Salem Council No. 2622, Knights and Ladies of Security, held a special meeting in Haret hall recently and installed a large class of candidates, numbering 23. State Manager L. M. Thomas and wife of Portland, were present and assisted in the work, which fully measured up to expectations. The council will hold an open meeting and card party on the evening of February 8th, to which the public is invited. The famous Ritzpatrick drill team, of Portland, will visit Salem in the near future and exemplify the beautiful ritualistic work of the order. A 2000 foot reel of pictures will be run at the High theater on February 8th, showing the drill team contest at the national convention held at Toledo, Ohio, and many other features of the convention will be shown at the Liberty theater on that evening.

For the benefit of Salem merchants who are accepting war savings stamps it may be said that unless the stamp certificate is in blank, the merchant cannot cash the stamps. If the name is written in, then only the owner may cash by giving ten days notice to the postmaster. In other words, war savings stamps are not assignable. If the owner's name has been written in, then only the owner can personally draw the amount from the postoffice with the regular ten day's notice. The merchant cannot cash in the certificate unless it happens to be in blank.

H. L. Clark of South Commercial street says he has seven Rhode Island pullets that laid 140 eggs during the 31 days of January. Also that he sold nine dozen for which he received $6.18 and that the cost for the feed during the month only amounted to $2.45. In other words, his Rhode Island reds made him a profit each of 53 cents for the month and then allowed only one egg a day for household use.

Today being the first of February, the weather almanac says that the weather will be fair to changeable, which is a safe enough guess. The sun will rise tomorrow morning at 7:14 o'clock which is one minute later than today. The moon, being so much nearer the earth than the sun takes more liberties with its risings and settings. For instance, this morning it was in the almanac to rise at 6:27 but tomorrow the time is 7:39 o'clock in the dark of the moon. And it is on the last Sunday in March at 2 o'clock in the morning that time will be turned back one hour. Last February was a rainy month with 5.08 inches of precipitation and cloudy every day excepting four.

There was a small and select meeting of the Business Men's League at the Commercial club last evening, the principal business being the election of a director for the coming year. An effort was made to continue Director C. S. Hamilton in office but he declined, and the honor finally fell to E. H. Choate, of the Shipley store. A number of important matters were discussed, among others the coming convention of the retail dealers to be held in this city.

As the legislature convened Jan. 13, the last day of its sessions will be Friday, Feb. 21. The state constitution provides that members shall not receive more than $120 for any one session. Hence, taking it for granted that the session will continue for the full 40 days, it will adjourn at the end of 40 days as no pay will be allowed for additional time. The state constitution also provides that each member shall be allowed at the rate of $3 for each 20 miles traveled coming and going, or 15 cents a mile. The president of the senate and speaker of the house each are paid $5 a day and traveling expenses, besides mileage.

Mr. Delano and Mr. Eoff are partners in the automobile business handling the Chevrolet car. While they are 59-50 in the auto business, Mr. Eoff now stands as the weather prophet of the firm and this is due to a little argument. About a week ago Mr. Delano was willing to wager that it would not snow on Friday Jan. 31. Mr. Eoff said it would snow on that day and was willing to back his opinion with a small wager. Now it really did snow in Salem Friday morning and Mr. Delano has been wondering how on earth his partner could guess a week ahead and correctly predict a snow in Salem. But it seems that Mr. Eoff is in the sheep business and that he has a herder who bases his weather prognostications on the way the sheep act. About a week or so ago the sheep began bunching up anticipating a snow storm. Hence Mr. Eoff backed his judgment on the sheep and won.

Cancer Is Cured--

Capt. P. F. Clark, prominent resident of Polk county, whose address is route 1, Salem, Or., tells personal experience: To anyone suffering with cancer: I was afflicted with cancer of the lower lip for one and one-half years, to my great discomfort and worry. I applied to Dr. S. C. Stone here in Salem for relief. He applied a paste for four days, then a simple ointment, and in a few days the cancer fell out. My lip healed up perfectly. CAPT. P. F. CLARK, Route 1, Salem, Oregon

The above is but one of several cases of cancer I have cured in Salem recently. S. C. STONE, M. D.

