simple, but very impressive and touching services, were held yesterday afternoon at the Fust Methodist church in honor of the young soldier dead of Marion and Polk counties. The front of the auditorium was appropriately draped with the national cotors, while the platform hore beautiful clusters of pink and crimson carnations. A quartet of singers from the choir of the First Presbyterian church lead the music, among the other selections being a musical setting of Tennysen's "Crossing the Bar." A group of the frant part of the church while behind them were massed the national guard of Oregon in uniform.
