Prominent Eugene Man Dies In French War Zone

Eugene, Feb. 25.—Dr. John Eberle Kuykendall, captain of the 361st ambulance company, died in Lemans, France, Sunday morning from meningitis. News of his death came in a cablegram from his brother, Lieutenant Robert Kuykendall of the 347th field artillery, to a brother in Eugene, W. A. Kuykendall. The message announcing the death came simultaneously with another telling of his very serious illness.

broke out. He received his medical education at Cooper medical institute, affiliated with Stanford university, graduating in 1912. In the summer of 1917 he undertook the formation of the ambulance unit, which went to Camp Lewis with 125 University of Oregon and Eugene men in its personnel, in January of 1918. The captain was the son of Dr. W. Kuykendall and Mrs. Kuykendall of Eugene. He was a graduate of the University of Oregon in 1908, where he made a record as a football and track man. He played quarterback on the varsity team for three years and in his senior year was judged all northwest quarter. He was a varsity track man for three years, being elected captain of the team in his senior year, when he also helped "Bill" Hayward coach the team. He was a member of the athletic council and later an alumnus member of the same body.

Among the new business arrivals in Salem is the Salem Auction House, under the management of Messrs. Currie & Satterlee, who have leased the building formerly occupied by the Independent Meat Market on Commercial street and will be opened for business the latter part of the week. Mr. Currie is recently from Alberta, Canada, where he has been engaged in this line of business for a number of years, while Mr. Satterlee has been located in Salem since last June. The building will be remodelled for their use, and they will engage principally in the handling of bankrupt stocks, holding a public auction twice a week. Later they will handle household goods, tools, etc., and at the same time will make a side line of stock sales in the vicinity of Salem. As a clearing house for all classes of merchandise the house should become a very active factor in Salem.

OLEO MANUFACTURERS TO PAY $500 LICENSE

Local Retailer Will Only Have To Pay $25 Fee Instead Of $100 First Suggested.

The famous oleomargarine bill, which was supposed to put a crimp in the business in this state and to save the butter-making industry, managed to pull through the senate, but when it came to the house, the radical provisions in the bill were trimmed about 50-50.

The object of the bill as first introduced was to make it so expensive for wholesalers and retailers to handle oleomargarine, and butterine and renovated butter, that the price of the butter substitute would materially advance and thereby indirectly force the public to buy the genuine butter.

When the pruning knife had been applied in the house the following changes were made in the senate bill: Manufacturers instead of being obliged to pay an annual license of $1000 will now pay $500. Wholesalers who sell oleomargarine or any substitute, instead of $300 a year, will pay $250. The local retailer, instead of an annual fee of $100, will pay $25. Hotels and restaurants need pay only $5.00 a year for serving the substitute and boarding houses the same.

All that is needed to make the bill a law is the approval of the governor. The Portland delegation fought the bill, claiming that it would put out of business an institution that had a quarter of a million dollars invested. As passed by the house and senate, the bill would only tax the big manufacturer $500 a year, which was not regarded by the country members as consenting the business. The whole effect of the bill may be to raise the price of butter substitutes a few cents a pound.

Another senate bill that caused a flurry in the house was one introduced in the senate by Senator Pierce. It provided that the state give each returning soldier $25 a month while he was finishing his education in one of the big state institutions.

The educational committee, of which Mrs. Alexander Thompson of The Dalles is chairman, turned in an adverse report on the bill, although the referendum was attached, to be voted on at the next election.

Many members of the house did not agree with the educational committee and an effort was made to have it referred to the judiciary or military committee. However, rather than kill it, the bill was again referred to the educational committee, which means sending it back to its sponsors and to those opposed to giving the returning student $25 a month to continue his studies.

Other senate bills passed by the house this morning are as follows: Domestic court relationship bill. This bill passed unanimously. It permits counties of more than 200,000 to establish this court and the bill had the endorsement of the Portland delegation.

A senate bill providing that county treasurers be made the custodian of all school district funds was lost. It was shown that the county treasurer was a poorly paid man and that it would not be right to place on him additional burdens.

Senator Strayer's bill, providing that a pension of any soldier should not be subject to garnishment or attachment, met the approval of the house.

