

Autos Whirl Pioneers of Ox-Team Generation to Reunion in Waldo Hills on Saturday

In Waldo Hills today the wild rose and tree-fern entwined about the ancient oak-fence; century-old stumps, heavily laden long dead, are scattered by croppers and snuffing flower-spikes; where yesterday was the gloom of the forest primeval is a velvety expanse of grain and vetch, undulating to the sky-line; and on the knolls where the pioneer's cattle grazed unfenced are masses of red fir, four decades old. There is little left to remind the settler of the early days; all is changed and with the change has come incomparable beauty and wealth.

Those of the old vanguard who came into this region, small-minded with the out-temper in the early '50's, were swirled in last Saturday forenoon for the pioneer's picnic in high-grade automobiles, also with their grandchildren. The one link that binds the present with the past is the spirit of thrift and loyalty, and hospitality that has come down with the blood of the second and third generation of the pioneers; and its fruitage is shown in every prosperous farm among the hills.

William Jory Oldest

Four generations might have been represented in the throng that filled the natural amphitheatre in Huata Cove last Saturday, for among the Marion county pioneers was white-haired William Jory, 91 years of age, and there were babes in arms. Representatives were present from many parts of the county, probably representing all the states of the Union. The gray heads were comparatively few in number, for a score or more of the pioneer band have passed away during the past year, and for those who remain the trip was a hard one.

Grandfather Jory, probably the oldest remaining figure in the band, was noticeably in the crowd as he strolled about with his cane, and greeted old neighbors. He could recall the entire history of this region from the day of '47, for with the exception of the mad era of '49 which he spent in the California gold camps, his whole life has been confined to his 500-acre farm near Salem, where he now lives with his son, Ed Jory.

Grandma Humphreys There

Seated in her rocking chair at the front, feeble but alert and smiling, Grandmother Humphreys of Sublimity exchanged greetings with old time friends. Her continuous residence on the 263-acre farm dates back to 1857, and she can relate a volume of experiences in the conquest of a new world. Hale old Matt Small of Silverton was prominent in the crowd—a landmark of the early '30's, as well as W. T. Rignold who, though younger in years than many of the band, has probably a wider acquaintance of the county than any other pioneer. He tells of coming across the plains by "schooner" in 1850 along with seven other families, among whom he is believed to be the only survivor. In this group was the family of Jacob H. Baughman, John Sherwood, Chas. Boynton, Ezekiel Hendricks and L. L. Townsend.

Downing Brothers Present

Other well-known settlers who were born and raised in the Waldo Hills region were Henry, Walter and Harry Downing and Abner Lewis, and along with these were large numbers of families whose names were not obtained—families who have clung to the lands of their fathers, have grown prosperous and multiplied. Some of them can tell of hit or hardships in Marion county. Some of them tell of leaving the farm and joggling about all over the continent, but were satisfied to come back at last and settle down among the hills for the balance of their days, for here at least is climate and industrial peace.

It was a jovial, sociable crowd that filled the wooded amphitheatre, everybody knew everybody, the air was replete with "jazz" music from the Salem band, and the occasion was made more festive by the vendors of ice cream, lemonade and peanuts.

Henry Downing acted as chairman of the meeting with County Commissioner Hunt as secretary, and a large part of the day was occupied with the program of vocal solos, recitations and addresses. Some of the favorite songs were rendered by Mrs. Sidney Richardson of Silverton; Mrs. Myrtle Harding, Mrs. Carleton Smith, Miss Lena Belle Tartar, as well as by members of the Apollo club—Lynn McDonald, C. H. Stevenson and Mr. Doeflor. All were given hearty encores. Several very snappy recitations were furnished by Ethelwyn Kelly.

The principal address of the morning session was that of Judge A. S. Bennett of the supreme court, who paid a glowing tribute to the character of the early pioneers, whose fidelity to their religious, political and educational ideals had helped to make the Willamette valley what it is today. He spoke with special feeling of the part played by the sons and daughters of the pioneers in the world war. Judge Bennett is entitled to a place among the builders of Marion county, though not one of the earliest arrivals.

Elks Aid for Fund

Following the long dinner, Walter Toose was called to the platform to deliver one of the addresses for which he is famous. He dwelt at length upon the part the Oregon boys have played in the war, incidentally citing the cases of his own three sons, who in their devotion to the cause are typical of millions of American boys. In the course of his address he made prominent the work of the Salvation army at the front where they made for themselves a page of glorious history. He made a strong plea for the cooperation of those present in the drive for funds now in progress.

