Readers of the local dailies are apt to gain the impression that there is a very large death toll in the city of Salem for the reason that all the deaths occurring in this vicinity are recorded. The records of the health office, gathered from the period from December 1 to January 10, show that in the city proper, and leaving out of count the deaths in the state institutions, there have been a total of 37 deaths, of which 19 were male and 18 female. Among the causes of death it is shown that 23 were directly due to influenza or pneumonia.

The sensational feature of the market report today is the drop in the quotations on eggs. They have been quoted in this city for some time past at 60 cents. Yesterday the Portland wires showed a drop of three cents early in the day, and later a slump of 7 cents. Thus the local quotation today is 53 cents. The falling off is said to be due to the dumping of a vast quantity of California eggs on the market in anticipation of the regular February influx.

An investigation of the damage done by fire on the Jesse rooming house yesterday showed a loss of about $1500 on the building and the same amount on the contents. The building was insured through the agency of W. A. Liston, the total amount being $3500 on building and contents.

An upward tendency in citrus fruits is marked by the Salem shippers during the past few days. Reports from the California orange belt show losses from the recent freeze running all the way from 10 per cent to 25 per cent. The better grades of oranges now retail at 75 cents per dozen.

Local dealers note that while there has been no change in the price of gasoline since the removal of the restrictions on the traffic, there has been a welcome advance in the quality. During the past few months gasoline has been running as low as 50 degrees, and automobile owners have been starting their engines on cold mornings with profanity. The gas now handled by the dealers shows a test of about 58 degrees, being within a few degrees of the standard before the war.

There is an opportunity for employers in all lines to confer a benefit upon some energetic, ambitious but idle boy, by giving him employment, even for a few hours a day. The report on the influenza situation as given from the office of the Health Officer, Dr. Pemberton, indicates that the epidemic is practically at a standstill, there being probably a few more quarantined cases released than are shut up. It is very difficult to obtain definite figures as to each day's results as the reports are delayed and come in irregularly. The books show that for Wednesday there were 13 new cases and thus far today there were none new cases. But this does not indicate that many new homes are shut up, for many of the new cases are in homes already under quarantine.

Notes From The House Of Representatives

Representative Elmore of Linn county is now the pleased possessor of the pen with which Speaker Seymour Jones signed officially the ratification of the House of the proposed constitutional amendment for national prohibition.

Mr. Elmore has been fighting the demon for 23 years and as he has taken so much interest in the temperance movement it was thought appropriate that he should have the pen that finally put Oregon in line with national prohibition.

ARMY BILL CALLS FOR COMPLETE REBUILDING

Main Temporary Feature Is Provision For Army Of 500,000 Men.

Washington, Jan. 16.—A bill calling for complete rebuilding of the American army organization along the "lines found most useful during the war," was laid before the house military committee by Secretary of War Baker. The bill would make the general staff, headed by chief of staff, supreme in the army.

The main temporary feature is the provision of an army of 500,000 men until a permanent figure can be settled on. Baker made it plain he would not recommend universal military training and that states would be aided in reorganizing their national guard if they would bear their share of the burden of expense. The proposals encountered an extremely hostile committee, many of whom are in favor of cutting general staff influence instead of increasing it.

Representative McKenzie, Illinois, asked why an army of 500,000 men was recommended. "It's a forecast of our military situation," Baker said. "We have no means of knowing what the military obligations of the states will be in the future. We believe an army of 500,000 will meet these obligations."

Several members brought up objections to an army of 500,000 declaring it would never be reduced. If once authorized, Baker said the size could easily be cut by future congresses. Chairman Dent reminded Baker that it would probably be impossible to put through any permanent reorganization at this session, advocating continuing as at present with a small appropriation.

Baker insisted the bill be taken before congress now, repeating congress should change it. "Unless it is passed, we'll have a not delay matters until more favorable weather."

Representative Bean of Eugene said that in a conference with Herbert Nunn, of the State Highway Commission, it was made known that the highway department has machinery and equipment necessary to give 1,000 men work within a week or ten days.

The resolution was passed unanimously in the House this morning and as Mr. Nunn has already conferred with members of both the House and Senate, it is probable that the road work of the state will begin a few weeks earlier than originally planned. Contracts for several projects will be let at the meeting called for February 11.

Mayor Baker, of Portland, who came to Salem last evening to urge the immediate passage of an emergency bill appropriating $250,000 for relief of the returning soldiers and sailors, was given on the courtesy of the House this morning on motion of Representative H. L. Idleman of Portland. The Portland mayor was present while the bill was rapidly pushed through all the usual forms of first, second and third reading and the House going into a committee of the whole to expedite matters. Things were going so well for the bill that Mayor Baker did not talk in its favor.

According to some of the opinions expressed around the State House last night, labor is just as much afraid of the Bolshevik movement as capital. However, one labor man expressed the idea that there might be Bolshevik capitalists as well as Bolshevik laborers and that what labor wanted was to steer a middle course. E. J. Stack was one of the labor men in the city last evening lending his influence towards the passage of the quarter million dollar bill for the relief of soldiers and sailors whom the federal government turned loose hundreds of miles away from home almost without a dollar. The bill is principally a Portland measure.

army organized under the laws in force before we went into the war," Baker said.

Baker was closely questioned concerning army discharges. He said the most urgent cases were being discharged first, pointing out that it would be impracticable to release men as a class instead of dealing with individual cases.

ARREST PORTLAND POLICEMAN

Portland, Or., Jan. 16.—Policeman Harry Bales is under arrest today being charged with stealing funds from the Belgian babies' milk bottle on his own desk at police headquarters.

Suspecting Bales of robbing the bottle, brother officers claim they marked coins, deposited them in the receptacle and found them on Bales when they arrested him.

Giles, Alias Liard, Received Life Sentence In Prison

Portland, Or., Jan. 16.—John Knight Giles, alias J. Cyril Liard, received a life sentence in the state penitentiary today.

A little grey haired woman—Giles' mother—caused a scene in circuit court by screaming when sentence was passed. Her repeated demands to be heard were finally granted by Judge Gantenbein.

Her second request, after a lengthy appeal—that her son be granted a new trial on the grounds that he is insane and that she could prove it—was denied.

The mother made another scene later in the corridor, demanding to be allowed to visit her son, but was refused again—this time because Giles absolutely declined to see his mother.

Giles was convicted of murdering Deputy Sheriff Twombly when the officer tried to stop Giles' automobile on the interstate bridge.

Mrs. Lebaudy Charged With First Degree Murder Today

Mincola, N. Y., Jan. 16.—Charged with first degree murder, Mrs. Marie Augustine Labaudy, was placed in a cell in the county jail today.

She was arraigned before Justice W. R. Jones on the charge of killing her husband, Jacques Labaudy, the "Emperor of the Sahara." No plea was entered. Mrs. Labaudy was half carried and half dragged into the town hall, where the judge sat. She wept violently and her answers were inaudible.
