German Press Continues
Attacks Upon President

Berlin, May 17.—The German press is continuing its virulent attacks on President Wilson whom it blames for the "sovereignty" of the peace terms.

"Wilson, whom we praised so much, has become a statue of brass, on the base of which may be written 'Germany's executioner,'" was the typical comment of the Deutsche Zeitung.

"This disgraceful peace is Wilson's peace," said the Tagliche Rundschau. "He deceived us, hating Germany with an Indian hate—this man who was re-elected president, thanks to German-Americans, through the connivance of our foreign office. If the American people consent to such peace all books referring to American faith, honor and loyalty must be banned from our schools."

Another motor mail route out of Eugene has been practically assured by the county court agreeing to improve the pebble road north of Coburg so it will be possible all the year around.

Because she has twice been called a "Han" and finds it difficult to secure work at her profession as a nurse, Miss Elizabeth Rosegarth of Spokane has asked that her name be changed to Lenox.

MISSIONS SUBJECT OF JUBILEE PROGRAM

Presbyterians Discuss Extension Work At Anniversary Meeting.

Continuing the Golden Jubilee season of the First Presbyterian church, an interested audience last evening listened to two inspiring addresses on the past, present and future of missions as carried on by the Presbyterian church. The speakers were Mrs. Geary and Mrs. Seeler, both of Portland and both identified with the Pacific Northwest Board of Missions. The former gave an extended account of the work that had been done throughout this region during the past fifty years through the woman's missionary societies. The latter dealt with the needs of the present hour and the great problems that would confront the churches in the coming years. She especially emphasized the fact that there was plenty of work for the societies in the rescue homes of Portland as well as in many of the rural centers. She did not hesitate to say that nowhere in girl life than in some of the rural centers of Oregon. Quoting figures from people in charge of rescue work in the larger cities of the northwest, she showed that from 15 to 50 per cent of the cases dealt with were girls of school age, and that a large proportion of them came from the rural districts. Furthermore, she branded the public dance and the low grade picture show as the chief causes of delinquency.

The program of the evening was filled out by a vocal solo contributed by Miss Ada Miller, and a brief address by Rev. H. T. Babcock, who is reuniting in Salem over the Sabbath.

Tonight there will be a surprise entertainment provided for the church by the young people, which will be in the nature of a reception for visitors and new members.

Tomorrow there will be special features both morning and evening. Mr. Babcock will be present and may be induced to make a brief address in the morning service. The evening will be largely filled up by the beautiful musical service by the choir, which will include both vocal and instrumental numbers.

Following is the program to be rendered:

Prelude—Marche Nuptiale—Mendelssohn
Piano and Organ.
"The Lord Is Exalted"—West
"Let Us Return"—Galbraith
Choir.
"The Lord Is My Shepherd"—Liddle
Miss Joanna James.

D. W. Griffiths'
"The Girl Who Stayed at Home"

You've seen a great many pictures about the war, but how about the girl that stayed at home. Mr. Griffith has builded a wonderful picture around those girls who suffered alone.

chance of getting across. The NC-3 is the favorite of the mechanics who put the three machines in readiness at Rockaway Beach.

The NC-1 nearly was left behind at the start from Rockaway when she caught fire a few hours before the start and lost one wing and suffered other damages. In 16 hours, however, a two week's repair job was finished and the plane sent up for a test flight. She worked perfectly.

Communication Maintained.
Shortly before dawn today the pioneer aircraft passed beyond direct communication with navy shore stations.

However, the flyers were never out of communication with the destroyers along the route.

Because of almost perfect weather conditions the navy again during the night established new wireless records for distance. The Bar Harbor, Maine, station could hear the seaplane commanders about 1250 miles away talking among themselves.

The trans-Atlantic flyers carried a letter of greeting from Harold Bradlock, director of the war saving campaign committee, to Robert Kindersale, chairman of the British national war savings committee, telling of the $1,000,000,000 in war savings stamps and certificates held by American citizens.

By A. E. Johnson
Trepassey, N. F., May 17.—During the night wireless reports from the American trans-Atlantic flyers became fainter and fainter at the receiving station here. Each was eagerly read by the men who helped Commander Towers with his fleet of Nanctes get away on their air voyage late yesterday.

The radio conversations between the three planes and the station ships were clearly heard at first, but gradually diminished into nothingness as the sky squadron rushed on its way over the sea.

The three planes got away to a perfect start at sundown last night.

NC-4 Takes Lead.
After all had taken the air, Commander Towers, in the NC-3 gave the long awaited word and the trio pointed into the east. The NC-4 on the left wing of the Y shaped formation, was the first to leap into high speed and was the first to emerge above the open sea. On shore little crowds of excited townspeople mingled with American newspapermen and sailors, and gazed intently at the great aircraft as they coasted overhead.

There were no ceremonies at the last.

Then we feel confident you will appreciate that our prices are actually low, not merely apparently so.
