

Speed—and the price of Meat

Forty-eight hours after cattle are purchased by Swift & Company they are hanging up as meat; within two weeks the fresh meat has been sold.

This speed means money in the pocket of the one who raises the live stock and of the one who eats the meat. It means a rapid "turnover" of capital and investment—making possible the transaction of daily business on a narrower margin of profit.

Speed permits Swift & Company to do a successful business on a profit of a fraction of a cent per pound.

Such speed, with its rapid turnover and smaller profits would be impossible without the efficient organization and wide scope of Swift & Company, the results of fifty years' experience in handling meat.

Do you believe that government interference with the complicated and efficient machinery of the packing industry can be of any benefit? Experience with government regulation of railroads and telephone and telegraph might suggest an answer.

KING FERDINAND EXPECTED TO REACH BUDAPEST TODAY

London, Aug. 7.—King Ferdinand of Rumania will arrive today at Budapest, where he is expected to issue a proclamation outlining the future government of Hungary, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Vienna.

Rumanian action against Hungary

came to a climax with the announcement yesterday that an ultimatum had been presented in Budapest demanding the Hungarian surrender large quantities of war and other materials. British and American representatives in Budapest have protested against the ultimatum. The allies also have ordered Rumanian troops to evacuate the Hungarian capital. Allied military detachments are reported to be on the way to relieve the situation.

Ferdinand Offered Crown

Berlin, Aug. 6.—The Vienna correspondent of the Zwoelf Uhr Blatt reported today that a counter-revolutionary government at Szeged had offered the Hungarian crown to King Ferdinand of Rumania, pointing out that a union of Rumania and Hungary possibly would save for Hungarian elements the parts of Hungary which the allies awarded to Rumania. The Rumanians have refused the Iron

LABOR FIGHT STOPS ALL BUILDING WORK

Timberworkers Union And Loyal Legion Battle For Supremacy.

Bellingham, Wash. Aug. 6.—Building operations were at an end here today as a result of the bitter fight between the Timberworkers' Union and the Loyal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen for control of the northwest woods. Lumber dealers refuse to supply the local market until the boycott by local unions against the Biocel-Donovan company products is lifted. This company precipitated a strike a week ago by discharging two employees who refused to join the Loyal Legion, a war time organization of employers now backed by the employers. The Timberworkers' Union, backed by the A. P. of L. which called the strike, obtained the support of all local unions who refused to handle timber products. The operators in return united and declared that they would sell no more lumber in Bellingham, sufficient business being available elsewhere. Appeals to labor organizations in other cities are being made by the timber workers, who declare that they will shut all Atlantic and Pacific ports to the firms who are fighting them.

Bandit Uses Carbolic Acid To Intimidate Fair Victim

Astoria, Or., Aug. 6.—Dispensing with the time honored revolver which is generally used for such purposes, a lone bandit today held up Miss Helen Callahan cashier of a local moving picture theatre using carbolic acid instead. The robber threatened to disfigure the cashier for life unless she gave him all the money in sight. She did. The bandit escaped with $140.

Allied Troops Expected To Enter Budapest Today

Berlin, Aug. 6.—(United Press).—Allied troops were expected to arrive in Budapest today.

Dispatches from that city reported clashes between the Rumanians and the population of Budapest.

Peace Delegates Disturbed

Paris, Aug. 7.—British and American peace delegates were highly disturbed today over the Rumanian disregard of allied instructions, the occupation of Budapest and the presentation of an ultimatum to the Hungarians. It was thought further action might be necessary to dissuade the Rumanians from their present policy.

the bankers of Missouri by Edith Root: "Surely some provision must be made to prevent the continuance of the steady progress toward bankruptcy of the railroads which characterized the decade before the government took possession in 1917."

"It will reveal that this interests are again gathering their forces of private and secret control, and seek after having gained from congress sanction to rehabilitate their railroad properties at public expense, to begin and follow through its corrupt and wicked cycle the systematized plundering and looting of the public interest in the nation's highways."

In a letter written by Chairman Cummins of the senate interstate commerce committee's direction, Wilson was told that Director Hines has authority to fix both wages and rates and that therefore no action by congress is necessary to meet the present emergency. The letter was a refusal of President Wilson's request that congress authorize special wage commission.

"The committee recognizes the gravity of the situation," the letter to the president said, "and earnestly desires to co-operate with you in bringing about the proper solution of the difficult problems which confront the committee."

"It feels, however, that congress has already given you complete plenary authority to deal with the existing situation and that additional legislation at this time can add nothing whatever to your power in the present. The director general can fix the wages of all men employed in the transportation service and it seems to be clear that it is for him to say whether the compensation of the men should or should not be increased. He has all the available legislation which can possibly be secured and it is the view of the committee that he should act in accordance with public interest and his own judgment."

"The director general also has the absolute right to initiate rates for the transportation, and he can advance or lower them as he may think necessary or wise to meet the requirements of the transportation systems in his charge, and moreover, he can put the new rates into effect whenever in his judgment they should become effective."

"If the committee felt that there was any lack of power on your part or on the part of the director general, it would be quick to act; but inasmuch as it can perceive no want of authority, it has reached the conclusion that an additional legislation is required to meet the particular emergency which you have pointed out."

CALIFORNIA INVESTOR ASKS INFORMATION ON OREGON MINING PLANT

From Oilfields, Calif., comes the following letter, addressed to the Salem Commercial club:

"Some years ago I purchased some stocks in the Golden Rule Mining & Milling company, to locate at Bohemia, Lane county, Oregon. But the office was located at Salem and made up mostly of Salem people."

"Would you be kind enough to inform me if such a company is still in existence, or whatever information you may know."

Inquiry at the office of U. G. Boyer, county clerk, and a search of the public records, develops the fact that the Golden Rule Mining & Milling company was organized in Salem January 25, 1902, and that it filed its articles of incorporation February 17, 1902, with William Wechter, William Lansing and Z. M. Parvin as directors.

The capital stock was to be $100,000. In order that all might have a chance to buy stock, there was to be issued 2,000,000 shares at five cents each.

From those who are familiar with the company, it is learned that for several years the work of mining was delayed on account of patents, but the early troubles were cleared and a fine plant erected at a heavy expense. The plant was operated electrically and is located on the Blue river not far from the Lucky Boy and the Bohemia gold mines. For several years there was an output of from $20,000 to $25,000 a month in gold ore, but when the war came on and labor trouble began and other difficulties, the mine was closed down and has remained closed. However, there has been recently an effort made to revive the plant but nothing can be learned definitely.
