At the close of the season the amount thus deposited will be contended for by the King's Products company and the growers and the case will be tried on ris merits. This is the case in which the King's Products company agreed to pay the growers the market price year of the five and ten year contracts when the contracts were signed.

The growers contend that the conract according to a verbal agreement mean the open market price. The King's Proucts company contended it meant the price the company was will ing to pay its growers, and not the open market price. The part of the contract asto market price was attached in the way of a slip by the fing's Products company, after the growers had signed the contract.

Chautauqua Backers May Buy Tickets Next Monday

Next Monday is the day when every erson who subscribed for a Chautauan ticket is expected to go to the Hartman jewelry store and take up the ticket or tickets. The Chautanqua com-mittee calls attention to the fact that it has not the time to chase around town and often make several calls at house to collect for one ticket. Also that it is no more than right that ticket ubscribers should themselves go to Hartman's Monday and get their tick-ets. It costs $1600 to get the Chautau-qua here one week. The first onter-tainment for the Chautauqua this year is Sunday evening of July 20 and every soldier in uniform or one with the card issued by the Commercial club will be given admittance free, to bear the leeture on Russin. The soldier with no girl behind Is dead upon his feet, He has no spur his soul to stir; No laving heart to greet.

His weapons hang loose in his hands; His helmet tires his brain; War is a drudge; he fears to budge; In victory sees no gain.