Where One Can Find All Phases Of Life--New Today

The real human interest story of what's going on in Salem and vicinity is told daily in the "New Today" column of the Capital Journal. It is the old story of not what people have done but what they would like to do. For instance there is an appeal for a young lady who would like to work in a drug store, while in another a man makes the statement that he will not be responsible for the debts contracted by his wife.

A young lady who is taking advantage of one of Salem's educational institutions would like to work after recitation hours and a factory in Salem is advertising steady work for girls and women. A man wants to buy a good one horse wagon while another has a used automobile for sale, in good condition. And just while there is such a demand for nurses, there is the ad stating that an experienced nurse wants a permanent position. You are invited to join the Science Success club for health and harmony and then there is the invitation to wear an electric corset. The high price of renting houses would not worry as there is a nine room house with electric lights and modern conveniences offered at $10 a month. Three White Leghorn roosters are offered for sale and wood cutters are offered $2 a cord, working a few miles south of town. Another man is going to Idaho and must sell several cows, all in good condition. And the story changes from day to day and one can generally find for sale all sorts of things from a heifer call to a house and lot.

LIFTING THE LID.

Dr. Leo Rieen, M. D., Portland, Oregon says: "There is a considerable number of operative cases, apparently clean to begin with, and handled with faultless technique by skilled surgeons which terminate with a fatal infection because the patient's buccal (mouth) cavity was overlooked and the patient was allowed to go on the operating table with a septic mouth. And let me say that, unless we deal with an emergency case, it is our imperative duty to free the mouths of our patients of pus before we allow them to undergo a serious operation. The surgeon who is so anxious to operate and who sends his patient to the surgery without a careful examination of the patient's mouth is, in my opinion, guilty of criminal negligence."--N. W. Dental Journal.

In other words, this noted medical authority says: There are many deaths due to infection from diseased mouths, being carried in the blood to the wounds made by the surgeon's knife. Did you ever hear of a patient's mouth being freed of disease before he is allowed to go on the operating table? In this connection I would suggest an investigation of the awful mouth conditions, of scores of people who have undergone serious operations. In addition to protecting the patient against a fatal infection, it ought to be evident to any doctor that his patient would have a much better chance to recover from a surgical operation if a large part of his resisting powers were not needed to fight a bad mouth infection at the same time. The majority of major surgical operations are abdominal. According to our greatest medical authorities, the conditions that are used as an excuse for these operations are mainly due to mouth infection. If the mouth infection was corrected first many of these patients would recover their health without the hospital operation. So the only danger of following Dr. Rieen's suggestion would be that of losing the fee for one or more operations.

What have you gained, Mr. Doctor, by removing an ulcer of the stomach caused by mouth infection, if the mouth infection is not also removed? Perhaps $200. What has your patient gained? Is it not perfectly reasonable to expect this same mouth infection to cause another ulcer or diseased condition in other parts of the body? Is it any wonder that one operation is so frequently followed by another, when the cause of the first is not removed? Did you ever stop to think that surgical operations have increased in number in proportion to the increase in the number of dead teeth left in people's mouths and number of crowns and bridges attached to teeth? In other words, the dentists of the country are building the incubators for the disease which are keeping the surgeons busy while it is being contended that more hospitals would solve the problem of human ills. Give the people all the simple truths concerning disease, then our present hospitals will be adequate.

Fortunately, many of our people are getting light and having the mouth freed of disease in time to regain health without surgery. I have a number of patients who have been freed from such troubles as rheumatism, intestinal disorders, general ill health, etc., by curing diseased gums and extracting infected teeth. It is a pleasure to refer anyone to these people. I operate without pain by the latest scientific methods: thus giving you better dentistry than otherwise possible, and making it a pleasure for you to have me do your work.
