

SOCIETY

By CAROL S. DIBBLE

SOCIETY. It has been an unprecedented New Year week from the viewpoint of Salem society. With plans forecast and elaborated for an exceptionally gay array of New Year's events, and a galaxy of gala watch parties arranged for Tuesday night, the sudden ban on all large gatherings during the influenza outbreak, instantly suppressed the joyous enthusiasm and wave of merry making with which the infant year, 1919, would otherwise have been greeted.

When very few homes in the city are entirely free from the presence of that unwelcome and lingering visitor, who, unheeded and unaccommodated, makes his appearance all too frequently under the guise of the dreaded influenza, there is little incentive or desire for the gay whirl of the customary holiday season. Consequently the out of town guests and the advent of the new year have alike been honored with only a quiet and subdued form of social entertainment and acclaim. A few informal parties and small gatherings have given sufficient color to the calendar of the week to serve as a faint reminder of the passing of the old year and a suggestion of what might have been in the way of seasonal jubilation and what will be, let us hope, another year, when our manifold greetings have come to be, as true as we hope them to be, "A Happy New Year."

Coming in the nature of a holiday surprise to a host of friends in the city was the news received this week of the marriage of Miss Mabel Haight of Salem to Henry W. Wright of Omaha, Nebraska, the ceremony taking place New Year's day in the latter city.

The announcement of the engagement of the couple was made known a few weeks ago at a charming tea given at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. H. C. Hummel on Laurel avenue. It was originally planned that the wedding should be a Salem event, but owing to Mr. Wright's being released from the service at an earlier date than anticipated, he went directly from Camp Funston, Kansas, to Omaha, as his former position, connected with railroad work, was already awaiting him. Consequently his fiancée made preparations to join him at Omaha, leaving for Nebraska last Sunday evening.

The wedding which was solemnized the following Wednesday, was the culmination of a romance, which had its inception last summer, when Mr. Wright, as a member of the spruce division, was stationed at Fort Heights, Washington, where Miss Haight held a position in a local railroad office.

The bride is a well known and very likable girl, having made her home here with her sister, Mrs. Hummel, for several years. She was secretary to Superintendent S. S. Tillingshast of the Oregon state deaf school for sometime. Much to the regret of her Salem acquaintances Mrs. Wright and her husband will make their home in Omaha.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Plimpton entertained a coterie of close friends in formally New Year's eve at their home on State street in delightful compliment to their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Terry of Portland. The gaieties of the evening culminated with a festive little supper party.

Bidden to share the merriment attendant upon the last night of 1918 in this pleasurable fashion, were, in addition to Mr. and Mrs. Terry, the following: Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Liverley, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thielson and Mr. and Mrs. William Burghardt, Jr.

Mrs. M. J. Creighton and daughter, Miss Mabel Creighton, of Portland, who have been spending the holidays in Salem as the guests of Mrs. W. H. Dancy will return home Monday. They will be accompanied to Portland by Mrs. Creighton's daughter, Mrs. W. A. Jones, who is leaving for eastern Oregon on a business trip of several weeks.

The Primella club did not hold its regular meeting this week, owing to the influenza ban. The members were to have been entertained Thursday by Mrs. Frank Myers at her home on South Commercial street.

Miss Helen Pearce of Portland is passing the week end in Salem with her mother, Mrs. George J. Pearce. Miss Pearce, who received her appointment as head of the employment department of the Portland Y. W. C. A. before she had quite completed her training course as a Y. W. C. A. secretary, will be allowed a three weeks leave of absence, in order to finish her training at the Seattle association. She will leave for Seattle Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Zedee Riggs, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McDougall, participated in the New Year's festivities at Portland, going up New Year's eve.

Mrs. Riggs is attending the School of Pharmacy at Portland this winter, staying at the Multnomah hotel. She passed the holiday interim in Salem with Mr. Riggs.

Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Miles will return to their home in Portland tonight after a short stay in Salem as the guests of Mr. Miles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Miles, at their residence in Salem Heights.

Mrs. H. S. Poisel was hostess at a merry five hundred party Monday night at her residence on the Liberty road, four tables of cards being arranged for the players. A brilliant array of Christmas decorations contributed to the holiday atmosphere of the gathering. The guests for the most part comprised a small company group, who have been enjoying similar affairs throughout the winter.

