DISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.

The view in Washington is, therefore, Italy will get, instead of Fiume, some other territory which will serve her purpose—a naval station half way between the north and the south end of the peninsula. It is regarded as "reasonable" that she may be awarded one of the islands off the Dalmatian coast. There are many of them that would make excellent stations, it was said.

Endorsement and full support of American farmers to the stand he has taken on an secret treaties is contained in a message sent to President Wilson today by the Farmers National Council.

It was not a mere amusement feature that the Salem public watched at the Oregon theater last night; it was a stupendous object lesson in antipodal ideals and motives. "The Heart of Humanity" is unique in the world of moving pictures in crowding into the space of a few reels the most exquisite and

Owing to the inclemency of the weather the dinner of the "April Shower" given by the pupils of Sacred Heart academy was held in the two dining halls of the academy instead of on the lawn as was at first planned. The "shower" proper begins at 8 p. m. at St. Joseph's hall. This is the first post-tenure affair of the school and every means has been taken to make it a success.

The new members of the Women's Home Missionary society of the First M. E. church, and their husbands, were guests of the society at a delightful party in the church parlors Tuesday evening. The rooms were screened off to represent a parlor and sofa cushions and soft rugs added to the home like effect. Various games were played and a short program was rendered consisting of an instrumental solo by Miss Gaynelle Vandervort, a reading by Mrs. E. C. Miller and a whistling solo by Mrs. C. C. Clark. Dainty refreshments were also served. About sixty guests were present.

"Reporting," says the Portland Journal, "excellent conditions in the Sound region and in Yakima. C. B. Clancy of Salem stopped in Portland Wednesday on his return home. Yakima has gone over the top in the victory loan, according to Mr. Clancy. Mr. Clancy controls the floral industry in Salem, having recently purchased all the greenhouses. He has promised to bring the clerk at the Seward, where he stays when he comes to town, a bouquet every time he visits Portland."

Mrs. and Mrs. Irwin Griffith, who have been the guests of their daughter and son-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Edwards, at North Bend, have returned home.

The Westminster Guild met with Miss Lena Belle Tartar at the Y. W. C. A. parlors Monday evening. The fireplace was hidden behind a big display of dogwood and white lilacs and lilies were also noticeable. The topics discussed were "Mountains and hills," as outlined in the "Path of Labor" which is proving to be a very popular book. All took part in the discussions.

Fred Lockley, who had been given a most urgent invitation by the guild to meet with them after his address at the Baptist church, came, accompanied by H. S. Gile, and gave a brief talk on the women engaged in active war work overseas. Before leaving he was asked what would be the outcome of the deliberations now being held concerning the league of nations. He said that no man knew, but that animosities and racial distrusts that had grown for centuries could not be expected to be wiped out and adjustments made within three months. Patience is required. The Guild was highly pleased with the visit.

Mrs. Leonia O. Peterson sang Newton's "Blossoms in the Garden" and in response to applause sang "Until" by Sanderson. Miss Frances Wrigg sang "Springtime" and "Audacity," the accompanist being Miss Lucile Olson. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. Miss Clara Albert will entertain the guild next time and Mrs. Louise Arthur has the topic "The Negro."

Sunday, after a lapse of some thirty years the members of the H. W. Cooper family met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cooper, 1795 North Front street, to welcome their uncle and aunt Mr. and Mrs. Flavius M'Curry of Rome, Georgia. This is the first visit of the guests to the west and after a sumptuous dinner the party motored through the city and out to the various state institutions. Mr. and Mrs. M. Curry declared Salem to be the most charming city in Oregon.

Those present beside Mr. and Mrs. M'Curry were Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Smith, Louise and Albert Smith of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Cooper and son Taylor of Corvallis, Mrs. Josephine Butts of Corvallis, H. W. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cooper and family of Salem.

The Yonareh bible class of the First M. E. church were entertained last evening by Mrs. E. D. Barton at her home, 508 North 17th street. A short business session was followed by an evening of games and music and the serving of delicious refreshments. Twenty five members of the class enjoyed the hospitality of the hostess.

