Coos County Recalls

Watson And Philip

Marshfield, Or., June 5.—C. R. Wade, justice of the peace, a democrat, becomes county judge and Henry G. Kern, banker, foundryman and mayor of North Bend, county commissioner, as a result of an overwhelming landslide in the recall election Tuesday in this county.

The 2-to-1 vote against County Judge James Watson and the 3-to-1 against Commissioner Archie Philip surprised the most ardent adherent of the recall, and the defeat is attributed here to a campaign waged by the Agitator, a free lance paper, that had been after the county court for several years; the Evening Record of Marshfield and the Coos Bay Times, also of Marshfield.

The main charge against the county officials was extravagance and waste of county funds and the good roads money, and in the case of Philip, of assuming regular salaried employment for the county.

O. M. Plummer, one of the public spirited men of Portland was in the city looking for the right man to take charge of the raising of $6000 in Marion county for the Pacific International Live Stock exposition. This amount is the quota given the county. The legislature appropriated money to help along the exposition provided those interested raised enough to put up the building. When completed the exposition building will be one of the largest in the west under one roof.

Ruth Garrison Called By Both State And Defense In Douglas Storrs Trial

Okanogan, Wash., June 5.—The trial of Douglas Storrs, who is charged with unlawful relations with Ruth Garrison, the 18 year old girl who poisoned Mrs. Storrs in Seattle March 18, began in the superior court here this morning.

The little town was filled with curious spectators who have congregated from miles around to get a glimpse of the girl who strangled a death feast and the man for love of whom she took the life of Mrs. Storrs.

Ruth Garrison was brought here yesterday from Walla Walla prison insane ward. She has been summoned to testify for both defense and state.

FAILURE TO DELIVER BERRIES BRINGS SUIT

Phez Company Takes Action Against J. E. Gunsley To Enforce Contract.

With a present market price of 5 cents a pound, growers of loganberries are facing a rather peculiar situation. And this is especially true of those who have contracted for three cents a pound.

And with the present price of labor and the extra figure that will have to be paid for picking, the grower with a three cents a pound contract on hand is facing a serious situation, according to the views recently expressed by men familiar with the loganberry interests.

Several efforts have been made in the way of a compromise whereby the grower with a three-cent contract on hand may be able to at least be paid enough to break even, while he is looking at eight cents a pound offer in the face.

The Pheasant Fruit Juice company filed a suit today against J. E. Gunsley, who owns a loganberry tract in Hollywood addition to Salem for failure to deliver his 1918 loganberries as contracted.

The complaint alleges that the defendant contracted the 1916, 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920 crop for three cents a pound from a three-acre tract of loganberries, estimated at 12,000 pounds annually, and that the 1918 crop was not delivered.

The contract reads that Mr. Gunsley shall deliver the berries to the warehouse of the Phez company, the buyer to be the sole judge as to marketable condition. It is specified in the contract that 50 per cent of the purchase price is to be paid on delivery of the berries, 25 per cent on the following October 1 and the balance on the first of January following.

Upon failure of the grower to fulfill his part of the contract, it is stipulated as follows: "That the buyer may recover of the seller damages for such breach, and its hereby stipulated and agreed that the sum of 1 1/2 cents a pound shall be held to be and fixed as liquidated damages." It is also agreed that in case of suit for recovery of damages, there shall be a reasonable attorney fee.

Complaint Is Answered. Answering the complaint, Mr. Gunsley admits the contract signed July 13, 1916, contracting his berries for five years at three cents a pound. Also that he performed all the conditions of the 1916 and 1917 contract but that the Pheasant Fruit company broke the contract in not paying him on January 1, 1918, for the balance due on his 1917 contract.

Also that he had made repeated demands on the company for the balance due him but that the company would not pay. Thus he gave the company notice, he alleges, that he would be no longer bound by the contract.

In the suit filed today, the Pheasant Fruit Juice company asked for damages of $180 from Mr. Gunsley with $50 attorney's fees for failure to deliver 12,000 pounds of loganberries in 1918. The figure is based on damages of 1 1/2 cents a pound, as provided for in the contract. It was but a short time ago that the

Salem Woolen Mills Store

Pheasant Fruit Juice company brought suit against Elmina Gunsley for failure to deliver 6000 pounds of logans in 1918. On a contract similar to the one signed by Mr. Gunsley, the suit was brought for the maximum amount, 1 1/2 cents a pound as provided. The suit was for $90 and reasonable attorney's fees. The circuit court fixed $50 as a reasonable attorney's fee to bring a suit for $90. Elmina Gunsley made no defense permitting judgment by default.

Compromise Suggested. Several conferences have recently been held between the growers and those who hold long time three cents a pound contracts. There is a feeling that for the good of the loganberry interests of the community, there should be some sort of a compromise between the companies who hold loganberries contracted at three cents a pound and the growers who claim it costs at least five cents to deliver the berries to the Salem warehouses. The standing offer now being made on a cash basis is eight cents a pound. The reason will open up in about four weeks.
