Among 60 Soldiers in "Y" Service

George W. Perkins, Jr., of Riverdale-on-Hudson, and "Spike" Randall, of 841 Third Avenue, New York, Obtain Transfers to Red Triangle Work Rather Than Quit France and Uniform.

George W. Perkins, Jr., of Riverdale-on-Hudson, and "Spike" Randall, of 841 Third Avenue, New York, have transferred their allegiance from the United States Army to the Y.M.C.A. and have taken up their new duties without leaving France. They are just two of some sixty A.E.F. men, in which force is included John L. Mott, who have obtained transfers to Red Triangle work rather than return to America and lay aside the uniform. George W. Perkins, Jr., is 24 years old and won his commission on the other side. "Spike" is 25 years old and won a Croix de Guerre.

Y.M.C.A. service, but Perkins is just twice as expensive as an employee. "Spike" Randall has been at the front eighteen months. Above everything else, he is a motorcycle rider. He has four wound stripes and one full-size Croix de Guerre which was pinned on him by a French general. He also has a deep dimple in one cheek which he got when some shrapnel hit him on January 20, 1918, as he was riding on messenger duty. Blood poisoning set in and he was forced to spend some time in a hospital.

On August 3, as he was riding near Pore-en-Tardenois with messages from the American command to the French a Boche plane spotted him. He shook his pursuer by going through a clump of trees, but when he reached the French lines he collapsed from a couple of machine gun wounds in the back. When he came to, it was to find the French taking a great deal more interest in searching him for the messages than in looking into his condition, but the French general squared it by decorating him.

John L. Mott is the son of Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the National War Work Council of the Y.M.C.A. He enlisted in Y.M.C.A. overseas work early in 1917, and saw service in France with the organization before going into the army over there. After the striking army over there.

Of Revolt Torn Nations
At Monster London Meeting.

London, June 14.—(United Press).—Lord Cecil, addressing a mass-meeting in Albert Hall last night, declared that both Germany and Russia must be admitted to the league of nations. John R. Clynes, labor leader, also expressed the hope that Germany would be admitted.

At the conclusion of the meeting, which opened a nation-wide campaign in favor of the League of Nations, 10,000 persons stood and pledged themselves to support the league. It was held under the auspices of the League of Nations Union, Viscount Grey presided.

"The present opportunity to build up a new international order is unparalleled in history; future generations will not cease to condemn us if we let it pass," was the dominant note running through all the speeches.

"The league must include Germany and Russia," declared Cecil. "We have a right to insist that Germany shall be given the opportunity to prove her sincerity. The shorter her penitence the more pleased I will be."

"The impression prevails in certain circles that article X of the covenant guarantees existing boundaries forever. Nothing could be less true. All it actually does provide is that changes, when necessary, shall not be accomplished by force, but through discussions, debates, and treaties. Every future international action must be in conformity with the principles of the league of nations."

Booth made the statement that it was generally understood that the cement manufacturers of the coast had virtually pooled their interests and were operating under a "gentleman's agreement" so that it was immaterial to which firm the contract was awarded.

STATE HOUSE NEWS

The office of Supt. Churchill has just mailed out to the teachers of Oregon the mass of blanks and questions for the annual examinations of teachers. These lists cover a total of 24 subjects, with 12 questions on each subject. The applicant for life certificate is required to answer 10 out of the 12 questions on each subject. As to the new course of studies, it is stated by Supt. Churchill that the distribution cannot be made until about the middle of August, as the change of textbooks for the six-year period will cause considerable delay in mapping out the courses. Probably 75 per cent of the textbooks included in the series for the coming period are new books.

The State Highway Commission yesterday completed their tour of western Oregon, which took them through Jackson county to the California line. They discovered that one of the worst stretches of the main highway is over the Siskiyou grade, and it is expected that they will rush the work of hard-surfacing of this unit.

Much comment has been occasioned in the state by the action of the Highway Commission by awarding a big contract for cement to a California