Mrs. Dorothy Bernard, who is well known to Salem audiences, through her work on the screen and is perhaps best remembered in her pictures with William Farnum and in the role of Jo in "Little Women," is in Portland this week in the popular play, "The Man Who Came Back," at the Heilig theater. Miss Bernard claims Portland as her native city and is receiving a most cordial and enthusiastic welcome there. It is the first time in several years that Miss Bernard has been in Portland and her numerous friends and relatives are vying with each other to entertain the notable visitor. She is sharing honors in many of the informal courtesies being extended to her, with another old favorite in Portland, Irving Southard, formerly with the Baker stock company, who also has many friends here.

Many of the young actress' friends have arranged to entertain in her honor with box and line parties this evening and several supper dances will be included in the program of entertainment for the popular leading man and woman.

wide disorder, have been that of not always receiving their mails promptly as they have been accustomed to. The average man would accept this as a matter of course, enduring this inconvenience as he does all other sacrifices in the service of his country. If he took the trouble to look into the matter he would discover that there had been less disturbance to the service than to any other function of either public or private business, though the additional burdens put upon it were enormous.

Press Influenced Also.
"Most people would be inclined to accept the situation without nervous inquiry or thought and would not be expected to complain or criticize. But if their attention is pointed in a persistent only called to the fact that they have suffered some inconvenience, they recognize this as being true and then may, without due consideration, accept as also true, what persons having a personal motive may say about it. Yet, a very large part of public complaint has been without criticism, it being recognized that some difficulties are unavoidable at such a time."

"But," it was interposed, "the attacks upon you and the department have been very persistent and general throughout the press of the country."

"That is true," Burleson replied, "but I think that for the most part the press of the country has seen nice the rest of the public. Knowing that the postal service has, at times during the war been not as good as they would like it, they have accepted too often the reasons for this given them by those interested in misrepresentation of the facts."

"You speak of private interests; what are they?" the postmaster general was asked.

Parcel Post Fought.
"There are several," he returned, "no one of which would, perhaps, amount to much by itself, but when they make common cause, they can be very effective in increasing any false impression they desire and in giving a trend to public opinion."

"But can't you be more definite as to the motive of hostility?" Burleson was asked.

"Yes. The establishment of the parcel post, which has been of incalculable value to the country, was fought bitterly," he replied, "and I have never been forgiven for having sustained and extended that service. The extension of the parcel post service has been steady and is going to continue. Every extension is still being fought by those whose private interests may suffer from it."

"By a system for estimating the estimating the weight of mail carried by the railroads, the government had for years been paying the railroads much more than they earned by service rendered. The railroads fought with all their power against a correction of this abuse. Finally, however, congress passed a law providing that the government should pay only for the space occupied in cars carrying the mail and the difference in cost to the government is approximately $10,000,000 annually. Naturally, the railroads did not like to lose this large bonus. Consequently I am not popular in that quarter."

Tube People Resentful.
"The pneumatic tubes incubus, where the government was paying millions to private concerns for a worse than useless service, was another thing which, with the aid of President Wilson, we corrected. The pneumatic tube people are aggressive in their resentment—naturally."

"The correction of one evil, for which I cannot claim the credit, contributed, perhaps, as much as anything to the facility with which hostile criticism is circulated. That is the establishment of a new rate on second class mail—published matter—the bulk of which is advertising, which the publishers are highly paid for circulating."

"It cost the government about $72,000,000 more per year than it received in postage for carrying this matter. This, the public had to pay for the benefit of the publishers."

of claims," said Orlando. This was sent directly to Premier Lloyd-George and Clemenceau and indirectly to President Wilson at 3 p. m. A reply came from all three, agreeing to everything excepting awarding Fiume to Italy.

"We asked the secretary who brought the reply what regime had been reserved for Fiume. He replied that he did not know, but believed Fiume would be made a free city. We then telephoned, asking an appointment for the Italian representatives with Wilson, Clemenceau and Lloyd-George to meet
