At a meeting of Red Cross auxiliaries held this afternoon in the Commercial club, it was decided to put on a drive for refugee garments beginning next Monday, March 24. The quota asked of Willamette chapter is 20,000 pounds. It is asked that in giving these garments, care be taken to give something that is really of service. Clothing that is practically worn out and not worth transporting to Belgium is not wanted. The drive this time is again to include not only clothing for children and women but for men as well.

The cry in Salem is for more homes. That is, for the kind of a home that the average person would like to live in, with modern conveniences. One real estate man said that a number of houses have been rented recently wherein the people went into them because no suitable houses could be found and that the modern improvements would be added after the houses had been occupied. And the vacant store building that was so conspicuous about a year ago has disappeared. There seems to be the hum of industry up and down Commercial street and elsewhere and buildings are being improved for renters.

Although 25 members of the Business Men's League of the Commercial club were present last evening to hear the address of Charles R. Archeder on general business conditions, it was thought that this was not a large enough attendance to justify Mr. Archeder in making his talk. For these special meetings of the Business Men's League it is desired that at least half of the members should be present. Hence it was decided that the meeting of last night be postponed until some time in April.

The government internal revenue tax is $1 per $1000 for real estate transfers and this runs into money, according to the receipts of the county recorder's office. Yesterday $16.50 revenue tax was paid on a transfer of a $16,500 farm one mile north of Silverton, when George W. Hubbs and wife sold their 110 acre farm to Hans Jar-genson. There was also paid as a revenue tax yesterday $5.50 in the transfer of a 40 acre farm, valued at $5,150, Harry Hatcher and wife transferred their farm to Frank Grimps and Emma K. Grimps, his wife.

In the Sophomore-Freshman basketball game yesterday afternoon the sophomores won out after a hard fought contest with a score of 15 to 13. The freshmen, stung by the memory of their defeat of the day before, went into the scrap with a "win-or-die" spirit and put up some very pretty stunts. At the end of the first half the score stood 7 to 4 in favor of the sophomores, and up to the close of the game it looked like a tie, the score standing 13 to 13. A couple of fouls, however, put the sophomores in the lead by two points. As a result of this game the sophomores hold the intercollegiate championship for the university, and the freshmen must pull down their names from the grand stand. Gillette, of the sophomores, and Davies of the freshmen, tied for high point men, each having 9 points to their credit.
