The late war. Today he is sending out to the teachers throughout the county, letters asking the number of men from each school district who were in the war. When he has this information from the teachers, he will send them the proper blanks and questionnaires which are to be filled out by the men who were in the service, or their parents. By working carefully over each school district aided by the teachers, it is thought that the name of no man who was in the war will be overlooked.

George Vick is home from Kansas City where he was called by the Ford-son people to meet with other Fordson agents from all parts of the world. He brings the news that the Fordson plant is now turning out about 1000 tractors a day. Also that the firm of Vick Bros. will continue as Fordson distributors for the entire state of Oregon and for the southern part of Idaho. For the Idaho territory the allotment is 250 tractors up to next August. The price on Fordson tractors will remain the same, $975 delivered in Salem. As to the rumor that Henry Ford was working on something different in the way of a touring car, Mr. Vick said there was a number of rumors, but the big men from the factory would give the agents no definite information. However, there was a feeling that something startling was likely to happen about next summer in that line. While back east, Mr. Vick had the pleasure of going through several real Kansas blizzards and riding a few thousand miles in a snow bound country.

The onion market is excited all of a sudden. The Texas crop is a little late and the same is true of the California crop and all of a sudden there is a shortage in onions. In Oregon it is said there is but 25 car loads. Hence within the past week the market price wholesale, has jumped from $1.50 a bushel up to $3.75 and $4 a bushel. With this high price, market men predict that the consumption of onions will be materially reduced. It has been noted that when any of the old standby food soars a little too high, the good housewife just refuses to buy.

A somewhat new experience was in store for the thousand or two people who went to the armory last evening to hear the famous French players. They were met at the doorway of the armory by a soldier with a gun. This boy permitted the people to drift in by twos and threes, even when there was no special crowd standing in the vestibule. As a result a number of people and at times, quite a crowd extending out on the sidewalk, were obliged to stand out in the rain, before being permitted to get on the inside.

Some people say they do not like Charlie Chaplin, but judging from the crowds last night at the Liberty, these folks are in a mighty small majority. And then after seeing him in "Shoulder Arms" one of his greatest efforts, it would have to be a most awfully grouchy person who could not get a dozen hearty laughs, especially when Charlie is camouflaged as a tree and properly administers the knock out to intruding Germans. And then the scene in the dug out, half filled with water, introduces something entirely new in the movie picture stuff. It's a great movie and those who remember Char-

Picked Up On The Street

IVAN MARTIN—I had pretty good luck with my bills in the legislature, though I regretted I couldn't get the bill on gas out of the committee, putting the gasoline standard up to 38. The oil companies fought that hard, and they fought it in a dirty way, too; just as they did similar bills in Washington and California. Among other things they put up fake telegrams here to make it appear that the other states were opposed to such enactments. I have a letter from Chas. E. Johnson, superintendent of weights and measures for California, and he shows that the oil companies adopted the same obstructive tactics there. He goes on to state that no concern on earth is so much a law to themselves as the oil crowd, who propose to obstruct or circumvent all regulation in California there was an attempt to make a minor change in the production of distillate, which would have increased the production cost one-half mill to the gallon. The oil companies threatened that if the regulation was enforced they would add two cents to the cost of distillate.

JOHN GRABER—I am already making preparations for the band concert season of 1919. I expect to have most of the old players back and hope to have some new ones. Steelhammer will be back from the shipyards to take the lead. Those of the boys who have been playing with the army will be in good condition to take up the work when they get back, for in the service they not only play military and ragtime stuff, but are made to handle classic and grand opera numbers in their camp concerts.

HAROLD COOK—We are planning to organize one troop of Boy Scouts from the older boys of the city—from 15 to 18 years old—and arrange for a program of hikes, athletic and camping stunts that will attract the ones who have got a little beyond the "kid" stage. With five troops in the city and a lot of business men behind the movement we hope the Boy Scouts will be one of the liveliest things in Salem. All the 18 year old boys who make good in the work will be eligible to become assistant scout masters.

