AUMSVILLE SOCIABLE

It was a perfect night. The stars shown forth in all their brilliancy but not more so than the "stars" which gathered in the Odd Fellows hall in Aumsville last evening.
The Aumsville members of the Turner Victoria Lodge, O. E. S., invited the Turner members over for a social evening, and fifteen from here motored there, the beauty of the scenery and perfume of the flowers along the way adding to the pleasure of the ride.

The hall was beautifully decorated with an abundance of lilacs and each guest was cordially received. Upon the arrival of all tastefully printed, tiny programs which gave the numerous games which were indulged in, were handed each one present. Every game played was a round of merriment, not a dull moment was passed during the entire evening.

But the crowning point was reached when all were invited, after matching for partners, to the carefully laid table where a most bountiful banquet was served. Chicken and rabbit pie, vegetable and fruit salads with whipped cream, hot butter, coffee cake and maple nut ice cream. Eat! It looked as though some had fasted for a week for this occasion. While still seated at the table, T. W. Johnson acting as toastmaster, called on each member for a speech. The ladies for once, allowed the men to do all the talking. It was noticed that many were "too full of oratorical" even some of the ladies being affected.

The Aumsville ladies are to be complimented for the successful social evening which was so thoroughly enjoyed by all. The male members from Turner especially enjoyed the close shave which the lady barbers gave them.

Those who attended for merriment were: Messrs. and Mesdames S. A. Connor, J. H. Shafer, H. A. Thiesse, Jno. Hanson, J. N. Duncan, Mesdames Maudie Jones, Mollie Barr, Eva Palmerston, Emma H. Giddings, and Miss Florence Smith.--Turner Tribune.

WOODBURN WINNER

The Woodburn team treated the local fans to a surprise last Sunday by showing mid-season form when they defeated the All-Nations team from Portland by a score of 2 to 0. It was fully agreed by all old fans of this city that the game was as good as any ever played here by the famous teams that have represented Woodburn in the past. With the exception of the manager every player on the visiting team has appeared here before with different Tri-City League teams.--Independent.

Normal lodge of Odd Fellows held their annual celebration Thursday evening April 24th in their hall here. This year happens to be the 100th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in America and the speaker, W. A. Walker of Springfield, grand master of the state, made an appropriate and fitting talk commemorating the event. Among the many splendid things he had to say about Odd Fellowship was the perfect brotherhood that exists between members of the order. He told how delegates to the grand lodge, coming from the four corners of the nation and naturally at variance on questions of religion, politics, etc. never failed to get together on this great question of brotherhood. The church, he said, could not do this; the North and South Methodist churches were divided during the Civil war times and long after on the question of slavery, and they are just as far apart today on the question of whether the negro should be admitted to membership in the same church with the whites; the mere question of brotherhood. Besides the address of Brother Walker, a short program of music and readings was given. Refreshments, consisting of soft-swiches, pickles, cheese, cookies, sodas, punch, cake and ice cream were served in a most attractive style. An hour of dancing which served to add grace to the young and limber up the joints of those not so young, ended a most enjoyable evening.

the victory bond issue upon the money market has been practically discontinued by the advances on treasury notes. As stated elsewhere the loan will be a great success.

MONMOUTH NEWS

(Capital Journal Special Service)
Monmouth, April 30.--Mrs. Collins, critic of the Oak Point rural center, represented the faculty at chapel last week; thru the medium of reading lessons, poems, motion songs, illustrated and visualized talks given by the children of the school, the splendid work being done by this rural center was demonstrated to the Normal faculty and students. The program was entertaining to all and full of inspiration for students who are specializing in rural school work.

Commencement plans are being rapidly perfected. Dr. W. W. Willard, present incumbent of the pulpit of the First Congregational church of Portland, has been secured to preach the baccalaureate sermon.

Members of the June class have nearly all secured positions for the coming year.
Two more of the Normal alumni, Joe Bell '14 and Tom Ostein '15, have been accorded recognition in educational circles overseas, and have selected to attend English college.

Mr. Gilbreath '17, writes that he and his entire corps of teachers have been re-elected at Silver Lake, Wash., for the coming year.
Patrons of the Elkins school district are well pleased with results gained from their association with the Normal since the school became one of the rural centers. The school board has renewed its contract with the Normal for two years.

Superintendent Goetz of the North Bend schools, was on the campus Wednesday looking for teachers for his territory.
President Ackerman and Mrs. Curran were among the principal speakers at the Polk county Parent-Teacher meeting held in Independence last Saturday.

John Webber, who received his discharge and returned from Camp Lewis last week was in the service nine months and since November was located at Zanesville, Ohio. Here he was engaged in the manufacture of carbon for gas masks. Much experimenting in the making of the carbon was done and it was two months after his arrival at the factory before carbon was turned out for the army in any considerable quantity. Before he left Zanesville carbon of superior quality was being made and stored in hand pound drums, enough being for a consignment to supply a large army for a considerable time. Coconut shells were used for the carbon. John found the soil and dust of the east very disagreeable and was glad to get back to the dear old Willamette valley.

Douglas Parks, a graduate of Monmouth high school and a pre-war student at the Normal, with his wife, sailed on friends and former schoolmates at the high school Monday. Douglas recently returned from France and received his discharge at Camp Lewis. When asked to tell some of his experiences before the school, he declined saying what he remembered best would be hard for him to tell and not pleasant to listen to. He saw a lot of hard fighting in the trenches and said he was trying to forget.

Mrs. J. M. Pember entertained her Sunday school class at her home Thursday evening.
Mrs. J. L. Van Loan received a telegram Monday morning from her son, Richard, dated Sunday April 27, from New York, stating he had just arrived from overseas on the transport Huntington, and would be at Camp Merrill. Richard was a member of the original company L, but was transferred to the 151st field artillery.