"The city beautiful" and a planning commission for cities, whereby an advisory board is created for city councilmen, passed the house. It creates a planning commission, especially for ideas of the average city alderman. E. E. Smith said: "The average city alderman has about as much idea of the city beautiful as a hog has about a cathedral." Speaking on the same bill Mr. Dennis said: "The planning commission is all right. Many towns are cursed with people who build their garages on the front line of the sidewalk, thereby cutting out the view of their neighbors. I know some towns where people are allowed to have hog pens in their front yards. The bill will prevent both of these abuses. It passed."

Mgr. Walker, of the Salem Kings plant—"The cancellation of government contracts for dehydrated potatoes will make a considerable temporary reduction in the scope of the plants in the northwest. The regular channels of trade will absorb but a limited quantity of this product at present, for the industry is too new to secure an immediate market. Probably the demand for dehydrated potatoes will always be restricted. We contemplate making big extensions in other products in the course of time."

Supt. Myers of the Spaulding company—"We are contemplating additions to our box factory this season that will add about 50 per cent to its capacity. Plans and estimates on machinery, etc., are being considered at the present time. With the prospects of a great expansion of the fruit industry in this valley we foresee that there is going to be a greater demand for box material than our present plant can supply."

J. W. L. Smith—"Oak Ridge school, district 100, has the distinction of being the only one in the county that was immune against influenza during the epidemic. Not a single case developed in that vicinity. By the way, I notice that this school has just organized a standard cooking club, and a number are going into the Pig club work."

L. L. Gilbert—"Our salesmen have pretty well covered our territory in this part of the valley and altogether we have placed 78 Elgin cars during the past week. We have just opened agencies in Linn and Benton counties, sending 40 Elgin cars to the former territory and 30 to the latter."

J. Robertson Brooks—"I've just recently got in from Camp Lewis where I received my discharge from the service, and you can believe the poorest part of Oregon looks good to me after five months in Alabama. Talk about climate—why they had two inches of snow at Camp Sheridan at one time. I was with the 20th engineers and I consider that the finest branch of the service. I wouldn't take anything for the practical, scientific training I got there in bridge construction and that sort of thing. Yes, I expect to remain in Salem for the time being."

Indignant Citizen—"It's about time for somebody in authority to investigate the source of supply of a lot of milk that is being peddled in Salem. I've never visited any of the dairy plants about here, but I have been told that if you was to see the sort of feed put out to some of the cattle you wouldn't want any more milk from a wagon in Salem. I have had milk brought to my house that was so rank with the taste of garbage that it needed a spray of formaldehyde to make it fit for table use. I'd like to know whether everybody in my part of town is getting the same dose, and whether anything can be done about it."

Earl Race—"I am very much interested in a proper celebration for the boys when they come home, but I think they can be given a much more acceptable welcome if the affair is postponed for several months until all the boys get back and have a chance to visit their homes and relatives first."

France again on March fifth, Secretary Tammuly stated, and is making plans to clean up all executive business by that time. Other telegrams pledging support and expressing the belief that the country will approve the league of nations plan poured into the white house. Some particularly praised the president's speech at Boston yesterday. The president was at his desk shortly after 10 o'clock this morning. No appointments other than the cabinet meeting for this afternoon had been arranged. It was announced that the president will march in and not simply review the parade for returned fighters Thursday. No definite date has been set, Secretary Tammuly said, for the president's conference with governors on the unemployment situation, but the president is anxious that this be arranged. However, it may be postponed because of the fact that many governors are now closing up the work of state legislatures. No final decision has yet been reached by the president as to whether he will address a joint session of congress on the league of nations, Tammuly said. Neither has he decided the question of a special session.

PRESIDENT SIGNS (Continued from page one) ordinary degrees President Wilson today stated he was "confident that the people of the country will rally with practical unanimity to the support of the league of nations." The president expressed this belief in a telegram to Theodore E. Burton, president of the League of Nations Union, New York city. Dispatch of this message was practically the president's first act upon returning to his office. It was in reply to a message from Burton pledging support to the league. Plans to Clean up Business The president desires to leave for
