Although the reception at the armory this evening is public and there is no secret work, yet it is not exactly a general public reception for the simple reason that if the general public turned out, there would be no room in the armory for the 1600 Odd Fellow and Rebekah visitors, besides local members of the lodge. Hence it may be said that the reception this evening is not for the public but to the visiting folks and members of the local lodges. The same may be said of the special program to be put on Thursday evening at the hall of representatives. While the program is public in nature, yet it is especially for visitors and not a general public gathering.

The supper given by the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor Union at the Christian church last evening was made a very happy affair, both by the quality of the viands, the sociability and the address of Dr. Daniel Poling. There were about 125 guests at the tables, and they listened with the greatest interest to the informal talk of the visitor, who spoke of the work and problems coming before the society in the reconstruction period. Following the supper Mr. Poling addressed a crowded audience in the auditorium, relating in his own fascinating way his experiences and observations while looking after religious and Y. M. C. A. interests among the American forces on the French front.

Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock about 100 automobiles are wanted for a couple of hours to give the visiting Odd Fellows and Rebekahs a ride around Salem and vicinity. This afternoon fear was expressed that the people of the city who own cars were not responding liberally and that several hundred of the visitors would not be given the chance to see the beauties of the capitol city and surroundings simply because the citizens had not taken the trouble to give their cars for two hours. It is understood that no regular trips have been outlined. As to where the visitors are to be taken, this is to be decided by each driver or occupants. It is requested that those who have not been asked for the use of their cars should respond to the occasion and drive to the Odd Fellows building about 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The visiting delegates have been asked to meet at the opera house at that hour.