Miss Rose Smith, who recently underwent an operation in a Portland hospital is convalescing.
Mrs. Dorothy Beard and infant daughter left Saturday to join her husband in Flavel, after spending several weeks here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Portland.

Mrs. Ida Strong Seggel reports that her husband, Lieut. L. M. Seggel, is still in Germany and at present is acting as judge in cases where our soldier boys disobey army rules. ## Forecast of Better Financial Conditions Fulfilled--Clews

Financial Expert Gives 20 Reasons Why Outlook Is Now Brighter.

New York, May 3.--The belief expressed in these advices for several weeks past, that the improvement in financial conditions would result in more activity and higher prices in the money markets has been amply justified. It may be worth while to summarize these improvements, which have been multiplying in number and force since the middle of February, when the financial district first began to breathe the inherent strength of the business situation in the United States and that the form of the tide had been checked. These are the principal factors in the present situation:

1. Belief of business from pressure on war conditions.
2. Signing of peace treaty only a matter of setting final details.
3. End of war loans, and release of money hereafter for legitimate business.
4. Federal taxes have reached the maximum and must hereafter decline.
5. Consequent revival of long deferred enterprise and improvements.
6. Removal of many war restrictions permitting return of foreign and domestic trade to normal conditions.
7. Failure of government price fixing agencies, and return of market prices.
8. Wages have been generally adjusted and the crisis induced by high prices is long gone.
9. Prospects of better understanding between labor and capital.
10. A season of great agricultural prosperity is anticipated, meaning good business for the west and south and in turn should stimulate rail and other traffic in both sections.
11. Building is sure to be much more active owing to urgent demands for housing and office room which have often put rents up to excessive rates.
12. Railroad, will be large buyers of public securities and cars to offset their war and recent economies.
13. A special session of congress is expected in latter half of May. The house promises to be more conservative than its radical predecessor; that is a brighter outlook for the war and smaller legislation.
14. Public opinion is becoming less hostile to public service corporations, and that, despite a bad situation in local markets, the chance of securing the transportation to offset higher wages and other expenses is much improved.
15. Foreign trade is expanding satisfactorily. March exports being $605,000,000, or $82,000,000 more than a year ago. Imports reached $237,000,000, or $25,000,000 in excess of the same period of 1918. The outlook for export trade is decidedly encouraging, and we shall soon have to ship large quantities of cotton, copper, oil, steel and other products to satisfy the insatiable necessities of devastated Europe. South America and Asia will nibble liberal buyers in our markets.
16. Now that the black list and the economic system have been practically abolished with all countries except Germany and bolshevik Russia, expansion will be more rapid and upon more natural lines; always remembering however that the buying power of the warring nations has been gravely impaired, and that our exports will chiefly depend upon our ability and willingness to give credit.
17. Commodities, wages and credit have undergone a high degree of inflation, while securities have almost entirely escaped. This disparity will naturally have to be adjusted, either by deflation at one end or inflation at the other; or possibly through both, until a more normal balance is reached. Inflation of securities was of course prevented by monetary restrictions; also by the extraordinary necessities attending all profits whether of railroads, industries or public utilities. War profits were never really reflected in market values. The outlook however now is that the railroads will do better; that many of the industries will make larger earnings, and that even public utilities have a better chance of fair play.

18. The mania for government ownership is at a lower ebb than at any time since its birth. Through costly experience, also by deterioration in service of railroads, steamships, telegraphs and telephones, the country has gained lessons of inestimable value in socialistic theories. Heavy as have been the losses thus incurred, they have probably saved us from far more serious consequences had these properties been permanently taken over by the government.

19. Our security, money and foreign exchange markets, have been almost completely restored to natural freedom by removal of artificial war restrictions. This affords more freedom and safety for personal judgment than was possible when transactions were subject to the prejudices of inexperienced or incompetent public officials.

20. The new congress should be brought to realize that government extravagance and unnecessary expenditures must stop. The whole world must and will economize for some years to come before it can fill the vacuum of ordinary necessities, of which this country is the only nation possessing a surplus. Herein lies much of our present great good fortune.

Reasons for Discrimination
Such in brief are the elements upon which the present advance in the stock market is based. Naturally confidence in the future is widespread, and among business men generally there is a belief that the country is facing a period of prosperity lasting one or two seasons. There is danger of optimism running to injurious extremes after such a long period of rigid repression, but there is no immediate prospect of such development. As a rule stocks are firmly held and there is no general disposition to let go at present prices. There is probability of increasing speculative activity, which means more liberal profit taking and sharp reactions following unfavorable news. Such symptoms have already developed in a few of the industries which advanced most rapidly, and buying has partially shifted to hitherto neglected issues, including the railroads which thus far have shared slightly in the general improvement. Bonds with their fixed returns, and facing stiff rates for money, have received relatively little attention in comparison with stocks that promise increased returns.

Monetary Outlook
The money market is firm and will bear close watching, since the banks may at any time see fit to curb excessive speculation by curtailment of credit. It should also not be forgotten that we must prepare ourselves for extending very liberal credits abroad, because Europe needs large quantities of food and other products for which she cannot pay in either goods or gold. Our supply of the latter is so redundant that we do not wish to enlarge it; consequently there is no other course but that of giving long credits, or investing freely in foreign enterprises which would still further strengthen our position as a creditor nation. Fortunately the cessation of bond issues and the eventual drop in taxation will place us in a most favorable position for aiding Europe in this respect. The Italian crisis, regrettable as it may be, has not yet proved a stock market factor. The effect of
