The Salem lodge of Elks is after the 1920 Elks state convention. At a meeting the other night there was a strong feeling that Salem should have the 1920 state convention and that there should be sent to Klamath Falls a live delegation to press the claims of Salem. The first state convention of Elks was held in 1918 in Portland and the second will be held in August of this year at Klamath Falls. It is understood that Pendleton and Marshfield may put in claims for the convention and that if Salem wants it for 1920, a strong delegation should be sent to Klamath Falls when the place of the 1920 convention will be selected.

Entrants for the various bicycle races to be pulled off tomorrow morning have been somewhat slow in coming to the front, and the boys and girls should speed up if they want to get in on the list of prizes. At last reports between 20 and 30 contestants had filed their names. Probably there will be a grand rush toward the end of the day. Out of this list there is bound to come a bunch of speedy youngsters who will make the event interesting. The old "scorer" who has grown grey on the bike thinks the promoters made a mistake in confining the races to the boys and girls. There should have been a prize or two for the old sports from fifty upward, and he can name at least one man on the other side of the "deal line" who can make a half mile look like a tape measure.
