

Millions of Catarrh Germs Afloat in the Air

Atmosphere is Laden With Germs of The Disease.

Every person afflicted with Catarrh releases millions of the tiny disease germs with every cough or sneeze, so that whenever in the street, care or street or other public place you see a person afflicted with this disease hacking and coughing and sneezing, everyone in their vicinity is exposed to the disease.

You along with everyone else will find yourself exposed to the germs of Catarrh several times every day. The germs multiply by the millions, and the air you breathe is thick with those tiny little disease demons that cause so much distress and suffering.

Catarrh is one of the most stubborn diseases, and is always worse in cold, damp and disagreeable weather. It should not, however, be considered incurable, though there are thousands afflicted with it who are doubtful ready to believe that a cure is impossible, because of their experience.

But like all other afflictions, the trouble is that Catarrh is easily understood, and therefore treated in the wrong way. Because these little germs always attack the delicate membranes of the nose and throat, choking up the air passages and irritating the tender lining of the nostrils and bronchial tubes, the average sufferer makes the mistake of treating merely the symptoms of the disease, and overlooks its cause. You must realize that Catarrh is more than a mere local irritation that stops up your nose and irritates your throat and chokes up your breathing apparatus.

Your blood is saturated with Catarrh germs, and these will continue their irritating attacks as long as they remain in the blood.

The only sensible treatment, therefore, is the one which will rout the disease germs from the blood.

This is why the most satisfactory remedy for Catarrh is S. S. S., the famous old reliable blood purifier. S. S. S. has been used successfully for Catarrh for more than fifty years, and it is the one remedy that attacks the source of the disease, cleansing the blood thoroughly, and eliminating from it every trace of disease germs.

If you want a remedy that goes direct to the seat of the disease, begins to take S. S. S. to-day, and throw away your atomizers and other local treatment that cannot possibly reach your Catarrh. You will be delighted after giving this remedy a trial, and will soon find yourself on the road to a complete recovery. S. S. S. is sold by druggists everywhere.

Begin its use to-day, and write for free medical advice about your own individual case. Address Chief Medical Adviser, 103 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.—(Adv.)

LOCKLEY TELLS TALES OF YANKS IN FRANCE

Press Correspondent And "Y" Worker At Front Relates Experiences.

Fred Lockley, who has endeared himself to Yanks and polks on the other side by his hand-to-hand fellowship in the field, and to readers throughout the northwest by his war sketches, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the men's club of the First Baptist church last evening. Between thirty and forty guests were at the tables, with H. S. Gile acting as master of ceremonies. Following the establish Mr. Gile led in a series of reminiscent talks, harking back to the time 25 years ago when he and Lockley and one or two other Salem men were associated to gether in the state Christian Endeavor work. And along with this were anecdotes of the war.

Got Close to Front. Later in the evening, facing an audience largely made up of old friends and acquaintances in Salem, Mr. Lockley continued a running account of experiences and observations on the fighting lines in France with special reference to the Y. M. C. A. contingent. It was very much the same sort of "yarn" he would give to a knot of friends on a street corner, and while he placed no particular emphasis upon the capital "I," two things were filtered out through his narrative—that he had gone into the fighting zone in his dual capacity as writer and "Y" man with the same indifference to Boches and sudden death as marked the men in the trenches; and that he had proven himself the rare sort of "pal" who gets next to the rank and file by sheer force of personality.

Defends Work of "Y." Lockley saw the best and the worst of the Y. M. C. A. work in France; he saw the field men "sking the same chances as the fighters; he saw them putting in 18 hours a day and enduring every form of hardship in order to minister to the boys at the front; and while out of the thousands engaged in this work there were inevitably many with a yellow streak in them—many who were temperamentally unfit to deal with soldiers—the sum of the things accomplished by them during the war period ought to be sufficient to silence all criticism of the association as a body. He counseled the workers and friends in Salem not to allow themselves to be irritated or prejudiced by criticisms, as time would demonstrate their utter falsity and injustice.

Classes Intermingled. Lockley's narrative, while devoid of superlatives, was made up of incidents that gripped his audience closely, for they were "close up" snapshots of things as visualized by the news gatherer. They told of individual acts of heroism—of self-sacrifice—of nobility distilled out of the roughest humanity by the exigencies of war. He saw the "scrapping" of creeds, the leveling of ranks and the demolition of class prejudices. He saw a soldier who treated as a joke the fact that he wore four distinguished service medals. He told of a duchess scrubbing a "Y" hut floor. He related how a trench soldier threw himself upon a bomb about to explode and shouted to his comrade to "beat it"—and then it blew his body to bits.

Columns might be filled with descriptions of what he mentally photographed in France. Next to the sacrifice of life and the destitution of the refugees, the most pathetic and the most diabolical was the wanton destruction of churches and cathedrals. In closing he made a strong appeal to Americans to finish up the work begun in Europe and to ratify here what had been written in blood there.

Commandant Shaw, of the Old Soldiers Home at Roseburg, was a visitor at the capital today on business connected with his office.

If the rest of Bill Rodgers' Sacramento ball club were as wild as his pitchers, he could dispense with baseball uniforms and decorate his men in broom straw. Ten thousand witnessed the "parade" at Recreation.
Hack Spencer tied up the game for the Bees in the eighth with a three bagger, letting in three men on bases, and placing the score 4 to 4. The Angels came back in the last of the ninth with the winning run. Score 5 to 4.
Seattle, Oakland, Portland and Vernon didn't play. They were all patronizing the Pullmans.

C. B. Clancey returned this morning from a trip to Yakima, Seattle and other Washington points.
