experiment which the bolsheviks are attempting.

If the peace conference permanently adjourns, leaving Russia in the position of an outlawed nation, the benefit to Germany may be very great. Should Russia thus be thrown into Germany's arms by default, the western powers will have given Germany a big advantage in the race for rehabilitation.

PHEASANT COMPANY ASKS CHANGE OF NAME

Capital Of Fruit Juice Concern To Be Increased To Million And Half.

The Pheasant Northwest Products company is a good enough name but it takes too long to get it out when you are in a hurry, and besides, it is too comprehensive. Whether or not these were the reasons for a change of title, the company filed supplementary articles in the corporation department at the state house yesterday, changing the name to the "Phez Co.—a name that has been associated with their products for several years. At the same time the capital stock was increased from 4000 shares to 15,000 shares, at $100 a share, thus making its present capital stock $1,500,000 and ranking it with the greatest institutions in the state.

Consolidation Important.

This change is more sweeping than appears upon the surface. It means that after a long period of negotiations there has been completed the consolidation of all the fruit juice interests in Salem, throwing into a central control the big property holdings and equipment comprised in the storage and bottling plant at Commercial and Trade streets, the bottling works and warehouses at Trade and High streets, and the immense jam and jelly plant opened some months ago at the Southern Pacific depot. In addition to these properties, there is included the fruit juice plant at Woodburn from which a large percentage of the raw product is drawn, and also a plant at Olympia, Washington, which has been utilized in the manufacture of Apples.

This huge centralization scheme is an indication of the immense scope of operations of the corporation, which aims both at facility and economy in production and marketing, as well as world expansion of its trade. It has already laid the foundation for this in its vast advertising system, which carries the name of Salem's products virtually around the world. Full-page advertisements in such periodicals as the Saturday Evening Post are finding their way to every part of the world where the white man has a footing. The time is at hand when the picture of the Mongolian pheasant will be as familiar to the world as the American flag and will carry with it a suggestion of the American spirit at work on the Pacific slope.

As to what the "Phez" organization means to the northwest, it is only necessary to refer again to some very familiar figures, which show that they have invested over a million and a half of capital in plants and equipment, have spent more than $400,000 in advertising, are supporting payrolls aggregating $437,000 a year, giving employment to 300 people at the minimum and 1200 people at the maximum season, and are paying out to the community something like $8,000,000 a year. Added to this, they have challenged the Willamette valley to furnish them the production from 1000 acres of loganberries, 1000 acres of strawberries, and 1000 acres of raspberries, for a period of five years, with prices higher than ever before known.

SOCIETY.

THE first dinner dance of the season will be given tomorrow evening at the Marine hotel. A large number of reservations have already been made and the affair gives promise of being a complete success. These dinner dances have always been greeted by the public with enthusiasm. They are patronized by the most refined element of the city and conducted along lines of perfect elegance and taste. An enviable treat is in store for all who are planning to attend Friday evening.

Numerous Salem people will be glad to hear that Mrs. E. D. Byrd has received a cablegram from her husband, Captain Byrd, stating that he had sailed from France for the states.

Mrs. Louis Lachmund is a guest at the Portland hotel during a brief visit in Portland. Mrs. Lachmund is one of Salem's most prominent society matrons and the wife of State Senator Lachmund, who served the first half of his term in the 1919 session and who was formerly mayor of Salem.

Mrs. Robert Eakin and Miss Gertrude Eakin of Salem are visiting friends in Portland.

Mrs. Mattie F. Beattie, first vice president of the State Federation of Women's clubs, returned Monday evening to Salem after attending the victory loan conference and conferring on recreational matters.

Mrs. Ira L. Howe and little daughter, Mary Elizabeth, of Portland are guests of Mrs. Howe's mother, Mrs. J. S. McDonald. They will probably remain in Salem a week before returning home.

Amateur night at the High tomorrow evening. Which, being translated, means an evening of fun. There may, for all you know, be a Billy Burke or Pauline Frederick in your very midst. There may be a Charlie Chaplin or Robert Mantell riding on the same street car with you every morning or evening. You never can tell unless you try to find out. The merest little gesture some times betokens genius, for instance.

A long time ago when "Biograph" was the word in motion pictures, and blood and thunder stories the sole type produced, a little girl walked into the studio to see her old schoolmate, Mary Pickford, alias Gladys Smith. D. W. Griffith who was directing Miss Pickford at the time, saw a fortune in the visitor's face and hired her offhand. Today she is his star actress, leading woman in all his large productions and holding her own with her former schoolmate in the hearts of movie fans. None other than Lillian Gish.