Major Carlton Smith, whose long experience at the front gave weight to his statements, gave a vivid description of the battle in which the Oregon boys took part, and also made strong pleas for the Salvation army to whom they were so much indebted. This address was supplemented by Captain Kraus, of the Salvation army, who in a brief statement showed how much could be done with a dollar in the army, whose chief business is transforming American manhood from a liability to an asset. As a further means of helping along the good work of the Elks, the ladies of the Iowa band presented a beautiful knitted quilt, which was put up to raffle at 10 cents a number.

In this latter respect the pioneers' plan of 1919 was made more memorable than its predecessors, for it served a double purpose in view of the fact that the age qualification for membership has been changed so that all those who have been in the state for 50 years or more be counted as members of the association, for by another year the original organization will exist in name only.

P. E. Shafer has taken out a building permit for $300. This represents the cost of putting in a new front of Mr. Shafer's business house on South Commercial street, and is one of the many improvements going on in the city.

The estate of James A. Wilson has been appraised at $6724.14 by F. G. Deekens, P. W. Schmidt and Frank Schmidt. This includes 403 shares in the Northwest Fruit Products Co., now Phos company, and 10 shares in the Marion hotel.

Marriage licenses have been issued as follows: Walter S. Badger of Los Angeles, 31, a newspaper man to Hazel Paris, 26, a saleslady of Salem. Andrew Wilson, 42, of rural route 3, Salem, a farmer, to Nora Layley also of rural route 3, Salem.

At the dinner hour the throng was scattered into parties and one of the typically bountiful Oregon feasts was spread amid a clatter of sociability and reminiscence.

The program to create interest in the Salvation army campaign for funds, given at Aurora Saturday evening was well-attended and according to Walter La Touge, everything is coming along all right in that vicinity for a liberal subscription. Chas. V. Galloway and Robin D. Day were the speakers of the evening. The program included solos by Mrs. Verna Cooder Frank, O. L. McDonald, the ladies quartet of Woodburn, and a recitation by Ethelwyn Kelly.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hamilton and Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Zimmerman drove to Corvallis Saturday evening and put in the time Sunday morning in climbing Mary's peak near Albany. From the time the party left their automobile at the foot of the mountain, four hours climbing was necessary before reaching the summit of the peak. A view could be had of the ocean to the west and to the south to point seven miles south of Eugene. All of the prominent mountain peaks of the coast were visible from the summit. On the return the party found 60 varieties of mountain flowers. Mary's peak is one of the most popular climbing points in the valley.

KIRK AND FERGUSON ON ACCIDENT BOARD

Governor Names Successors To Harvey Beckwith And Wilford Allen.

All conjecture as to the future personnel of the industrial accident commission has been settled by the recent action of the governor in selecting J. W. Ferguson, of Portland, to succeed Harvey Beckwith, and Will T. Kirk, recently installed at the head of the claims department, to succeed Wilford Allen. The statute creating the commission stipulated that not more than two members of the body should be of the same political party. In this arrangement, Mr. Allen, a democrat, is replaced by a democrat, and the other appointee being a republican along with Wm. A. Marshall, who has been with the commission since its establishment, the status of the body remains as before. Under the present alignment, Mr. Kirk will represent the citizens of the state at large; Mr. Ferguson, the interests of the employers and Mr. Marshall the interests of the employees.

In making the announcement Governor Olcott makes no specific reference to the complaint that have arisen as to the operations of the department.

"I have watched the situation in the accident commission closely since I have been in the executive office and was rather familiar with it prior to that time. I am thoroughly convinced that the make-up of the board was not conducive to the best operation of the workmen's compensation law. The functions of the act are among the most important that any of the state boards or commissions are called upon to administer.

"Without wholesale co-operation on the part of commissioners efficient handling of affairs and considerate attention to those interested in the operation of the act the greatest good from the compensation act cannot be obtained.

Appointees Held Qualified.

"I have had a long acquaintance with both Mr. Ferguson and Mr. Kirk and know personally that their qualifications are such as to assure harmonious and efficient handling of the commission's affairs. These appointments are unhesitatingly made by me. They are entirely upon my own initiative and based upon my personal knowledge of their fitness. I am thoroughly convinced that the changes I am making are for the public good."

Numerous friends of Mr. Kirk in Salem and elsewhere, who were pleased with his selection for the claims department some weeks ago, will be doubly gratified to learn of his advancement to this position of responsibility and trust. Of his fitness there will be no question as he has been for years in close touch with all state affairs in his work about the state house and in the newspaper field. Since 1911 he has been associated with the Oregon Journal up to the time of his appointment to office.

Governor Olcott is smilingly exhibiting today a group of photographs snapped by a veteran camera man at Grants Pass when the flock of big "birds" landed there. One of them shows the governor mounted on the platform of an oil wagon for an address and was caught at the moment when the executive was ejaculating to the artist—"shoot!"