Mrs. W. H. Burghardt, Jr., has returned from a delightful holiday sojourn in Portland, having been gone about a week.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Roberts and daughters, Mildred and Helen, passed New Year's day in Portland, returning home Thursday evening.

Mrs. Lloyd Mott, accompanied by Miss Joan Bell of Philadelphia, a house guest at the W. S. Mott residence, are spending several days in Portland, where they are visiting Dr. and Mrs. William Mott.

A holiday wedding of keen interest to Salem people was solemnized at Quincy, Illinois, December 26, when Miss Anna Yantis became the bride of Lieutenant George Hudson Gaston of Minneapolis. The engagement of the young couple, which culminated in the recent wedding, was announced several weeks ago by the bride, who is a former popular Salem girl.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. E. Yantis, who has resided in Quincy several months. The ceremony took place at two o'clock, Rev. R. H. Hartley of the First Presbyterian church officiating. The bride was attractively attired in a modish tulle suit of French velvet with accessories of purple. She wore a corsage bouquet of violets. The service which was very simple was read in the presence of only the immediate family.

After the ceremony a wedding collation was served, the rooms of the Yantis residence being prettily decked with a profusion of holiday decoration in red and green.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Gaston left the city for Minneapolis, where they are enjoying a short visit at the bridegroom's home. Their plans for the immediate future are indefinite, but they will locate later in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Gaston is a sister of Mrs. Linn Smith of this city and claimed a large circle of friends among the young people of Salem during her residence here. She is a sister of Miss Birden Yantis, and of David B. Yantis, both of whom resided in Salem a few years ago, but are now residents of Quincy. Mr. Yantis, who with his family, will be well remembered by a host of Salem acquaintances, is manager of the Overland company at Quincy.

The bridegroom has been in training at Camp Grant, Rockford, Illinois, and was released from the service just previous to the wedding. In civilian life, Mr. Gaston was connected with the Lee Fire company, which had its headquarters at Fargo, Illinois.

Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Bennett will entertain the members of the state banking department at a handsomely appointed dinner party tonight at their home, 155 North Fourteenth street. An exquisite pink color scheme will prevail in the table decorations, a centerpiece of lovely pink roses emphasizing the predominating color motif.

Covers will be laid for Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Soume, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schramm, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Smith, Miss Jessie Holcomb, Marshal Hooper and the hosts.

One of the strong women's organizations of Oregon is the Daughters of the American Revolution, which numbers nine chapters in the state. These are Chamackette of Portland; Linn of Astoria; Oregon Lewis and Clark of Eugene; Sarah Childress Polk of Dallas; Quennett of The Dalles; Coes Bay of Marshfield; Umattilla of Pendleton; Lempa of Roseburg; and Susannah Lee Barlow of Oregon City. Chapters are next in line for organization.

Mrs. F. M. Wilkins of Eugene, is state regent and Mrs. Walter F. Burrell of Portland, is state vice regent. The D. A. R. take up all patriotic work, such as presentation of flags, prevention of their desecration, preservation of historical spots. Markers have been placed on the Old Oregon Trail at Cory Pass, in Eugene, at Oregon City and on the Barlow road at Rhododendron.

Much national relief work has been done and recorded in statistics of the American Red Cross. At present, committees on American citizenship, education and Americanization of aliens are working in conjunction with the state council of defense. Mrs. Esther A. Jones is chairman for the Daughters of the American Revolution unit and has auxiliaries in every chapter for carrying on this important work.

Miss Bertha Fairbanks of Seattle is a week end guest of Mrs. Charles Strickland and Miss Jean Belle. Mrs. Fairbanks is enroute from San Francisco where she has been visiting friends.

The friends of Miss Laura Miles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Miles of Salem, will be interested to hear that she passed her Christmas vacation with friends in Boston. Miss Miles is attending Columbia university this winter.

Musicians of Salem and vicinity will be interested to hear of the significant work now being done in Italy by George Hotchkiss Street, a former Portland singer, now in Y. M. C. A. field work in Bologna, Italy. Mr. Street and his wife were guests in Salem last June, when they were entertained at the residence of Judge and Mrs. Henry L. Benson on North Summer street, at the time of the wedding of the latter's daughter, Mrs. Richard Robertson (Louise Benson), both Mr. and Mrs. Street contributing the bridal music for the occasion.

