London, Conn., and was 82 years and 5 months of age. She was a widow, her husband having passed away a good many years ago, and for a number of years had made her home with her children, residing at Eugene with a son until about a year ago, when she went to Oregon City.

Surviving, besides the sons mentioned, are two daughters, Mrs. K. M. Heavers, 92 Sixteenth street, North Portland; Mrs. L. A. Borchers, Prevoist, Wash—Eugene Register.

Comrade Writes He Was One
 Of The Gamest And Bravest
 Men In The Service.

It will be a matter of much satisfaction to the friends of Aubrey Jones—who was killed in France—to know in what high esteem he was held by his comrades, and to feel assured that he made good as a brave American soldier.

In a letter written by Pvt. R. G. Williams, Co. G, 101st infantry, to a friend in Salem, he pays high tribute to his comrade:

"I want to tell you something that you must keep to yourself until you hear it from the war department. My friend Aubrey Jones was killed on the 24th of October. That was the day after I left him in one of the worst battles of history. His mother must not hear of it until she gets the news officially so please do not tell any of your friends.

"I want to say that he was one of the gamest and bravest little men that it has been my lot to know and a good friend of mine. And when I say good friend, I mean all of that and more.

WONDERFUL YEAR FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Crop Not Heavy But Prices Were Abnormally High.

The year 1918 was the most remarkable the Oregon agriculturist has ever known. Crops were not of the bumper variety, but prices were abnormally high and even with a much greater producing cost, the net result has been a season of prosperity, the like of which was never before recorded. Marketing problems could not have been surmounted, as the demand at all seasons of the year was greater than the farmers could produce.

The wheat land of the state, according to government figures, yielded 4,851,000 bushels of spring grain and 10,470,000 bushels of the winter cereal, the total of 15,321,000 bushels, comparing with 12,811,000 bushels produced in 1917. The average wheat crop of a year for the past ten years was 18,800,000 bushels. The farmers in 1918 as in the preceding year, had the benefit of the high price fixed by the government and naturally found no complaint with their treatment.

Oats Crop Small
 The oats crop was the smallest for several years, but was a very remunerative one. The state produced in the past year 7,940,000 bushels, which compares with 9,125,000 bushels in 1917, and a ten year average of 15,904,000 bushels.

The barley crop was slightly under that of the preceding year, but brought much more money. The 1918 yield was figured at 4,550,000 bushels, as against 5,278,000 bushels in 1917 and 4,443,000 bushels, the average for the preceding 10 years.

Potato Movement Slow
 The potato crop was less than that of 1917, and, while the movement has not yet fairly started, prices promise to be reasonably good, though of course not so high as in years when the east and middle west produced less. The Oregon crop is figured at 8036 carloads whereas in 1917 11,572 carloads were produced. At the close of the year less than 300 cars had been shipped out of the state, about 200 cars less than were moved in the same period last season. Total shipments to outside points from the 1917 crop were 1902 carloads. The onion crop was seriously cut down by an attack of thrips in the summer months.

Wool at High Level
 The war put the wool market at an exceedingly high level, and by the government taking over the entire clip, the flockmasters were assured of getting all there was to be had out of their wool. The Oregon clip was somewhat larger than in the preceding two years and of very good quality. Most of it has already been distributed by the government and what remains will be disposed of at auction, the authorities having chosen this method to unload their holdings of wool, both foreign and domestic.

Jones didn't see me go, and he looked the world over for me, thinking I had been left there. It was an unhealthy spot to wander in, too, as it was full of gas and shells were coming in thick and fast. But it made no difference to him. He searched the place all over until he was told I was gone."
