

KIMBALL GRADUATES ARE GIVEN DIPLOMAS

Theology School Grants Degrees To Two At Commencement Exercises.

By E. S. Hammond.
Friday, June 6, at 2:30 p. m. occurred the commencement exercises of the school of theology in the Kimball hall of assembly. The exercises began with a procession as the Kimball chorus marched in singing "Jesus Is Conqueror, Jesus Is King," followed by the academic procession, led by President Talbot, including the guests of who were to participate in the exercises, the remaining faculty and the graduates. The address by Dr. Schuett of Tacoma was a noteworthy one in many ways. His theme was "The Ministry for Our Day." He is an orator of large ability, his thought was beautiful and eloquently expressed, and what he said was practical, modern and inspiring. He urged upon the young men who were graduating that what they were, more than what they said, was the chief portion of their message; that while they were to preach the old truth with the spirit of the fathers, they were to use modern methods and to preach in terms of modern life. He reminded them that while Christianity had destroyed slavery and so war as America is concerned had practically destroyed the saloon, there were two great conflicts before us to which the church must address her self, she must do away with war and poverty. In closing he urged the young men to guard jealously their personal relation with God and he related this incident told by Robert Louis Stevenson. On one occasion there was a terrible storm at sea, and for three days the passengers of a vessel were fastened below decks without food or drink, momentarily expecting the breakup of the ship. On the third day a venturesome passenger came on deck. The waves were mountainous and to him there seemed no sign of relief. But he looked up at the pilot house, and the pilot answered his look with a smile. He rushed back to his imprisoned companions and said to them, "We are saved! I have seen the pilot and he smiled!" So said the speaker, is the minister of God to reports to the storm-bound, distressed voyagers of earth, "I have seen the pilot, and he smiled!"
Dr. Talbot's charge to the class was a timely and virile message from a veteran to the knights just donning their armor.
The graduates were George R. Abbott and John William Worrell.
The singing of the Kimball chorus received much favorable comment. Rev. H. N. Aldrich, pastor of the West church in this city, has trained the young men for two years now, and his training is manifest in the work they do.
The Stone scholarship prize was awarded to John W. Worrell.

Company M To Receive Federal Equipment And Undergo Full Inspection

Orders have been received by the commanding officer of Company M to be prepared for Federal inspection. The inspection is to take place some Monday evening before June 20th, the exact date has not been determined yet. It will be necessary for Company M to turn out in full force every Monday evening from now until time of muster. The reorganization of the national guard is now on in full swing, and the men of the various companies are looking forward to the time when they will be fully equipped and take their regular summer encampments. Now that Salem has been chosen as headquarters for the adjutant general's office as well as battalion headquarters for the Second battalion, Salem will be privileged to witness many battalion drills and maneuvers, according to Captain Hewitt and Lieutenants Rice and Schultz of Company M, the local organization stands every chance of becoming the crack company of the regiment, and are working hard to get full turn outs at drill and all men are notified to be at the armory promptly at eight o'clock every Monday evening.

What Are You Worth from The Neck Up!

Others place the same value upon yourself that you do, as they have nothing else to judge from except—from your appearance.

To make a good appearance you must be dressed right—that doesn't mean any clothes that you may buy, but clothes that you get at Bishop's. They keep the Hart Schaffner & Marx also Bishop's Ready Tailored Suits.

The salesmen are the most expert in helping you to get the clothes that suit your needs—that's their business and they are always pleased to give you the benefit of their experience.

The men of today are paying more attention to the small details of their dress than ever before—it's the seemingly small things in life that make the large ones possible. You may get just the shirt, tie, or hat that you have been looking for here at Bishop's.

Why wait for the new suit longer. It's waiting for you at Bishop's and is guaranteed Virgin Wool. And stocks were never so low in years—there will be an actual shortage soon, as the merchandise manufactured will more than likely be prorated among the merchants.

Late advice from the Southern States is that they are predicting suits to sell from $42 to $60, the stocks of wool suitable bulks very small today.

Home Life Class At W. U. Closes Successful Year

The class in home life in Willamette University, under the direction of Mrs. Alice H. Dudd, has just completed the third semester of its work. The many phases of life in the home, especially those falling directly under the care of women, have been studied and discussed.

Lectures given from time to time by women not connected with the school, have covered a wide range of subjects extending from the most practical questions on the one hand, and upon the other in those unseen forces of the high life which give vision and uplift.

Mrs. Wm. Fleming discussed the proportion of time which the home keeper can justly give to social service. Mrs. A. N. Bush advised the class how to entertain and how to be entertained. This included social observances in one's own home, and in the homes of others. Mrs. Rollin K. Page turned to the note book of her own experience, and told how to prepare a family budget and of most importance, how to follow it.

Preparation of food for the sick and for the well was ably treated by Miss Helier of the Salem hospital. Miss Wishart, of the same corps, gave a short course which was most instructive on the elements of nursing.

Miss Case, of the city library, gave instruction on the purchase and care of books, and also made it possible for the class to examine some rare editions which were for a time on exhibit.

The Deaconess hospital gave an object lesson on the care of the very young child which was highly appreciated.

The regular instructor gave talks on chaperones, clothes, every day courtesy and mothering and motherhood.

Some of the artistic homes in the city have been studied, a rare privilege and greatly appreciated. Among these were the residences of Mrs. Governor Withycombe, Mrs. A. N. Bush, Mrs. R. J. Hendricks, Mrs. H. J. Bean, Mrs. Geo. J. Waters, Mrs. G. O. Brown, Mrs. Wm. Mungart, Mrs. Henry W. Meyers, Mrs. Milton Meyers, Mrs. J. H. Albert and Miss Edith Hazard. From these the girls received many valuable suggestions as to the building and furnishing of a home.

The class and the instructor are deeply grateful to all who contributed in any way to the success of this work.

so vital in its influence on the future of the girls.