Mr. Street has been made "direttore generale di canto in massa"—that is, he has been installed and made director of community singing for the northern Italian army of 250,000 men. The Italian had lost massed singing in a serious way, but without success, and were somewhat dubious about trying again. But after one rehearsal, with about 300 men, they turned everything over to Mr. Street. Officers, directors and soldiers are all enthusiastic about the "new way" of singing from America.

At Ferrara, a large camp about 30 miles from Bologna, Mr. Street tells of his experience: "Really, to see the men's faces light up, hear them sing and shout in true American style, after I had explained where and how to do it, would have warmed the hearts of our American friends. I received a note from the director general of the northern army thanking me for the new life I had put into his men, and offering every assistance in our efforts to establish the 'sings' in all the camps."

Mr. Street's contract with the Y. M. C. A. does not terminate until next August. However, he is planning on another year's work in Italy, providing Mrs. Street can join him this coming summer.

The order issued by the health board forbidding assemblies of any size without doubt prevail next week, and thus will automatically cancel one of the most eagerly anticipated musical and social events of the season, the annual concert of the Apollo club, which was to have been held at the Opera House Friday night, January 10. A new date cannot naturally be set until the conditions of the present epidemic assume a brighter outlook.

Mrs. A. E. Blomquist has returned to her home at Seattle after passing the holidays in Salem as the guest of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Lytle.

A pretty New Year's eve wedding was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. P. P. Talkington, 349 North Church street, when Miss Nellie Ruth Fowler of Marion, Indiana, became the bride of Wesley H. Williams of Salem. The service was read by Rev. W. C. Kautner of the First Congregational church at 7:30.

The bride was becomingly attired in a lovely white gown, and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. She was attended by Miss Jessie Miller, whose bouquet was comprised of Ophelia roses. George Dahl was the best man.

The rooms were tastefully decked with masses of Oregon grape, poinsettias and softly shaded red candles contributing a charming red color note. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the residence of Mrs. W. C. Young, 461 North High street. The bride is a new resident of Salem having come to Oregon from Indiana a year ago. Mr. Williams is foreman of the J. L. Van Dorn canning plant. Following the wedding the young couple left for Portland on a short honeymoon. They will be at home to their friends at 590 Union street.

Mrs. Frederick Schmidt entertained a gala company of friends Tuesday night at her home, 678 North Cottage street at a jolly little New Year's eve watch party. Festal holiday decorations carrying out a red and green color scheme were in gay evidence. The hours were merrily whiled away with cards and dancing, a buffet supper being served at a late hour. About twenty guests were asked to join in the jollities of the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Knappe of 535 North 19th street, entertained with a New Year's dinner in honor of Mrs. Knappe's son, Raymond L. Savage, who is stationed at Bremerton navy yard and who came home to spend New Year's with his mother. Those invited included Mrs. Knappe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Genser, Frank Genser and wife, Ralph Genser and wife, Cliff Genser and family, Norris Hunt and family, Mrs. Selma Updegraff, Mable and Louis Updegraff, Ulysses Genser, Florence, Opal and Eugene Genser, Mr. and Mrs. Knappe's children Frankie, Louis and Gracie, Virgil Genser and Raymond L. Savage. The dinner was in the nature of a reunion, as Mr. and Mrs. Knappe have lived in Jacksonville, Florida, for the past eight years and have only just returned a few months ago to make Oregon their home, it being Mrs. Knappe's native state.

Mrs. A. W. Biesgar, who has been spending the holidays with her father, B. A. Harris, returned home today. Her husband, who holds a position with the St. Helens ship building company, returned home Sunday.

Miss Irene Curtis, a student at the Oregon Agricultural college, will return to Corvallis tomorrow after spending the holidays in Salem with her mother, Mrs. L. G. Curtis.

Miss Mabel Gardner joyfully entertained a congenial group of friends at her home on New Year's eve with a delightful stepping party. The hostess invited as her guests the Misses Beate Peete, Edith Brown, Orlena Thomas, Yolma Gilliam, Selma Barton, Grace McDonald, Eloise Hatley, Elizabeth Caley, Helen Bingle, Messrs. Clyde McGruder, Russell Case, Gordon Roque, George LaChappelle, Cy Crosby, Neil Miller, Edgar Crosby, Merrill Ivie, Warren Hardesty and Lawrence Gardner.