A few years ago this same D. W. Griffith, on his way to his office, saw a little "Blonde" girl with wide eyes, swinging on a gate. Today she is known to the world as "Bessie Lane" one of the most adored ingenues on the screen. Mary McLaren, it is said rose to stardom by slapping a man's face so resolutely that she attracted a director's attention. On such small trifles, it would seem, hang fame.

Mrs. Gene Simpson of Seattle is the guest of friends in the city.

John McNary, attorney from Salem and brother of Senator McNary, is spending a few days at the Seward hotel in Portland.

A meeting of all the women of the First Presbyterian church will be held in the church parlors tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The purpose is to become better acquainted and to plan for more efficient work in the church.

A WOMAN'S TESTIMONY

Mrs. Ettie Warren, a farmer's wife of Emmitsburg, Md., openly declares how she has found health through reading a newspaper advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So great is her relief after fifteen years of suffering that she asks to have this information published.

W. S. Campaigners Make Use Of Jack London's Opinion

"The difference between a civilized man and a brute is the difference between a full and empty belly," Jack London wrote once upon a time.

This saying of the famous writer has been quoted in the literature now being sent out by the Marion County War Savings Stamps committee as an argument that one should save money and therefore become a more civilized person, always having plenty to eat. All on the supposition that if one saves money and always has some money, no one would become a brute, or in the modern language, a Bolsheviki.

The campaign for War Savings Stamps for 1919 is now on and literature is now being sent from the office of W. M. Smith, county superintendent. This literature makes an appeal to all to buy War Savings Stamps in order that Marion county may secure its 1919 quota.

In the letters mailed this week to stores, offices and where a number are employed, a plaided poster is enclosed which one is asked to sign, agreeing to pay a certain amount each month in the purchase of War Savings Stamps. Marion county fell down on its quota for 1918. Hence a special effort will be made to bring the county up to standard this year. The appeal is made not only on the grounds of patriotism, but from a plain business standpoint, that the person who saves money is an all around better citizen than one who spends all his income.

The committee appointed to handle the War Savings Stamps campaign for this year is as follows: W. M. Smith, chairman; August Harkstein, Ben F. West, E. T. Barnes, Hal D. Patton and A. A. Lee. As chairman of the committee, the clerical work falls on W. M. Smith.

Commercial Club To Offer Novel Program Wednesday. What promises to be something really different for the members of the Commercial club, is the evening's program, business talks and banquet to be given at the club auditorium next Wednesday evening. In the past, it has been quite customary for a Commercial club meeting to include a lot of uninteresting addresses and then nothing to do but to go home after it was all over and not very much accomplished, and nobody especially pleased with the evening. J. Greenbaum, chairman of the special department, cooperating with T. E. McCloskey, manager of the club, now announces that there will be something worth while at the Wednesday evening meeting. In the first place, there will be no soliciting of funds nor any one asked to dig into his pockets or any thing of the kind. It's to be a social affair and not a financial struggle nor will there be any surgical operations of separating the members from any ready cash. The auditorium has a real stage and proper curtains for real entertainment and Mr. Greenbaum promises there will be some genuine entertainment. For the members who come, it is to laugh and not to be loaded down with too many cares of business nor the small details of the Commercial work. The Wednesday evening meeting, which is open only to bona fide members of the Commercial club, will be the first of a series of monthly meetings in which genuine efforts will be made to drive dull care away. And then after the features of the evening in the way of entertaining, a banquet will be served.

THEY STAND THE TEST OF HARD WEAR. 4275 miles is the distance walked by H. M. Foreman on one pair of Neolin Soles. Mr. Foreman, who is a postman in Allentown, Pa., says "The shoes with Neolin Soles gave me continuous service for 9 1/2 months, during which time I averaged 18 miles a day. Ordinary soles last me about one month." If you are hard on shoes, follow Mr. Foreman's example and buy them with Neolin Soles. These soles are created by Science to be especially tough and durable. Therefore, Neolin-soled shoes wear a long time, and so cut your shoe bills down. Good shoe stores carry them in many styles for men, women, and children. And have your old shoes re-bottomed with Neolin Soles. Remember—they are comfortable and waterproof, also. Neolin Soles are made by The Good-year Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio who make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels. Neolin Soles Like 'em Old London, March 18—(By Mail)—Sina Feiners show a remarkably antediluvian taste in firearms. Lord Arran of Louth made a hobby of collecting antique weapons of warfare, with which he adorned the walls of his mansion. The collection comprised two rifles, two shotguns, several swords, daggers and bayonets, all ancient curios. While the noble lord was away from home Sina Feiners raided the mansion and got away with every ancient weapon they found hanging on the walls.
