Every member of the Salem Elks lodge received a letter yesterday telling him all about the state convention at Klamath Falls Aug. 14, 15 and 16 and what the Salem lodge intends to do to secure the 1920 state convention. Salem Elks will travel in a special Pullman and the train will be headquarters for the Salem boosters while in Klamath Falls. The regular fare for the round trip is $21 and the Pullman charge where there is one to a berth, $12.50. No dining car will accompany as it was decided at the last meeting of the Elks to take a chance on the Klamath Falls hotels and restaurants. The Salem Elks band will accompany to help the capital boosters make an impression. The special train will leave Salem on the evening of Tuesday, August 22.

Katherine Synneski has been given permission by the circuit court to change her name. In her petition, she alleges that her name is hard to pronounce, and that since her mother's death six years ago she has been making her home with Mrs. Maude Brown and that she has been known as Katherine Brown. Having filed her application some time ago and there having been the proper legal procedure, the court permitted her to legally have the name of Katherine Brown. The only additional legal measure is to have the fact published four weeks in some paper in the county.

Among other trophies displayed by the Salem high school this season are two bronze and silver shields, mounted on antique oak. These have been awarded for the championship in basket ball work both in the Willamette valley series and the university series.

A civil service examination for book keepers will be held in Salem June 25 and any one happening to want service with the government in this line of work might apply to the post office for proper blanks. The work is open to both men and women and the pay is from $800 to $1400. Service will be assigned to the northwest.

Within three weeks the old familiar pink stamp will once again make its appearance and the three cent one, brought on by the war will be relegated to the parcel post service mostly. The two cent stamp will carry the one ounce letter after July 1 and the familiar postal card will travel for the price of one cent. Local letters will continue to require two cents. After July 1, everything in letter postage and card rates will go to where they were before the war.

$25 is the reward offered for any information leading to the finding of Marion Zehner. He is the 15 year old son of S. W. Zehner of Hubbard and left home April 30. From information received a few days ago it was learned that he worked for three weeks at Chitwood, Oregon, leaving there May 24. He has also worked at Newport, Toledo and Elk City under the assumed name of Raymond Miller. The boy is five feet, three inches tall, weighs 110 pounds and wears brown corduroy trousers. Should anyone have information of him, Sheriff Needham should be notified. The boy is trying to find some home where he can work and go to school this winter. It seems that he wanted to go to school and that his father didn't see it that way. Hence he left home, hoping to find some place where he could work and attend school. 6-13

Reports from the rural districts indicate that loganberry picking will be early this year, in some localities as soon as June 20. Just now the call is for pickers and it is estimated that the valley will need from 1000 to 1500 men when the picking is in full operation about July 1. Reports from all large tracts and from all parts of the county indicate a bumper crop of logans. Some firms are advertising a price of eight cents a pound. The picking price still holds at two cents a pound.

The job of serving as postmaster at Marion is now open. There is a little civil service examination to go through with, but the postoffice department figures that no special great amount of book learning is necessary to run a little post office. Hence the examination is what is known as the easiest one so far, a third grade examination. But in order to compete, one must have been receiving mail from the Marion post office at the time the late postmaster Eli Davidson quit. Apply to the Salem post office for blanks. There is no salary attached to the job. The pay depends upon the number of stamps cancelled.