Mrs. Floyd Putnam of Vancouver, Washington, arrived this morning to pass the week end in the city as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Walter J. Kirk. Mrs. Putnam is enroute from Brownsville, Oregon, where she has been visiting her parents over the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beckett (Glen Kennen) of Tillamook are enjoying a visit in Salem as the guests of Mr. Beckett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Beckett, at their residence on the Wallace road. Mr. and Mrs. Beckett arrived last night and will remain during the coming week.

The friends of Mrs. Horace Sykes and little daughter, Jeanette Sykes, who have been seriously ill with influenza, will be glad to hear that they are gradually improving. Miss Nell Sykes, who has been visiting her brother's family over the holidays is planning to return to Bremerton Monday to resume management of the cafeteria under her charge at the Bremerton navy yard.

Announcement has been received by Salem friends of the marriage of Paul Ballou Hofer, formerly of Salem, to Miss Frances Morgan Spence of Pasadena, California, the wedding being an event of New Year's day, and taking place at Pasadena. The bridegroom is a nephew of Colonel and Mrs. E. Hofer of this city and a popular college man, being a graduate of the Oregon Agricultural college. During his college career, he made an enviable name as a prominent football star.

Mr. Hofer has recently been released from the naval service. His mother Mrs. Anna B. Hofer and a sister, Miss Louise Hofer also reside in the southern metropolis. The Hofers moved to California several years ago.

AUTHOR ADOPTS FRENCH LAD.
New York, Jan. 4.—Captain Peter B. Kyne, the author arrived here today from France and with him came a little French lad, a stowaway on the transport Matsonia whom Kyne declared he intended to adopt.

The boy was found concealed in a bass drum after the ship had put to sea. Investigation revealed that he had fled after his father had been murdered by Germans and his mother carried away by them. Kyne thereupon took the youngster under his wing.

Police Captains All Have "Flu" in Portland
The "flu" has also put Chief of Police Johnson out of commission, and is the reason why six patrolmen are not earning their salaries.

MILLER-YODER WEDDING.
Friday evening, December 27th, at eight o'clock at the home of the bride's father, Adam Miller and Miss Wilma Yoder were married in the presence of immediate relatives, Bishop A. P. Taylor of the Zion Mennonite church performing the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Yoder where the groom is from Morrocco, Ind., near which town the bride formerly lived. The many friends of the young people extend congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Miller plan to go to Indiana within a month. They received many valuable presents.

J. Kauffman and children, Ray, Lester and Agnes; Grandma Kauffman, Misses Ruby and Opal Misher, Frank, Lee and Paul Yoder.—Hubbard Enterprise.

TELLS HOW BOOKS ARE HANDLED AT LIBRARY

City Librarian Writes Some Interesting Information About Library Work.

By Miss Flora M. Case.

The scene opens at the loan desk of the public library on a busy day. A hundred and fifty patrons have come and gone taking with them the interesting facts they wished or the books of their choice. Some scores have found time to read the newspapers, the magazines or the encyclopaedia article that appealed to them. Many and varied are the questions the desk attendant has been asked to answer.

Upon the scene enters one of the characters, a thoughtful business man, speaks in a low tone: "I should like a book to read that will give briefly, but in an interesting manner, the whole story of the European war."

The attendant makes answer after a moment of thought. "I could give you a book on the battle of the Marne, or any other special offensive, or a book about a brief period of time such as 'Alone' or 'My Year of the Great War'—and there are books about the work of the aviators or the medical corps, the life in a submarine or in a tank, but we have no one comprehensive work that covers the whole war. I shall make a note of your request to find if we can secure it for you."

The request goes to the office. It presents itself as a need which the librarian begins her search for the best book to serve the purpose. The A. L. A. Booklist is consulted; this is a monthly list of the best books that come from the press, with descriptive notes. The Bookman, the monthly magazine devoted to books and authors, is searched, then the New York Times Book Review, and the circular letter received from the committee on Reference books appointed by the Pacific Northwest Library association.

It appears that Frank H. Simonds, who has been writing those good war articles for the New York Tribune is publishing a popular history of the war which is meeting with the most favor with the critics. The Book Committee O. K.'s the choice, and Simonds' "History of the Great War" becomes the hero of this tale.

