Recommends Clover Crop As Excellent Soil Builder

Manager W. T. Jenks, of the Willamette Prune association, whose vision runs far beyond a carload of prunes, introduced the reporter to a bag of sweet-clover seed; and the reporter remarked that if it tasted as good as it smelt it ought to appeal to farm writers. Mr. Jenks went on to say:

"So far as I know, there has been very little attempt to introduce sweet-clover into this section as a cover crop; and yet it is advocated as one of the best soil builders known. This is one respect in which the farmers and orchardists of this valley are away behind—the use of fertilizers and soil-builders. There are orchards here that have been in cultivation for 25 years or more, with practically no attempt to build up the humus content or restore chemical salts. Some of them on the high knobs have been leached out so long that it would be almost impossible now to start a cover crop; but such a crop should be turned in every few years. Along with this should go a treatment with commercial fertilizers. If the Experiment Station at Corvallis has men who know all that they are supposed to know about soils, they should have put one in this district to demonstrate this matter to the growers.

"It is impossible to procure enough of the ordinary compost fertilizers in this country, and the farmers have got to resort to commercial products. One of the most effective is nitrate of soda, which has been used a good deal in this district. Yes, it is expensive, it costs double what it did before the war—more than $100 a ton—but it is a profitable investment for the grower even at that price. It is such a concentrated chemical that one pound to the tree would be enough in most orchards.

"Sweet-clover is a biennial plant, rather weedy in structure, which will grow on almost any soil. It produces an enormous root and is claimed to be even superior to red clover in the production of nitrogen. It often grows to a height of four or five feet if allowed to mature, and is as tender in its texture as alfalfa. In some parts of the country it is used for a hay crop, but owing to the fact that it has a bitter taste it is difficult to induce stock to eat it. Its best rewards can be obtained from it as a cover crop; by plowing it in the second season while it is still young. Probably there is not a tract of worn out soil in the Willamette Valley that could not be improved if not completely restored by this process."

London Scene Of First Nation-Wide Congress Of Capital And Labor

London, Feb. 27.—The first nation wide congress of capital and labor was held in Central Hall today in an attempt to work out a program that will avert threatened industrial warfare. The labor representatives in the congress are members of regular trades unions. While the meeting was going on, miners' representatives were holding a conference to determine the exact date of their strike, which already has been voted by a referendum. The miners were said to be deadlocked, although a majority of them were understood to favor calling the strike on the original date March 15.

Their executives were delaying decision, hoping to persuade them to postpone the strike to March 22, thus allowing the parliamentary investigating committee to present its report on the mining situation.

Premier Lloyd-George has promised that the commission will report by March 20.

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS

(By DOCTOR WATSON)

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread every where, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets of double strength, and called them Anuric Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anuric Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.
