I Greenbaum announced this morning. Mr. Greenbaum is director of the social department of the club and is in charge of the entertainment for the monthly meetings. This time he promises two of the leading soloists of the city--young ladies--and then a youthful prodigy in the way of a pianist from Silverton, John F. Steelhammer, Jr. Following in the footsteps of the Steelhammer family in musical matters, the boy, just nine years of age, is said to show remarkable talent. Then after the entertainment, there is the usual talk with a limit of five minutes and then the serving of a real luncheon. At the last meeting there was an attendance much larger than former ones and it is expected that with the new interest now being shown in commercial club matters, the auditorium will be taxed to its seating capacity.

The students of Willamette are now concentrating all surplus time and energy on the rehearsals of various episodes of the grand anniversary pageant several rehearsals being held each day in order to allow them time for this work they have been released from examinations with a few exceptions. Two general rehearsals were held yesterday with good results, as the actors are taking hold of the event in good spirit. There is a degree of recompense in the fact that the time lost from study is made up in dramatic training.

The Willamette Transfer company have recently moved out of their cramped quarters on High street to the Rodgers building at Trade and High streets

Soldiers who have served in the late war are entitled to free membership in the Salem Commercial club, according to recent action taken by the club directors and so far five have availed themselves of the offer. This membership is not honorary, but a real active working membership in which the young soldiers are expected to not only avail themselves of the club and reading rooms, but to attend meetings and to vote as regular members on matters coming before the monthly meetings where a vote is called for.

The audience that greeted Miss Virginia McKinney, of the Willamette school of music, at the First Methodist church last evening, were given a program of piano and vocal selections of the highest character, and faultlessly rendered. Miss McKinney possesses a voice of peculiar resonance and expressiveness, as brought out in a cycle of love songs by Salter, and of a volume seldom found with an amateur. In some of her recitative passages she gives the impression of unbroken equal ability, giving a most brilliant interpretation of the Concerto of Mendelssohn and the Hungarian Rhapsodie of Liszt.

Two strong screen actors, starring in plays that are bound to stir the blood and excite both sympathy and admiration are booked for the Oregon theater this week, Friday and Saturday it is John Barrymore in "The Test of Honor"--the story of a man who was sent to prison by the perfidy of the woman he loved, but who is finally exonerated and wreaks revenge of the most startling form upon the woman and at the same time wins the love of a pure hearted girl. Barrymore is a consummate artist in making up, and he injects a thrill of interest into every movement of the play. He is well supported by the cast, the two leading feminine parts being taken by Marjorie Mason and Constance Binney.

A. A. Miller of Linn county was awarded $1100 damages Wednesday morning in the circuit court for property condemned by Linn county to straighten out the Pacific highway at a point between Albany and Jefferson, about four miles north of Albany. There are two right angle turns in the highway near the Millersburg station and the county wished to straighten the road by clipping off a corner of Mr. Miller's farm. They could not agree as to damages and the suit was brought before the Marion county court.

While there are dispatches carrying the news that prunes have been selling in Portland at 30 cents, dealers here say that the price is not justified by the New York markets. The sudden boost in prices, they say, is due to the fact that some commission men bought too heavy when there was prospect of a larger crop. With the crop only averaging 50 per cent, these men were obliged to cover their contracts at any price. In other words, the 20 cent price is a speculative figure forced by certain interests to cover sales. New York markets today would justify a price of 17 to 18 cents for the 30 to 40 sizes and 45 to 16 cents for the intermediate sizes.

Although no definite arrangements have been made as yet by the Red Cross, Willamette chapter, in regard to practical home service nursing, at a meeting held the other day when Miss Loomis was present, the following plan was discussed: Organize classes in different parts of the city to give instructions in home hygiene and care of the sick. Through these neighborhood classes it is hoped to have one member from almost every family give the fundamentals in home nursing. Then in case of illness, to have visiting nurses in the city who can visit in the homes and assist in the first work of caring for those who are ill. It is thought that
