Dance at Armory Saturday night.

Among recent visitors on the university campus were Lieut. James D. Fletcher, a former student of the law school, who returned last month from service in France, where he took part in some of the great offensives, including the Argonne Forest, where he was wounded by machine gun fire. Another visitor is Vernon Kloster, who has been with Company M in France since 1917 and recently arrived in Portland.

It is understood that the fruit and berry interests and canneries in the city were under the impression that the Fourth of July celebration was to include Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the first week in July. It was felt that a three days celebration would seriously interfere with such interests at a most critical time. According to an announcement made yesterday from the Commercial club, the celebration of the city is scheduled for the Fourth only. It is understood that on the evening of July 3, Thursday, the War Mothers will give a reception to the returned soldier at Marion square of the armory. The home coming staged by the War Mothers will continue over into Saturday and the Saturday program will be mostly for the boys and those immediately interested in their return.
