Two thousand banks have been ordered by W. M. Smith, county superintendent of schools for the use of school children in the county next winter. These banks are of the hand grenade variety. Mr. Smith issues the following: "One grenade bank may be secured at the opening of school in September or October by any pupil 10 years old or younger, who exhibits one war savings stamp. If more than 10 years old, two war savings stamps, purchased with money earned during vacation, and who brings in a story showing how the money was earned."

Either "Big Bill" Hart or "Fatty" Arbuckle would be regarded by Salem theater goers as a whole show; when they appear upon the same evening program the crowd gets the value of the admission fee twice. That is what will happen at the Oregon theater Thursday and Friday. Hart will be there in one of his favorite situations—the big, good natured and nervy cowboy puncher of the plains temporarily transplanted in the aristocratic atmosphere of a big eastern city, where he musses up the conventionalities considerably. This film picture is "The Money Corral" in which Hart has a glorious chance to use both his fists and his gun. The scenes are laid partly in the principal section of Montana and partly in the gold field section of Chicago, and the photography is excellent all round. Hart is supported in the play by Jane Novak as leading woman and Herschel Mayall as second. Along with Hart in this program Arbuckle looms up in "The Desert Hero" which shows up the fat man in a series of tremendously ridiculous situations. It is one of the funniest yet.

Henry W. Meyers, who is motoring through California, writes friends that it was pretty hot down in the Sacramento valley, but that he was taking things easy and not attempting to break any records.

The famous Salem float which is to appear in the parade Friday afternoon will have on its canopy 1616 stars, representing the number of men in the service from Marion county. Of this number 50 will be gold stars. C. B. Chaney has again assumed charge of decorating the float for the Salem parade. Besides the wonderful decorations that caused so much favorable comment at the Rose festival parade in Portland, there will be seen on the float the Goddess of Liberty, Miss Margaret White and her two maids of honor, Miss Alta Johnson and Miss Leona Dunham with the following young ladies: Edna Ackerman, Alice McClellan, Elsie Bruder.

The Fourth of July in Salem is to be a real Fourth. The Business Men's League announce that all merchants will close all day, with the probable exception of some grocers and meat markets who may want to keep open shop a few hours in the morning. At the city hall, only the police department will be on the job. All others will be closed. And the same may be said of the court house, post office and state house. This is to be a real national as well as local holiday. There will be nothing to do in Salem except to celebrate the great homecoming and Fourth and have a good time.

Special meeting of Salem Lodge No. 4 A. F. & A. M., this evening. Work in the M. M. degree. Visiting brethren welcome.

Business is on a boom in the department of the office of county clerk where seals of moles and gophers are counted. The last legislature passed a special law for Marion county, permitting it to offer ten cents for seals of moles and gophers, with five cents for gray diggers. As the law became effective May 29, business in this line was so rushing that for the one month alone the office paid out as bounty $501.35, while for the preceding five months, the total was only $328.35.

An examination for the job of serving as postmaster at Turner is announced by the civil service department. This examination will be held in Salem Sept. 24, 1919, and only those may apply and take the examination who were residents of the Turner district at the time the vacancy occurred. The postmaster at Turner is paid $1000 a year. Heaster Small who was postmaster is now in the aviation service. The examination is the easiest one given by the civil service and includes elementary arithmetic, penmanship, letter writing, and copying addresses from manuscript. For application blanks to the Salem, post office. The position is also open to women, as the regulations read "citizen" when describing who may take the examination.

The industrial section of the victory parade on the afternoon of the Fourth will be a record breaker, according to Fred Tragle, chairman of the committee in charge of industrial parades. To make a proper showing, the committee wants all working people to take part. The labor section will contain several floats and will be found in the parade immediately following the military. This industrial section will form at 1 o'clock Friday on Cottage street north of Ferry street facing south in order that the section will occupy the blocks north from Perry to Chemeketa streets.
