Mrs. I. E. Mashburn of 449 South 15th street knows what it means to place an advertisement in the "New Today" columns of the Capital Journal. She had a Toggenburg goat and kid for sale and by some mis-cue the advertisement read "one milk cow and kid for sale." Last night even before she had received her Capital Journal, people began calling at her home asking to see the cow and kid, as it happens cows are in demand just at present. And after the first few callers she was kept busy during the evening and early this morning explaining to would be purchasers that it wasn't a cow but a Toggenburg goat and kid she had for sale. By the time the 15th caller arrived, Mrs. Mashburn hurried to the Capital Journal office to have the advertisement corrected.