All of the trade items: The publisher, the date of publication, the binding and the price are carefully gathered from the U. S. trade catalog, and the set gets its place on the outgoing order to the book dealer. Fortunately the books are in stock, and within a week a freight box is thrust into the basement, which contains among others the volumes of the anticipated history.

When the order is checked the cataloger takes the books in charge. By authority of the U. S. Catalog and Who's Who in America, 1918-19, the author's full name is assigned—Frank Herbert Simonds.

The book number is chosen carefully, for this number determines the shelf upon which the books shall stand. There is no question about the general class; it is history, therefore, among the 900's. It is history of a special geographic division, Europe, hence, 940. Again it is of the most recent time, a further figure is needed for history of the present time, and 940.9 makes up the class number. There are, however, several shelves of books about the European war, all classed in 940.9. The new set must have its special place in this numerous family, and its author's name decides this point. Cutter's Authors' Tables fix 815 as the author number. The new acquisition is christened with its individual call number—940.9 815, vol. 1 & 2.

Now the cataloger turns her attention to the cards which shall represent the set in the catalog. The first card shall be under the author's name—Simonds, Frank Herbert, every author is so honored in a library. This one card is not sufficient to call attention to the work for few patrons will remember the name of the author or how to spell it. The title is not so distinctive that it will be sought. It is the subject that is important, therefore, a card is made with "European War, 1914" typed in red on the top line, with the author and title below. The card will be filed in its alphabetical place in the E-tray in the catalog.

Only the mechanical preparation remains. Each book is opened methodically on a table, leaves at the front and back are pressed down alternately through the whole book to give elasticity to the glue in the back. The uncut pages are neatly cut with an ivory knife. The stamp of library ownership is placed. A pocket is folded and pasted on the inside of the back cover, where the book card shall rest until it gives place to the card of the patron who borrows the book. A slip of white paper is tipped onto the fly leaf opposite, where the date on which the book is borrowed is to be stamped. Now, with a pen and white ink, the marker writes on the back of the binding the call number, and with a brush she spreads shellac over the number for protection from wear. Since these books are dark in color, they may not have a complete coat of shellac.

On the following Saturday morning the two volumes of Simonds' "History of the Great War" are in their place on the New Book Shelf, and there the first interested patron who has read of them in the Friday evening's issue of the Capital Journal will find them, unless the thoughtful-looking business man who made the first request wished to have the privilege of the first reading. The later volumes of the set will follow by the path they have made.

This is how two of the fourteen hundred and sixteen books added this year found their way to the shelves of the public library.

VANCOUVER, B. C. MAN SHOT HIMSELF IN N. Y.

New York, Jan. 4.—Henry O. Wooten of Vancouver, B. C., was found dead yesterday in a hotel room here with his head blown off, a double barreled shotgun near by. Police believe today he committed suicide.

Was Liquor Dealer.

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 4.—Henry Wooten who committed suicide yesterday in New York, was one of the largest liquor dealers in British Columbia before the prohibition law came into force. Since then he maintained a liquor export warehouse. He left Vancouver two weeks ago about the time that the government started an investigation into illegal importation into Vancouver of 25 carloads of liquor from Montreal. Some whiskey in Wooten's warehouse has been seized by the police. The investigation has established that large quantities of liquor have been brought here on shipment to Mexico, but the excise duty was paid here and the liquor never left British Columbia at all.

W. C. Findlay, prohibition commissioner, one of the illegal importers, is now in jail. He has already been fined $1000 for importing one carload of liquor.

Mayor Gale today announced a re-organization of the Vancouver police department from "top to bottom."

SILVERTON-SALEM STAGE RUNS INTO TELEPHONE POLE

The Silverton-Salem stage was wrecked Saturday evening while going into Salem with eight passengers from this city. Jack Orr, the driver, who is an old hand on the line, had crossed the Southern Pacific tracks at the fair grounds, and was looking back for some reason or other while his car was making a bee line for a telephone pole. He struck the pole a glancing blow and wrecked the car and at the same time mixed up his passengers in a dangerous manner. Mrs. Fenton Starr of the Coolidge and McClaine bank of this city, was badly injured. She pitched forward between the telephone pole and the car and her hat was literally ground to pieces by the contact. She received injuries that laid her up for two days. While she is able to be back at the bank she still feels the effects of the injuries and shock. Hiram Gra-