ICONOCLAST—If I had a boy in high school and he was set to block out a sample state constitution, and he made such a ball-up as there is in the Oregon constitution as to the governor and secretary of state, I'd take him out of school and put him to chopping wood and say—there goes nothing. Oregon is notorious for 'cross 360 degrees of latitude for its darn-fool legislation, and this is one of the funniest hinks in the whole business. I don't know this man Oleott; he may be as broad as Irish brogue and as clean as Sunday school fruit punch; but as long as we're trying to run a democracy and not an autocracy, I claim there isn't any logic in shouldering any one man with the prerogatives and the income of two offices—to say nothing of the chances to play politics. And the funny thing is that neither Oleott nor the supreme court seems to know exactly how the thing stands.

AGENT COLEMAN—of the Federal Employment Bureau—There has been some doubt as to whether the federal employment bureaus should be continued this season, for there has been strong opposition brought to bear upon the bill providing for appropriations. It is said that a lot of it is due to the regular employment bureaus. The service has proven a valuable help throughout the past year, and is just as important now during the reconstruction period. There is a constant inquiry here for farm hands, loggers, etc., and many calls for places, including a number from returned soldiers. I have just received a copy of a telegram sent by Director General Denmore, at Washington, to Wilfred E. Smith, the state director in Portland, which reads: "While urgent deficiency bill with employment service appropriation failed of passage today, there is every indication that funds necessary to carry service to end of fiscal year will be available as well as funds for next year. Advise your force accordingly."

County School Superintendent W. M. Smith has been appointed county historian to aid in securing the names of every man in Marion county who was in the services of the country during Journal. As the Ladies Home Journal now receives $7500 a page for one issue of the magazine, it is felt by business men here that Mr. Boyd should have something of interest to say as to the value of national advertising and why big business will pay $7500 a page just for one issue of the Ladies Home Journal. As the Pheasant Northwest Products Co. of Salem is one of the big advertisers who is willing to pay this figure, business men are especially interested.

The Rev. James Elvin, formerly pastor of the First Congregational church is now at Coblenz, Germany, with the American army of occupation. He is doing religious work with the Y. M. C. Sheriff Noedham reports that taxes are coming in pretty regularly at the rate of from $8000 to $10,000 a day and that this amount shows a very satisfactory payment for this time of year. The penalty of one per cent a month will not be in effect until April 8.

When Ben F. West, county assessor receives the returns from all his deputy assessors and has time to tabulate a few figures, he will know just exactly how many acres in the county are devoted to the raising of Loganberries, walnuts, pears, peaches, apples, prunes and in fact, not only all fruits and berries but the number of acres devoted to regular agricultural pursuits. He is now waiting on the office of the state tax commissioner for the necessary blanks to send his deputies. The state legislature passed a law that required county assessors to secure all this data and to keep the information on file in the office of the county assessors. Heretofore there has been no absolutely accurate record of the number of acres devoted to the raising of the several fruits and berries that are making a world record for Marion county. Last summer county fruit inspector S. H. Van Trump made a partial survey of the fruit interests of the county and from his work, it was found that the fruit interests as well as berry were much larger in the county than had been generally supposed. Hence the bill was put through the recent legislature by which the great fruit and berry interests of each county in the state may be accurately estimated.

The Charlie Chaplin picture at the Liberty has proved so popular that the management decided today to run continuous from the time the theater opened at 3:30 this afternoon until 11 o'clock tonight. This will give those who want to get in at any time this evening a chance to get in early and avoid the crowd. The seating capacity of the theater was taxed to the utmost several times last evening.

Mothers!

An Appeal For Your Children

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the physic that mother insisted on—castor oil, salts or cathartics. How you hated them. How you fought them. How you dreaded their after-effects. That was all wrong, but then nobody knew better.

With our children it's different. The day of harsh physics is over. We don't force the bowels now; we coax them. We have no dreaded after-effects. And the dose is a candy tablet.

Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't know what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender bowels are harmed by them. The modern way is to give a gentle laxative more frequently. To keep the bowels always active. The best method is Cascarets.

Cascarets are candy tablets. Children love their pleasant taste. They cost only 10 cents a box, with full directions for children's dosage at all ages. Babies too! Give Cascarets, then don't worry—they never disappoint.
