PROGRESSIVES LOSE FIGHT OVER PENROSE

Old Guard Wins Out In Ratification Of Finance Committee Chairman.

Washington, May 27.—(United Press)—By a vote of 34 to eight, senate Republicans in caucus today reaffirmed the election in Senator Penrose as chairman of the finance committee. The caucus was public. The 8 who voted against Penrose were Senators Borah, Capper, Cummins, Johnson, California; Krayon, Lenroot, McCormick and McNary.

(By L. C. Martin)
(United Press Staff Correspondent).
Washington, May 27.—Senate progressives today began their "open air" fight on Senator Penrose as chairman of the finance committee.

Having forced an open Republican caucus—the first in congressional history—to get their anti-Penrose views before the "country," "progressives" urged that the Republican committee lists, agreed upon and announced yesterday be amended by striking out Penrose's name as finance chairman.

They have agreed, Senator Borah said, to abide by the decision of the open caucus, and not carry their fight against Penrose personally to the floor.

The fight on Warren as chairman of appropriations was abandoned some days ago, on the ground that there were "enough men on the committee to see that an economy program is observed."

The continuing fight on "Penrosism" will make clear to the country, Senator Borah said today, that it is a system and not a man the progressives oppose.

"We stand for a system of taxation that will take from those who make big profits and enjoy huge incomes the bulk of the country's prosperity," said Borah.

"We will oppose to the limit of our power any tax measures which do not recognize this principle, or which seek to make those least able to pay, and who are indirectly taxed in other ways, the bearers of an undue share of the tax burden."

DEMPSEY HELD BETTER MAN THAN BIG TEXAN

Sports Writer Says Willard Underestimates Punch Of Challenger.

By H. C. Hamilton
(United Press staff correspondent)
New York, May 27.—In a recent statement Jess Willard is reported to have said that when he fought Jack Johnson he was hit so hard that his jaw bone was cracked and that Johnson punished him so severely about the body that three of his ribs were broken. Jess then added, according to this reported statement, that since Johnson had given him such a pummeling and still did not win, there was little chance that Jack Dempsey would be able to hurt him.

Now Jess undoubtedly is wrong about this. Even if Johnson did break the Willard jaw and ribs he is wrong, for Dempsey's and Johnson's punching cannot be compared. Dempsey hits vastly harder than the negro and he hits with deadly precision, straight to a vital point. If Willard's jaw ever stops a full swinging Dempsey punch the present champion will next get his bearings after the scrap is over, for he certainly will fall for a full count.

The very fact that Johnson hit him high—high enough to break the bone under the temple is proof that Willard did not have to take the kind of a punch that lays boxers unconscious. Rib breaking isn't any more than heart breaking for the boxer who is knocked out by those punches. Many a boxer has gone through a battle with a broken rib. Willard is not the first man who ever did it. The jaw breaking is something else, but it occurs to me that it might make the very cautious champion even more cautious when he steps into the ring with a hard punching, rushing demon like Dempsey.

Willard's reported statement that he could not do any boxing for six months after his affair with Johnson in Havana was followed by the admission that he toured the country showing every one the blows with which he won the world's championship. He boxed in those exhibitions with Walter Monahan and he is reported to have said that Monahan had to be very careful not to injure the broken spots.

Well, Walter undoubtedly was careful with the champion. He didn't hit him any place with any more force than he would have used in breaking an egg, but at the same time it seems Jess would have been in too much pain to have gone through even this much boxing. Undoubtedly the big champion deserves a great deal of credit for his nerve in carrying out the exhibition tour with three broken ribs and a fractured jaw, but how can he compare Johnson's punching, even with the broken bones, with that of Dempsey passes comprehension. Dempsey is the greatest punching heavyweight since the days of Fitzsimmons. Even should he lose to Willard, this fact remains.

Court House Notes

Katie Cox has brought suit for a divorce from Glenn E. Cox. They were married in Roseburg, February 23, 1914, and he deserted in April of 1918, nor has he contributed anything towards the support of his wife for the past year or so. Mrs. Cox asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Katie May Savage. No children or property rights are involved in the proceedings.

Harold W. Kelly has been given a full and absolute divorce from Evelyn Kelly, according to the records of the circuit court.

In the suit of the Hammond Lumber company against the Public Service commission, a decree has been entered in the circuit court that the lumber company is entitled to the relief it sought in the reduction of freight rates. The decree holds that the rate now charged for the hauling of logs by the Columbia & Nehalem River Railway company is a reasonable rate.

In the case of Addie B. Dase versus B. J. Miles and Donald W. Miles, a motion has been filed asking that the case be placed on the docket for trial at the term of court to begin June 2.

In the matter of the four minor children, Kenneth, Wilbur, Harold and Donald Moore, the appraisers of the property involved find the total to be $1541.33. The appraisement was made by Miss Oubata Moore, Mrs. Elida W. Moore and Martin Glasson.

New Taxes Levied By Latest Revenue Law

Collector of customs M. A. Miller, gives out the following information regarding the new revenue law:

The revenue act of 1918 provides increased special taxes upon brokers, pawn brokers, ship brokers, custom house brokers, theaters, public exhibitions, bowling alleys, and billiard and pool tables. It also provides special taxes upon the proprietors of shooting galleries, riding academies and for hire cars. The term broker embraces commission merchants and commercial brokers in stocks and bonds.

These new and increased taxes are effective upon and after Jan. 1, 1919, and the tax for the period of Jan. 1st to June 30, 1919 was, by the law, required to be paid on or before March 25th. However, on account of the delay in preparing the regulations and the congestion in the various offices, the time for payment of taxes has been extended by the commissioner of internal revenue to not later than May 31, 1919, after which date, he will be required to assess a penalty provided by law, amounting to 25 percent of the tax.

The tax on motor boats used for pleasure and of not more than 5 tons, was increased by the same act from $5 to $10 per annum, effective April 1, 1919, and all owners of such boats are required to pay additional tax from April 1st to June 30th. This tax must also be paid by May 31st, to avoid any penalty.

It is hoped that tax payers affected by these sections will make payment not later than May 31st, so as to avoid the assertion of any penalties.

"Martyrs of Yesterday" Historical Film Story

There is being filmed in Portland, Oregon, a drama that is certain to be one of the best and most interesting that has ever been presented to the public. This historic drama is based on the Whitman Massacre of 1847. One scene filmed recently included the Lewis and Clark banquet at St. Louis, showing the rich gowns worn by the lady guests, beautiful table ware in all its brilliancy. Gaily banded Nez Percé Indians are also shown in the background. This instructive picture is being filmed by Mr. Raymond Wells, the author, and Mr. Lewis H. Moonew, head camera man at the studio of the American Lifeograph company at 33rd and Halcyon streets for the Multnomah Film company.

The brave Dr. Marcus Whitman, who left New York State in 1835 and his honesty and bravery will be most interestingly shown in the play.

William, the missionary, was an excellent physician as well and was often called upon to perform difficult tasks. At Laramie Dr. Whitman cut from the back of Capt. Bridger an iron arrowhead three inches in length which a Blackfoot Indian had planted there.

The part of Mrs. Whitman, the beautiful helpful bride, who left her dear ones in Plattsburg, New York, to accompany her husband and assist him in missionary work in the unknown west, will be played by an excellent actress. It is to be hoped that this instructive play may be seen all over America. This drama is entitled "Martyrs of Yesterday."
